Riding At Anchor

By Mr. Modestus

(From The Elevator Constructor)

"Sovereignty"—
That was the closed door—
Through which world-peace could not enter, and live—
After World War I, and all the other wars—
Refusal to give up one smallest iota—
Of complete independence of national action—
Regardless of the welfare of any other nation—
Financial bankruptcy could be faced, quite calmly—
Certainty of approaching catastrophic war was accepted—
But any permanent commitment to international co-operation—
Was outside the possibilities, at Versailles, and after.

* * *

England gripped that key—
Of national political independence—
Yet no nation on earth was, and is, more dependent—
Upon the rest of the earth, and upon friendship of nations—
For its daily supply of Bread, and Tea, and other indispensables—
France also, demanded security, with guarantees—
Against future invasions, aggressions, military attacks—
But France, like England, could not live alone—
Without world-markets for her wines, silk textiles, munitions—
Broken reeds, shattered in their hands—
Are what these statesmen found they had chosen.

* * *

Policing the World—
Accepted now as necessary by United Nations—
Violates first principles of national "sovereignty"—
Which is nothing else but political isolation—
But The Law comes in, when bandits are on the loose—
And somebody has to carry the guns for the community—
Vigilante posses are now hunting the outlaws—
When they have rounded up the criminals—
There will be a new election, by all interested parties—
To choose up for some new peace officers—
Who shall take the place of the Vigilante Committees—
After these have finished cleaning up the place.

It was greed for Power—
Rather than Economic Determinism—
Which started this world-wide whirlwind of carnage—
Hitler's gang wanted control of actual Power, politically—
It was not just economic hardships which actuated them—
Accused of blood-guilt in the first World War—
Germany seeks now to wipe out that criminal charge—
By licking the nations which laid it at her doors—
There is but one answer to that challenge now—
Blood-guilt in this war must be nailed on Berlin's gates.

* * *

But military world-conquest—
Would carry with it unlimited economic power—
Would be declared proof and guerdon of innocence—
Of the part of the two-time aggressor—
Nevertheless, only world-wide economic justice, opportunity—
Can close doors forever to future excuses for war—
This calls for something closer than mere policing—
It calls for something of heart in the world's trading—
Business must lose its soul—
To save the life of the world.

CLEAN HOUSING FOR WORKERS VITAL TO WAR PRODUCTION

By William Green

Our machinery of war production and distribution is as enormous as it is complicated. The war production engineering necessary to bring its operation to top capacity includes economic engineering, business engineering, and human engineering. Every gear of this machinery must mesh, every part fit, every resource of productive energy must be put to the best and most effective use.

There must be co-ordination of labor supply, materials, production and distribution. Without full co-ordination, maximum war production cannot be attained.

Shells cannot be made with machines alone. War production cannot be turned out without workers. Adequate shelter for war workers is a foremost requirement to assure the necessary supply of war workers and to assure sustained quality and quantity of war output.

War Housing Labor Problem

Provision of war housing is a labor problem. Skilled and trained workers are necessary to produce war materials. The supply of this labor depends in very large measure on the housing facilities which can be provided to accommodate war workers brought to new production centers.

Expansion of war production is achieved in four ways. First, by converting existing plants previously engaged in civilian production to war production. This means that the labor force in a plant converted to war production is doubled or tripled. A plant manufacturing typewriters or refrigerators or vacuum cleaners may have employed a thousand workers who used to turn out the civilian production by working one shift a day.

When such a plant is changed over to the manufacture of guns, which are urgently needed at the line of battle, maximum production calls for continuous operation of the plant. To attain this, three shifts instead of one must be employed, and 3,000 instead of 1,000 workers are required to man this plant. To meet the requirements of skill and training, a large portion of the workers required to turn out this war production must be brought into the community from outside. These workers must be provided with housing.

Expansion of Plants

Second, by addition and expansion of the existing plants. Where war production is already being turned out, additional machinery and equipment is being installed, additions to the existing plants are being built to achieve most economically maximum capacity production. This, too, is an important source of our war production labor requirements which will bring about migration of the required workers into the communities where these plants are located.

Third, by increased output of the workers employed in the existing war production plants. Many of these plants are manned by workers forced to live in overcrowded slums, in shacks, in trailers, and in any make-shift accommodations that can be found. Workers who live under such conditions are unfit to shoulder the heavy burden of maximum production and the productivity lags. After a while, their health becomes impaired and their ability to contribute the best of their stamina and energy to war production is permanently threatened. Here, too, additional housing is needed if maximum production is to be maintained.

And, finally, by new plant construction. Additional war plants are being completed every day, and new war plants are going under construction in all parts of the country. The peak of completed new plant construction should be attained in September and October. These new plants are located in areas where there is sufficient electric power, in which there are adequate transportation facilities, and in which there is best possible access to raw materials.

Many of these plants have been placed and are being placed in areas where the available labor supply has long since been exhausted. A large number of shell loading, bag loading and ammunition plants whose use is bound to be temporary have been placed in rural areas where no housing whatever is available. A completely new labor force must be brought in to operate these plants. The workers who are to run them must have housing.

Morale Must Be High

To turn out war production, we need a huge army of workers. Their morale must be high. Their spirit lags and their energy dwindles when they are subjected to conditions which breed disease, discouragement and discontent.

A State Commissioner of Housing in one of our great industrial States spoke from long experience when he said:

"Building and equipping plants will not produce the war materials essential to victory. Such plants stand as cold, inanimate masses of concrete and steel until loyal, hard-working men and women, by their skill and devotion, breathe life into them, make the wheels go 'round.

"And the industrial workers cannot give that devoted service, cannot make their skill count its fullest unless there is housing for them that provides, at a price they can afford to pay, the minimum comforts that every human being must have if he is to do his work well."

AIR DUCT CONSTRUCTION BY LATHERS

Air ducts built with metallated plaster board, attached to perforated sheet metal T-studs, in St. Louis Theatre. Note building of two sides of duct was only necessary, the wall and ceiling acting as other two sides. When sheet metal ducts are used, four sides must be made and then covered, usually with an insulating board requiring no plaster, thus eliminating lather and plasterer.

Plaster is applied over the ducts shown, to harmonize with adjoining walls and at considerable saving in costs over the sheet metal ducts.

Note vertical duct shown, similarly constructed. There are four vertical ducts in all, extending from basement to ceiling. Photo shows only section of one wall duct. Ducts extend on two sides and front of theatre above stage. Other ducts in lobby, rest rooms, etc.

CLEAN HOUSING FOR WORKERS

After the requisite number of workers is provided, it is equally important to maintain stable and most productive employment of these workers in their jobs.

Employment Made Unstable

Conclusive evidence is available today that lack of housing is seriously interfering with war production in the following ways:

1. Lack of housing creates artificial labor shortages. Essential workers are reluctant to take war production jobs in the areas in which there are no housing accommodations to provide for them and their families.

2. Lack of housing makes employment unstable. Workers in war production jobs who are forced to live in overcrowded, ill-equipped or make shift quarters seek jobs in areas in which housing is adequate, with the result that the quit rates in critical housing areas are extremely high, labor turnover reaches wasteful proportions, and production suffers from costly instability.

3. Lack of housing impairs the effort of war workers employed. Where housing shortage is acute, and a large proportion of workers are forced to occupy insanitary and ill-equipped quarters, the hazard to the workers' health is greatly increased, as shown by the high rate of absenteeism under such conditions.

4. Lack of housing lowers productivity of war workers. Ill-housed war workers who have no adequate quarters for rest and recreation cannot overcome the effects of cumulative fatigue brought by the stress of intensive production. As the result, efficiency declines, accident rates rise, the rate of productivity falls sharply, output is lowered, and the quality of the war output is impaired.

BARRACKS FOR WORKERS DEFEATED BY AFL UNIONS

Philadelphia, Pa.—A plan of National Housing Administrator John B. Blandford, Jr., to erect barracks instead of decent housing for 500 Navy Yard workers here has been defeated by the combined efforts of the Building & Construction Trades Council, the Philadelphia Navy Yard and the Philadelphia Housing Authority.

The only excuse given by Blandford for his proposal was an alleged lack of building materials. James L. McDevitt, business manager of the building council and president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, pointed out that it takes almost as much material to build barracks as it does proper housing.

"No one," McDevitt asserted, "knows how long the war will last. Certainly it will not be a short war. And even after its close, we will be unwilling to shut down our entire war production program over night."

"With this in mind it seems unreasonable to erect a lot of flimsy and unsafe sheds and expect war workers to live in them without privacy of any kind."

WORKERS BUILD CAMP IN 12 FEET OF SNOW

A new camp for the training of mountain troops 9500 feet above sea level, where the average snow depth is around 12 feet, will be finished by the last of October. Lt. Gen. Lesley J. McNair, commanding general of the Ground Forces, announced. It is located "somewhere in the Colorado Rockies." Expert skiers, mountain climbers, trappers, guides, sportsmen and "sourdoughs" will drill on peaks 15,000 feet high.

Animals that pace back and forth against the bars of their cages are not attempting to get out. Most zoo animals are contented in their captive environment and would be "lost" in their native wilds.

Ulster, or Northern Ireland, is composed of six counties. Linen weaving and shipbuilding are the main industries.

Levulinic acid, a powerful hormone known for more than 70 years, has increased production as much as 100 per cent in yields of cotton, corn, oats, alfalfa, soy beans, cow peas, beets and grasses. It is also useful in the manufacture of special dyes for coloring plastics.

GREEN URGES STRICTER ADHERENCE TO FEDERATION'S NO-STRIKE POLICY

Chicago, Ill.—An urgent call to all AFL unions to comply strictly with the Federation's no-strike policy was issued from here by President William Green.

At the conclusion of the summer meeting of the Executive Council, Mr. Green announced he is sending a communication to all affiliated organizations urging them in the strongest possible terms to avoid stoppage of work in war production for any reason.

He said that when disputes arise they should be routed through the various Federal agencies created for mediating and conciliating grievances and, if no agreement is reached, submitted for final settlement to the National War Labor Board.

"Nowhere along this route should any stoppage of work occur," Mr. Green declared. "We cannot afford to lose a moment's production time. The men in our fighting forces, our own flesh and blood, are depending on the nation's soldiers of production to supply them with vital materials of war. We cannot fail them."

Mr. Green said labor has made a good record since the war started, but "not good enough."

"The inescapable fact is that we must do better and produce more. There is no time to lose."

Mr. Green voiced similar convictions in an address before the convention of the United Garment Workers of America in Michigan City, Ind. He said:

"Labor has stripped itself of its economic power by surrendering the strike weapon for the duration. It is my firm belief that we must apply that no-strike policy religiously until the war is won.

"The call of the moment is for service. If our sons, brothers and fathers are willing to be taken from their homes to fight in some remote part of the world, can we do less than work and serve as civilians in producing for them the things they need in order to fight and serve?

"Perhaps the loss of an hour, a day, a week, or a month might mean the loss of a life, it might mean the sacrifice of some one near and dear to us. We cannot afford to fail them. They depend on us because we are soldiers of production. The soldier in the field bares his breast to meet the enemy, but there must be a steady flow of goods and materials, all that is necessary in abundance from the point where you serve to the remote point where they fight.

"Members of the AFL are doing wonderfully well, but they are not doing enough. They must do more, they must give more, they must serve more, they must sacrifice more. For after all, what will life in America and the world mean if democracy dies? We are fighting to live as free men."

FURRING AND LATHING ON R. R. TRESTLE BY LOCAL 63 LATHERS

Suspended ceiling and roof installed by members of Local 63, Richmond, Va. on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad trestle alongside the C. & O. Main Street Station, Richmond. Railroad engineers have praised this job and when the material is again available, will consider doing more of this work. This ceiling was installed for one-half the cost of a wooden ceiling.

Local 63 members who worked on this job are shown in the foreground: R. W. Springer, J. G. Duggan and H. F. Kauert.

SPECIFICATIONS: 1½" channels, spaced 3' 6" o. c.; ¾" channels spaced 12" o. c.; 4 lb. expanded Bar-X lath used, tied every 3" with No. 18 gage wire. Hangers, ¼" pencil rods, spaced 4' 0" o. c.; also extra hangers of No. 8 wire spaced between each pencil rod hanger.

This ceiling is plastered on top of metal lath and ¾" channels and plaster is also rounded over 1½" channels to make the ceiling water tight. Ceiling has a drop on the street side of 8" in a distance of 40' 0" so the water will run off.

BUILDING GOES ON IN THE TROPICS

Building tradesmen now with the Marines in a U. S. outpost in the Pacific are finding themselves with the usual construction work to be done—in a different way.

A Marine garrison recently arrived at a tropical isle. They found that in the matter of living quarters "you do as the Romans do," so they set to work building cool, hurricane-proof houses like the natives live in.

The houses have dome-shaped roofs of sugar cane thatch and are supported on posts. Normally the spaces between these posts are left open, but they can be closed against wind and rain with blinds made of cocoanut leaves. Floors are made of beach pebbles covered with cocoanut matting. On this surface fine mats are laid out to sit or sleep on. One large mat is placed outside each hut, and visitors are greeted with a saying which means "the mat is warm," or just plain "welcome."

Native house builders, who are helping the Americans, are paid in food, pigs and fine mats. There are no fixed prices, but should the native be dissatisfied with the payment, he leaves the work and the prospective occupant is shamed before the whole village. No other builder will complete the work. The natives take great pride, however, in tutoring the Americans, especially those who were building tradesmen in their own country.

With the help of mosquito nettings, these air conditioned quarters are a highly satisfactory answer to the discomforts of life in the tropics.

LATHERS GENEROUS IN RELIEF CAMPAIGNS

War Bonds are being purchased by our members all over the country, in many instances at great personal sacrifice, and they keep right on buying. Not satisfied with doing their bit in War Bonds, they also willingly climb on the bandwagon for various relief campaigns waged in their home cities.

Members of Local 102, Newark, N. J., donated $150 to the Navy Relief Fund. Up to this writing, members of this local have bought $6,000 in War Bonds and the local invested $2,000 in War Bonds.

In Washington, the members of Local 9 contributed $100 to the "Smokes for Yanks" campaign in their city. "Our men appreciate what it means when an American soldier wants an American smoke," declared Secretary E. J. Cale of this local union, who served in the Coast Artillery during the last World War.

This local also has created a fund for their members in the armed forces, whereby each man is given $10 a month.

Local 9 members bought $71,000 in War Bonds and the local, $7,000.

Local 228, Tulsa, Okla., reported donations of $25.00 to the Red Cross; $25.00 to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis; $25.00 to the Veterans of Foreign Wars Barrack Fund. In addition the local union invested $600 in War Bonds.

ATTENTION SECRETARIES

Bonds on your financial officers expire October 15, 1942. Renewals should be reported to headquarters before that time, in order to maintain continuous protection for your local's funds.

Smaller locals some times take the stand that such protection is not needed for them. Experience has proven that they need the guarantee of the bond as well as locals with larger membership, and we urge that the matter of bonding your local financial officers be taken up at your next meeting.

The premium on a $500 bond is $4.25; on a $1,000 bond, $8.00. Premiums on greater amounts will be quoted by headquarters on request.

CORRECTIONS

Withdrawal card Local 88 issued to Bro. J. E. Thorne 36539, published in the August issue, has been cancelled as granted the brother thru misunderstanding.

This also applies to the withdrawal card Local 278 issued to Bro. A. L. Kelley 31976, published in the August issue.

NOTICE

New York State Council of Lathers notified headquarters that until further notice Local 233 stands suspended from that council.

Decisions of the General President

Section 121 L. I. U. Constitution provides: All decisions of the General President must be published in the following issue of The Lather, together with a short, concise synopsis of the case. All decisions of the Executive Council must be published in the following issue of The Lather.

C. R. Craemer, 35547 Vs. Local No. 33.

Brother Craemer appealed against the action of Local 33 in placing a $100.00 fine against him and revoking his foremanship on the job upon which he was employed, on the charge of working as foreman without pay. The General President, after carefully reviewing all of the evidence presented by both sides, found the appellant guilty as charged, and therefore sustained the action of Local 33.

TAKING INTEREST

(New Orleans Daily Int. of Commerce)

In bestowing the suffrage in the thirteen American commonwealths in 1783, wrote John Fiske, "the new constitutions were as conservative as in all other respects. In New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Delaware and South Carolina, all resident freemen who paid taxes could vote. In North Carolina all such persons could vote for members of the lower house, but in order to vote for senators a freehold of fifty acres was required, as was the case in Virginia. To vote for governor or senators in New York the citizens must possess a freehold of $250, clear of mortgage and to vote for assemblymen one must either have a freehold of $50, or pay a yearly rent of $10. In Rhode Island an unincumbered freehold worth $134 was necessary, but in that state and in Pennsylvania the oldest sons of qualified voters could vote without payment of taxes. In all other states the possession of property, either real or personal, was a necessary qualification for voting. Thus slowly and irregularly did the states move toward universal suffrage. The impediments were more serious than later and were intended to exclude such shiftless persons as had no visible interest in keeping down the taxes."

At first glance the property qualifications appear comparatively trivial today, but it should also be recalled that in 1783 two stages a day were sufficient to handle all freight and passenger traffic between the two largest commercial cities of the United States—New York and Boston.

Yet today the situation has practically made an about-face. The point has been reached wherein a large percentage of those who could and should vote and who actually are taxpayers, have to be coaxed

Herbert O'Neal, 29305 and Geo. Liddle, Jr., 36427 Vs. Local No. 265.

Brother O'Neal appealed against the action of Local 265 in placing a fine of $100.000 against him on the charge of discriminating against the membership of that local union.

Brother Liddle appealed against the action of Local 265 in also placing a fine of $100.000 against him on the charge of violating Sections 72 and 177 L. I. U. Constitution, while acting as foreman in their jurisdiction.

The General President, after carefully reviewing all of the evidence presented by both sides and the report of Vice President Langan who was sent in to make an investigation, found the charges in both cases to be unfair and unjust, and he therefore ordered them rescinded, as well as the fines of $100.00.

and urged by the press to go to polls and vote, take an interest in the welfare of their community and thus avail themselves of the right and privilege which they too often take for granted. They have to be reminded that it is only by showing interest that they will be considered and need furthermore to be reminded that if they consistently fail to show they realize they have certain rights the time will naturally come when the conclusion or idea will be reached that those rights are of little interest to them and that it matters not whether they are violated or imposed upon.

More should realize the circumstance or plight of individuals in foreign nations where ballots are supposedly cast but in such a manner that they must submit to the decree of the ruling power in its entirety else suffer the consequences which more often result in death or solitary confinement as a rule than an average.

IN APPRECIATION

Local Union 47 and Brother Ralph V. Clements, No. 4870, express their sincere thanks to the following local unions and council for their generosity to the brother in response to the appeal circulated on his behalf:

NEW GUINEA

North of Australia and topped by the equator is New Guinea, which embraces the entire island and associated archipelagos, which include Dutch New Guinea, Territory of New Guinea (including the Island of New Britain and the Bismarck Archipelago, etc.,) and the Territory of Papua. The southeast part of the island administered as a Territory of the Commonwealth of Australia, is called Papua; the northeast part, Mainland New Guinea, or Mandated New Guinea.

Mandated New Guinea was under the formal rule of the German Empire for the 30 years between 1884 and 1914. Despite Australian protests, and earlier requests for the territory to be annexed, the British Government did not contest German occupation of the Territory in 1884. The administration and exploitation of the territory was given by the Kaiser's Government to the New Guinea Company, using a dubious method of colonial rule which Britain had long abandoned as anachronistic. The history of this administration was similar to that of other chartered companies, but in 1899, conditions improved with the appointment of German governor in complete control of affairs. This regime lasted until September 12, 1914, or just long enough after the outbreak of World War I, for a small Australian expeditionary force to be raised and reach Rabaul. Rabaul was taken with about 50 casualties, and remained the seat of an Australian military administration until May 9, 1921.

Then, the German New Guinea was formally taken over by an Australian Administration charged with carrying out the terms of the league of Nations "C" Class Mandate. This was a special type of Mandate for which World War Prime Minister William Morris Hughes had sought at Versailles in the belief (later confirmed) that unless Australia had the right to exclude Japanese immigration from New Guinea, the area would become a menace to the security of the Commonwealth.

The Territory of Papua had been administered by Australia since 1906. It first became definitely a British possession in 1884, when an Australian party was sent there by the Queensland (State) Government to take control of the country before Germany could do so. An Administrator administers the Territory with the assistance of a Legislative Council and an Executive Council. Civil administration in both territories ceased with the beginning of the Japanese invasion.

The native population of the Mandate and Territory has been estimated officially at 927,000, of whom about 300,000 are in Papua. The natives are divided into two main groups—Melanesian and Papuan. The former, with a few exceptions constitute the population of the Bismarck Archipelago, the Solomon Islands and the coastal districts of the New Guinea Mainland while the Papuans occupy the interior. In the far interior, there are occasional tribes of negritos. The natives live mainly by agriculture, but engage in some hunting. The principal domestic animal is the pig.

The pre-war non-native population of Papua was 1,608 and of Mandate 4,608.

Easily the biggest group in the Mandate were the 3,472 of British nationality, the majority Australians. Apart from the Chinese (1,737), the other largest single group was the German (473). There were also many naturalized Australians of German origin and (it proved) sympathies in the Mandate. The majority of these were missionaries, and planters and traders who had remained after the end of the German administration.

Except in a few areas where large scale mining and plantations flourish, the native populations of New Guinea and Papua have been encouraged to preserve the original cultural and economic pattern of life. This has been the policy of successive administrations in both territories. The position is roughly similar on the mainland of Australia with the difference that enormous reservations have had to be established for the purpose. For example almost the whole of Arnhem Land is a strictly policed native reservation.

Recruiting of native labor has been based on a strict policy of "ensuring the continuity of native life based on the village". In Papua, it was estimated that as many as 20,000 natives a year could be working on mine or plantation projects without imperiling this policy. The number actually working in any one year never exceeded half that figure. In the more populous Mandate the number was 42,000. Natives must always be returned to their villages after being paid off after a term of work, and may not be immediately re-employed. Two purposes were thought to be achieved by this: one to provide an additional motive for the good treatment of the natives by plantation owners and the other to diffuse civilized standards by means of the natives returned to their villages.

In peacetime, New Guinea had more than 40 airfields as well as a number of emergency landing grounds. The dense jungle and precipitous country discouraged road building, and New Guinea was probably the first country in the world to be developed almost entirely by air. New Guinea air services carried more than a ton of freight a year for every white inhabitant of the area. Each person in the area averaged five trips a year by transport plane.

Since the outbreak of war, the entire civilian population of New Guinea was evacuated by air to Australia. In one case, a plane carried 45 women and children across the Torres Straits.

The development of the airways explains why there is no road over the Owen Stanley Range, nor even a road between coastal Lae and Salamaua and Wau goldfields "capital" only 35 air miles distant.

Separating the United Nations and Japanese bases in New Guinea is the huge broken bulk of the Owen Stanley Range (sometimes called the Main Range), which rises in the central ridge to more than 13,000 feet.

There is no road over this Range. A road exists from the newly occupied Japanese base at Buna (normal white population three) and inland Kokoda, where there is a rough airfield. Kokoda is in the foothills of the Range. Beyond Kokoda into the mountains there is nothing but overgrown tracks through which men can pass in single file. Vine-rope swinging bridges cross the streams. Deep gorges and precipitous cliffs flank the trails.

The pass over the Range above Kokoda, called "the Gap" is about 9,000 feet high. These passes constitute the actual no-man's land between Allied and Japanese territory. At the higher elevations open forests of pine and oak replace the jungle of the lower steeps, and higher still swamplands and moors. Permanent habitation ceases at 8,000 feet.

Between the lines of the United Nations forces drawn from Port Moresby and the bases of the invading Japanese there is one permanent mark. That is a great steel crucifix erected on the summit of Mt. Albert Edward (13,213 feet) by a French missionary Father Dubuy. A party of the fathers assisted by mission natives carried the half-ton cross up to the peak in sections. It is embedded in a concrete pit. Ceremonies dedicating the Cross of New Guinea lasted all day.

The Cape York Peninsula lies 90 miles across the Torres Straits from Papua. The Peninsula is the closest part of the Australian Mainland to occupied Japanese territory. Since February, 1942, there has been virtually no civilian population for several hundred miles south from the Cape. The normal population is not heavy. Cooktown, the first mapped town south of the Cape is a "ghost town." The tropical agriculture and grazing which is the main source of wealth of tropical Queensland does not extend so far north as the Cape. The country is rough and almost trackless. Up to the outbreak of war there was no road stretching north up the Cape to Somerset, the most northerly telegraph station on the mainland.

There is no generally spoken native language in New Guinea. Pidgin English, the lingua franca of the Pacific Islands, is a simplified form of English. It is said to have been given currency in the islands by German traders who were unwilling for the natives to learn the German language and so spread a corrupt form of English. A native will speak pidgin with a native who is not "one talk" with him.

IS THE OK VERDICT

On Gypsum Products By Celotex!

MILLIONS of yards of Anchor Gypsum Lath! Millions of pounds of Celotex Anchor Plasters! These testify to the enthusiastic OK verdict of wartime building officials in favor of Celotex Gypsum Products!

Quality is the answer—high quality possible only with the resources and experience of a responsible, long-established organization such as The Celotex Corporation.

When specifying lath and plaster, remember America's "Thumbs-Up" verdict on Gypsum Products by Celotex! Readily available now—without waiting!

U. S. FIGHTS INFLATION TO WIN WAR NOT VICE VERSA, SAYS AFL ECONOMIST

Washington, D. C.—Boris Shishkin, American Federation of Labor economist, exposes the fallacious reasoning of proponents of wage freezing in an article in the American Federationist.

"Those advocating a wage freeze," he writes, "fail to distinguish between wages as purchasing power and wages as costs. The usual argument is that an increase in wage rates leads to an increase in the price of the product, which in turn leads to further wage increases and thus starts off an inflationary spiral.

"As a matter of fact, wages are a relatively small fraction of the total cost in our industry. In manufacturing, wages average only 16 per cent of the value of the product and are only 36.8 per cent of the value added by manufacture to the value of the raw materials.

"A 10 per cent increase in wages should not, in the average situation, account for more than a 1.6 per cent increase in prices if the volume of production remains the same. When the volume of production is expanding, such a wage increase should not lead to any price increase at all."

Mr. Shishkin points to the price history of the past thirty years as "conclusive proof" that it is possible to achieve substantial increases in wage levels and at the same time achieve lower and lower prices on the product manufactured by the workers benefitting from these wage boosts. Productivity per worker per hour rose 43 per cent between 1929 and 1941 he emphasizes, with labor costs per unit of product falling 12 per cent in the same period.

The A. F. of L. economist says America's program of inflation control must be geared to the maximum war effort and not the war effort to inflation control.

"We are fighting inflation to win the war," he writes. "We are not fighting the war to stop inflation."

Mr. Shishkin, declaring some pay increases are essential to compensate wage-earners for "excessive loss in buying power," lists wartime developments affecting the worker which, in the aggregate, have increased the actual cost of living 20 to 30 per cent above the rise shown by the Bureau of Labor Statistics index. Compensatory wage increases, the writer asserts, are necessary and justifiable and not inflationary by any stretch of the imagination.

"We have undertaken a total mobilization of our industrial capacity and a total mobilization of our work force to achieve maximum production and maximum productive employment," Mr. Shishkin says in conclusion. "Such mobilization can be carried out and control of price inflation can be achieved under the comprehensive program of inflation control proposed by the American Federation of Labor.

"Victory must be won and inflation controlled through a total national effort, but not a totalitarian one. We are fighting the war first and inflation second. Price control at any price is subversive to the war effort. Its adoption the nation must not permit."

OUR STAKE TO THE SOUTH

The Americas are a natural unit, continuous in land surface from frozen North to frozen South, and bound together by a common devotion to freedom.

In this vast area are every variety of climate and diversity of terrain. The several hundred million inhabitants are of many races and vary widely in degree of civilization, yet they are one in mind and spirit. They all live of free choice under democratic government and subscribe to the same ethical code, with a decent respect for the rights of other peoples.

Upon the United States, strong in natural resources and industrial power, rests much of the responsibility for the common defense of this territory.

The economy of the Americas must be adjusted to war conditions and loss of overseas markets and sources of supply. To this end, the United States has nearly doubled its imports from Latin America, sending in return materials and manufactures formerly obtained abroad.

We are helping to revive and develop Latin American agriculture and industry. Our Department of Agriculture has produced disease-resistant rubber plants which may return to Brazil its great rubber industry of 40 years ago. We have granted priority ratings to many orders placed here by Latin America, making available machinery and equipment for Chilean copper mines and Brazilian steel mills.

Among our larger exports to Latin America are crude petroleum and petroleum products, chemicals, textiles, food and food products.

Through increased production, development of agriculture and industry, and diversion of trade, our hemisphere is becoming more self-sufficient. With few exceptions, which are being supplied by conservation of existing stocks, substitution, or development, a catalogue of inter-American trade lists all things needful in peace or war.

The United States produces one-third of the world's iron ore, 40 percent of the iron and steel, two-thirds of the oil, 40 percent of the copper, 29 percent of the zinc, 24 percent of the lead.

Canada is one of the largest producers of nickel, and is a large producer of copper and other minerals.

Argentina sends us wool, hides and skins, quebracho extract for tanning, flaxseed, canned beef, and cheese.

Bolivia sends directly now, to our new Texas smelter, the large production of tin ore that formerly went to England for smelting. Bolivia also supplies us antimony in growing quantities, replacing imports from China.

Brazil sends us most of our coffee. And cacao beans, castor beans, babassu nuts, cotton linters for explosives, manganese, quartz crystals, carnabú wax, hides and skins.

Chile sends us copper to add to our own vast production for the war effort. And also much sodium nitrate.

Colombia exports coffee and bananas to us.

Cuba sends us sugar, a good part of all we import. And chromium and manganese, essential as steel alloys, also come from Cuba.

Ecuador sends us kapok, formerly brought to us from the Far East.

Mexico exports to us large and growing quantities of crude petroleum, copper, cattle, sisal hemp, lead, antimony, and zinc.

Uruguay sends wool, in quantity second only to Argentina.

Latin-American exports to us are fast increasing in quantity. Argentina and Uruguay sent us 85 million dollars' worth of wool and mohair in all 1940, and 60 million dollars' worth in the first half of 1941. From Chile alone we are now getting copper approximating in quantity our copper imports from all sources in 1939; and Latin-American exports to us of manganese ore, chromite, tungsten, antimony, and zinc have sharply increased.

Latin America supplied in peacetime the bulk of United States imports of antimony ore, beryllium and vanadium for alloys, babassu nuts and castor beans for oil, coffee, flaxseed, henequen (used as an industrial fiber), quartz crystal, quebracho extract for tanning, sodium nitrate for explosives and fertilizer, and sugar. And the countries to the south sent us large quantities of bauxite ore from which aluminum is derived, cacao beans, hides and skins. Canada supplied most of our nickel.

Wartime increases in our Latin-American imports have been chiefly of strategic materials and their substitutes, including rubber, tin, Manila hemp, jute, copra, palm oil, kapok, opium, manganese, chromite, graphite, and tungsten. We obtained most of these materials formerly from the Far East, South Africa, and Turkey. Other strategic materials imported increasingly from Latin America are copper, wool, hides, and skins.

The Western Hemisphere has not yet attained self-sufficiency but, through loyal cooperation, is steadily increasing its ability to stand alone if need be.

TEXT OF NATIONAL LABOR DAY LAW

The following is the text of the Labor Day Law enacted by Congress and signed by President Cleveland in 1894:

Be it enacted, etc., That the first Monday in September of each year, being the day known and celebrated as labor's holiday, is hereby made a legal public holiday, to all intents and purposes, in the same manner as Christmas, the 1st day of January, the 22d of February, the 30th of May and the 4th day of July are now by law made public holidays.

AIR RAID INSTRUCTIONS FOR OUTDOOR MEETINGS ISSUED

Labor unions holding outdoor meetings, picnics, or other gatherings will be faced with different problems in the event of an air raid than they would have with an indoor meeting.

Instructions for the conduct of outdoor gatherings have recently been issued by the Office of Civilian Defense in Operations Letter No. 56. Specifically the instructions are:

- a. Keeping people interested by continuing the event which caused them initially to assemble.
- b. Start the people singing if necessary.
- c. Do not attempt to start to disperse the assemblage, or even make an effort to have a portion of such assemblage seek shelter; such an attempt would possibly create a panic.
- d. Use the public address system to keep the people interested, in place, and realizing that their best chance is to remain quiet and resolute.

e. If it is a night event, of course the lights should be turned out. This is an additional reason for not permitting the assemblage to disperse.

f. Train the ushers to act as wardens for the structure, especially to deal promptly and effectively with any persons who become hysterical.

g. Request physicians and nurses in the crowd to report to a central point where first aid facilities would be available.

These instructions are based on the assumption that if the enemy should approach he will be heading for a target more important to him than the accidental assemblage of a large number of people. Therefore, those persons are better off remaining where they are than attempting to reach a place of greater safety—which would necessitate their being sent from streets or roadways anyway.

Copies of the instructions may be obtained by writing to the Labor Section of the Office of Civilian Defense, Washington, D. C.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty God to remove from our midst our beloved Brother William A. Jones, No. 3195,

RESOLVED, That we, the members of Local 9, extend our deepest sympathy to the relatives of our deceased brother;

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our official journal.

E. J. Cale, Secretary
Local Union No. 9.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God in His wisdom to remove from our midst and membership our beloved Brother Walter DeYoung, No. 474, charter member of Local 414, who died July 19, 1942, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the widow and family of our deceased brother receive the heartfelt sympathy of Local 414 in their bereavement; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the charter be draped for thirty days; and a copy of these resolutions be published in our official journal.

John Quibell, Secretary
Local Union No. 414.

WHEREAS, Divine Providence has declared surcease from all earthly labor for our departed Brother Charles Frances Mohrbacher, No. 25430, who passed away August 21, 1942, at the age of forty-six years; and,

WHEREAS, Brother Mohrbacher during his time of membership in our organization was a loyal and faithful member of our International Union and will be greatly missed by our members and his many friends; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That our sincere condolence be extended to his survivors, and our local union honor his memory with fitting tribute; and be it further

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our official journal.

A. W. Dukes, Secretary
Local Union 345.

THE FOOD FOR OUR SOLDIERS IN OVERALLS

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, under the direction of I. M. Orndurn, Secretary-Treasurer, is sponsoring a series of articles by outstanding scientists on the subject of proper food and diet.

This is the eighth of a series of articles written by Dr. Mark Graubard, Industrial Workers Nutrition Specialist in the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, Federal Security Agency. Dr. Graubard is one of the Nation's outstanding biochemists and is a historian of science and student of food habits of primitive peoples and modern nations. He was professor at Columbia and Clark Universities; lecturer on science to labor unions since 1933; and is the author of several books on science.

Since primitive times milk has played a vital role in man's diet, though as human food it is neither so old nor so widespread as the grains or cereals. Contrary to general belief, man domesticated many of his more useful animals before he put them to their present uses. The cow was domesticated in Egypt but was not valued there for food or as a draft animal because both cow and bull were regarded as sacred and were worshipped. Eating beef was prohibited as it is in India today, though ox meat was later permitted. On the other hand, the plough or wheel came into use much after the cow had been domesticated. It is also common knowledge that wild sheep in nature do not yield wool. The truth is that man domesticated animals mainly for companionship. The first domesticated animal was the dog that attached himself to man many tens of thousands of years ago, living at first as a scavenger near human camps but gradually winning his way into man's campsite. Apparently that taught man the idea of friendship with animals and the possibility of cooperation and exploitation.

Once man overcame his fear, he sought to domesticate every animal he could lay his hands on. Ancient records indicate that man tried to domesticate the lion, tiger, hippopotamus, crocodile, bear, and all other animals he could capture. He selected those which submitted and responded, and rejected those which did not reciprocate his friendship. In the course of centuries he came to learn much about his animal friends, and his inventiveness, which may be slow but is always with him, suggested to him numerous ways and means in which they could be of practical help to him.

Man is a believing animal and he changes his beliefs slowly and with great resistance. It is easy to say that necessity is the mother of invention. But what is necessity but that which we think necessary? The airplane was not really necessary when it was invented. The majority of the people forty years ago had not given aviation a thought and dreaded the idea of flying even much later. We shall see in a future article that in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries Europe was frequently starving and yet felt no "necessity" to adopt the potato until after much propaganda and urging. Hence, belief is important and very often, as with our food habits, it is necessary to change our beliefs and fears before we change our practices. After the new practice is well established, we find that what we feared is not so terrible.

Man did not first taste milk, declare it good and promptly decide to domesticate the cow on the spot so as to have a constant supply. Far from it. To begin with, few animals in nature have enough milk to give away. Besides, we tend to overlook the fact that the very discovery of milk as food required much courage and ingenuity. For example, how many people today would drink a buffalo's, bear's, mare's or deer's milk even if hard-pressed by circumstances? The very idea of using an animal as a source of milk was one of primitive man's greatest and boldest discoveries.

We know that the cow was holy in ancient Egypt and that on religious occasions many cows were sacrificed to the gods of that highly civilized land. We also know that the Egyptian way of milking was laborious and required tying the cow's hind and front legs. Obviously, under such conditions not much milk could be obtained daily. Besides, Egyptian records prove that milk was used, at first perhaps exclusively, as a sacrificial liquid offered to the gods. It was also used there and elsewhere as a medicine. An Egyptian papyrus found in the tombs of a pyramid says that priests and medicine men gave it to the people "to restore their bodies to health." It is worth remembering that all new foods or condiments such as sugar, oranges, tea or coffee were used at the beginning as medicines.

In the course of time, milk became a food and many of our favorite milk products gained wide popularity. Thus, the Bible tells us that Abraham fed his visitors, in reality divine messengers, bread and milk. We also read of the boy David who carried ten cheeses to "the captain of the thousands" among whom his brothers served. It was while resting after the performance of that mission that he saw Goliath and engaged him in the battle which was to benefit his own people so much and bring him widespread fame.

No thoroughly occupied man was ever yet very miserable.—Landor.

Barbers' hair clippings are being included in Finland's salvage campaign to be used in various ways in clothing.

To provide explosives needed to hurl death at the Japs and the Nazis, pulp mills throughout the nation have been converted from their peacetime roles to produce cellulose, a basic ingredient of many high explosives. Ordinarily produced from short fibres of cotton, it is now being made from wood because of war demand.

WIT AND HUMOR

"Riggs is the slowest pay in town."

"Is he?"

"Yep. If he owed a man an apology he'd pay it on the installment plan."

—o—

"When were you born?" asked the sergeant, taking the particulars of the recruit.

"December, 1917," answered the recruit.

"Ah," mused the sergeant, "I well remember that winter. It was bitterly cold."

"Cold," echoed the recruit. "I'll say it was cold. I was brought by a penguin—the stork couldn't make it."

—o—

Young Mother—Mary, what is the most difficult thing for a young mother to learn?

Mary (the governess)—That other people have perfect children, too.

—o—

Boot: "Boy we've got a million things for chow today."

First Class: "Yeah?"

Boot: "You bet! Beans!"

—o—

Irate Church Woman: "Why don't you arrest that nudist colony that is disgracing this neighborhood?"

Sheriff (something of a wag): "I would, but it's awful hard to get anything on them."

—o—

Mother—You must not hit little girls; you must always treat girls gently.

Ten-Year-Old Son—I am sorry, mother, but our ideas of life do not coincide.

—o—

Operator—Number, please.

Drunk (in phone booth)—Number, h—; I want my peanuts.

—o—

"I have come to join my husband," said Mrs. Smith, arriving at the Golden Gates.

"Delighted to meet you, ma'am," replied St. Peter. "What was your husband's name?"

"Joseph Smith."

"I'm afraid that will not be sufficient for us to identify him. You see, we have quite a lot of Joseph Smiths up here. Are there any other means by which I can identify him?"

"Well, before he died he told me that if I ever kissed another man he would turn in his grave."

"Oh! I know the chap. Up here we call him 'Whirling Joe'!"

Wife—The doctor said at once that I needed a stimulant. Then he asked to see my tongue.

Husband (alarmed)—Good heavens! I do hope he didn't give you a stimulant for that, dear.

—o—

"Have you any alarm clocks?" inquired the customer. "What I want is one that will rouse father without waking the whole family."

"I don't know of any such alarm clock as that, madam," said the shopkeeper. "We keep just the ordinary kind that will wake the whole family without disturbing father."

—o—

A miserly millionaire was approached by a friend who did his best to persuade him to dress more in accordance with his station in life.

"I'm surprised," said the friend, "that you should allow yourself to become shabby."

"But I'm not shabby," said the miser.

"Oh, but you are," said his friend, "Remember your father. He was always neatly, even elaborately dressed. His clothes were always well tailored and of the best material."

"Why," shouted the other, triumphantly, "these clothes I am wearing were father's."

—o—

"Haven't you any trade or profession?"

"I was a very fine musician wunst, mum, but hurt-ed me eyesight lookin' fer de rests in de music."

—o—

A Welsh regimental choir was singing outside the officers' mess after dinner.

The colonel called the unmusical sergeant-major.

"Look here," he said, "go and tell the choir to sing 'Sweet and Low.'"

The sergeant-major went out and bawled to the leader: "If you blokes can't make less noise the colonel says you've got to clear off."

—o—

Nell—Have you had much experience with sailors?

Bell—Yes, gobs and gobs.

—o—

"Pa, what's the difference between a statesman and a politician?"

"A statesman, my son, wants to do something for his country; a politician wants his country to do something for him."

—o—

Smith—I wear the trousers in my home.

Friend—Yeah, but right after supper I notice you wear an apron over them.

The World's Richest Man Found It Didn't Pay

By Robert Ripley

Ashurbanipal of Assyria, the richest man who ever lived, was worth a trillion and a half dollars—75 times as much gold as is held in the United States Treasury. Yet it availed him nothing! Neither he nor his son had the sense to use this wealth for the good of their people or for their protection.

And so it was comparatively easy for Nabopolassar and the King of the Medes to invade Assyria and enslave it. And finally, when defeat stared the great King in the face—when it was too late—Ashurbanipal, in terror, has a tremendous platform built of polished wood, in the city of Nineveh, and on top of this he heaped all of his wealth—142,000 tons of gold in 2,500,000 bricks (or ingots), each brick 7 by 28 inches in size, and each brick valued at 50,000 dollars. This treasure formed a pyramid of shining gold nearly one hundred feet high, and in the intervening spaces he placed all of his jewels and personal belongings—his wives on golden beds—his children—even his pet dog.

And then a great quantity of oil was brought from Mosul and poured on top of this golden mass, and when the torch was applied, the King himself walked in and laid himself down among his wives—his family—his pet dog—and everything he valued in life. And so the great Ashurbanipal, the richest man in the world, was consumed in his own wealth—he immolated himself and became part of this great conglomerated melted mass of money—and so ended the Empire of the Assyrians. And it never rose again.

I was in Nineveh a few years ago. Only a few mounds marked the spot that was the glory of Ashurbanipal.

Why?

Because Ashurbanipal, who had practically all the money in the world, didn't do anything with it! And he and his country were lost.

Even his conquerors—the Medes and the Persians—made this same mistake—they came, saw, conquered, and confiscated this great golden molten mass of money that was once the king's and the wealth of the great Empire of Assyria—what did they do with it?

Nothing!

They melted it into money again—and remelted it—and in generations since it has been remelted a thousand times—until, Believe It or Not, it is a mathematical fact that every golden coin used in the world today contains in it some minute particle of Ashurbanipal himself, the King who had all the money in the world but didn't know what to do with it!

What are we going to do with our money today? Enemies threaten us the same as they threatened Ashurbanipal in 626 B. C. The United States of today, like the Assyria of Ashurbanipal, is the richest nation in the World. What will it avail us?

Nothing?

Surely nothing more than it did Ashurbanipal unless we do something with it. And there is only one thing to do—and that is to Buy Bonds and War Stamps and make our money directly available to our country—help our country—otherwise it will become a melted molten mass and we the people will be destroyed as Ashurbanipal was destroyed 2600 years ago.

“COMMANDMENTS” ISSUED BY DEFENSE COUNCIL

The Defense Council of Ventnor City, New Jersey, has issued “Thirteen Commandments” for the guidance of Civilians during the war. The “Commandments” are:

1. Thou shalt keep thy mouth shut.
2. Thou shalt stay out of Washington, both thou and thy conventions and thy car and thy family's family and all thy correspondence and thy personal problems.
3. Thou shalt not harass thy son because he hath not a commission.
4. Thou shalt not hoard.
5. Thou shalt not get ants in thy pants to put on a uniform only because thou art in vain and hast no courage to hoe thy row in the place where thou art most needed.
6. Thou shalt walk; even thus shalt thou aid to save gas and rubber.
7. Thou shalt not strike; neither shalt thou walk.
8. Thou shalt not in thy confidence measure the seas, for verily they who hath thought to hide behind the seas are full of prune juice.
9. Thou shalt not fret because of invaders.
10. Thou shalt not lose faith.
11. Thou shalt not complain about tire, sugar and other commodity rationing.
12. Thou shalt ever remember that thyself and thy neighbor, yea—verily, all of us must “tap some sap from a Jap”—then when his days are numbered, thee shall hear one long, loud “yap”—ouch!
13. Lastly, thou shalt buy plenty of Defense Bonds and Stamps and pay thy taxes until it hurts thy pocketbook—for then, and only then, “with these taxes shall we lick the Axis!”

"I was up at the union hall the other night. There was a sign on the wall that said: 'Free labor will win!'

"It struck home.

"Free labor will win!"

"Free labor—that's us, you and me. My union's a real League of Nations. You know what? We've sure got free labor in my union. We've come from all over the world. Name any race or nationality, any creed or color, and we're it—Americans all.

"And all of us are working with management, thinking up new ways of speeding war production. Not only that, all of us are signing up 100 percent for War Bonds. This is our war. We know it. Our brothers and sisters all over Europe know it, too. Every day they're showing Hitler that slave labor won't work, but that slave labor can and will revolt. Every War Bond we buy helps them in their fight for independence, helps America in its fight for freedom, helps maintain free labor unions.

Wage Stabilization Agreement Exempt From Regulations Relating To Overtime Compensation

BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION TRADES DEPARTMENT

To all National and International Unions and Local Building and Construction Trades Councils affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

Washington, D. C.

October 5, 1942.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

I am enclosing copy of the interpretation by Secretary of Labor, Frances Perkins, in which it will be noted that the work covered by the Wage Stabilization Agreement between the Building and Construction Trades Department and the Government Agencies engaged in construction work, is exempt from the provisions of the President's Executive Orders 9240 and 9248.

Fraternally yours,

(S.) JOHN P. COYNE, President.

INTERPRETATION BY SECRETARY OF LABOR, FRANCES PERKINS
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

Washington
Title 29—Labor

Part 3—Determinations Relating to Overtime, Sunday, and Holiday Pay

Determination under Executive Order 9248 as to the Building and Construction Trades Wage Stabilization Agreement

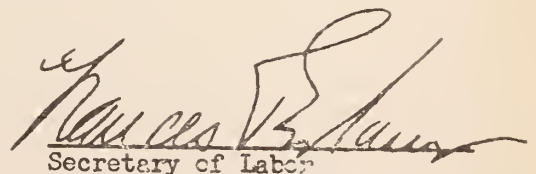

A Wage Stabilization Agreement for the Building and Construction Trades Industry, engaged on war construction work, which stabilizes among other things, overtime compensation practices in that industry has been in operation since July, 1941. This agreement was approved by the Government departments and agencies concerned with such building construction projects. The Board of Review of the War Production Board which administers that stabilization agreement, entitled "Memorandum of Agreement Between the Representatives of Government Agencies Engaged in Defense Construction and the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor", has informed me that the agreement is operating satisfactorily in that industry and has made application that the provisions of Executive Order 9240 shall not apply to any war construction work subject to the said stabilization agreement. The Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor which is a party to the stabilization agreement has made similar application.

Upon investigation it appears that this Wage Stabilization Agreement approved by a Government department or agency is operating satisfactorily to stabilize overtime practices in the industry.

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the power vested in me by Executive Order No. 9248, it is ordered that the provisions of Executive Order No. 9240 entitled "Regulations Relating to Overtime Wage Compensation" shall not apply to work on construction projects which is subject to the said stabilization agreement.

Dated:

September 30, 1942.

Secretary of Labor

The Wage Stabilization Agreement in effect between the Building and Construction Trades Department and Government contracting agencies is published on the next page.

WAGE STABILIZATION AGREEMENT

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

May 22, 1942

The Building Trades Unions of the American Federation of Labor with 1,500,000 members today voluntarily agreed to stabilize wages for the duration as an action to implement the President's appeal to prevent inflation. Their representatives, meeting with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, declared they took action because they recognized "the danger of drastic inflation due to rapid and uncontrolled increases in prices of commodities and to assist in effectuating the seven points outlined by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress."

The action was formalized in the following memorandum of agreement between the War and Navy Departments, Federal Works Administration, National Housing Administration, Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the Maritime Commission, the Government agencies in charge of war building and construction work and the unions:

"It is agreed between the contracting agencies of the United States government and the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor that, on all war construction work done for or financed by the United States (except non-Federal construction where State laws govern wage rates) in the continental United States, the wage rates paid under collective bargaining agreements as of July 1, 1942, shall remain in full force and effect for a period of at least one year after that date and, subject to annual renewal of this agreement for the duration of the war, except as hereafter provided, all renewals of collective bargaining agreements will contain the rates paid as of July 1, 1942.

"The rates paid under collective bargaining agreements on July 1, 1942, will be subject to revision in cases where those rates are inadequate because:

- (a) they were fixed at a time so long before July 1, 1942, as to be out of line with the general wages prevailing;
- (b) they were applicable in a locality where changing conditions in the building construction industry require a revision of wage rates; or
- (c) they do not sufficiently take into account any abnormal change in conditions.

"A wage Adjustment Board will be created to determine whether a wage adjustment should be made under this paragraph and to fix the amount of any adjustment which is made. In its determination it shall give consideration to existing collective bargaining agreements."

An administrative order, setting up the Wage Adjustment Board was immediately signed by Secretary Perkins with the approval of President Roosevelt.

It follows:

"To accomplish the purpose of the Act of March 3, 1931, as amended by the Act of August 30, 1935, and of Section 1 (a) of the Act of January 30, 1942 (Pub. No. 421, 77th Cong.), and to provide machinery for the wage stabilization agreement of the International and National Labor organizations in the building construction industry, it is hereby ordered:

"1. The Wage Adjustment Board for the Building Construction Industry, hereafter called the Board, is established in the United States Department of Labor. The Board shall consist of a chairman, to be appointed from the Department of Labor and of three representatives of the contracting agencies of the United States and of three representatives of the Labor organizations in the building construction industry to be named by me from time to time. A majority of members of the Board shall constitute a quorum.

"2. The Board shall have power to investigate and to recommend an adjustment of wage rates under the above agreement of the labor organizations in the building construction industry. It shall consider requests for wage adjustments presented by local labor organizations with the approval of the international or national labor organization, and, when submitted through and approved by the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. It shall have power to make the necessary rules of procedure. The Board's recommendation with respect to a request for wage adjustment shall be transmitted to the Secretary of Labor, to the Building Trades Department, and to any interested contracting agency of the United States.

"3. Upon request of the Board, the Solicitor of the Department of Labor shall conduct an investigation, hold any necessary hearings, and make a report to the Board as to the prevailing rates of wages for any or all classes of laborers and mechanics in the building construction industry in any locality, or as to the relation of such wage rates to those generally prevailing in the industry, trade or locality, or as to the relation of such wage rates to the cost of living.

"4. In determining the prevailing rates of wages under the Act of March 3, 1931, as amended by the Act of August 30, 1935, I shall, unless compelling evidence to the contrary be presented, accept as prevailing those wage rates which were prevailing on July 1, 1942, unless adjusted by recommendation of the Board under paragraph 2 hereof."

Unions belonging to the Building Trades Department are: International Association of Heat & Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers; International Brotherhood of Boiler Makers, Iron Ship Builders & Helpers of America; Bricklayers, Masons & Plasterers' International Union of America; International Association of Bridge—Structural & Ornamental Iron Workers; United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of America; International Union of Elevator Constructors; International Union of Operating Engineers; The Granite Cutters International Association of America; International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers', Union of America; International Union of Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers; International Association of Marble, Slate & Stone Polishers, Rubbers & Sawyers, Tile & Marble Helpers & Terrazzo Helpers; Sheet Metal Workers' International Association; Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators & Paperhangers of America; Operative Plasterers' & Cement Finishers' International Association of the United States and Canada; United Association of Plumbers & Steam Fitters of the United States and Canada; United Slate, Tile & Composition Roofers, Damp & Waterproof Workers' Association; Journeymen Stonecutters' Association of North America; and International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffers, Warehousemen & Helpers of America.

YOU CAN HELP IN METAL SCRAP CAMPAIGN

The International Office has received the following letter from William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor. President Green tells what you can do—NOW—to get tangible results in the SALVAGE CAMPAIGN FOR METAL SCRAP. We urge each of our members and local unions to get in the scrap on the home front, by doing all they can to speed our ultimate victory.

September 21, 1942.

To Members of All Central Labor Unions and State Federations of Labor
Dears Sirs and Brothers:

An acute shortage of scrap is holding up the war effort. It is throwing tens of thousands of workers out of jobs throughout the country.

You cannot make steel without scrap. Right now 75% of the 5,300,000 tons of steel produced monthly goes directly into war production. In order to keep the mills going full blast—24 hours a day—7 days a week—during the cold winter months ahead, we need 17,000,000 tons of scrap piled up in the mill yards. This means nearly 3,000,000,000 tons a month, without which it will be practically impossible to win the war.

Some progress has been made in the Salvage Campaign, but not enough. Millions of tons of scrap are needed to keep the mills running. This is the only way American workers can obtain enough steel to build the guns, ships, tanks and planes to win the war.

Organized labor must put its shoulder to the wheel. It must lend its great organizing ability to the job of getting everybody working together to get the scrap in quickly.

Here's what you can do—NOW!

1. Immediately appoint a representative committee in your area to work jointly on the Scrap Drive, and to impress upon their members the fact that there is much manufactured scrap, dormant and unused materials in the local plants where they are employed. Appeal to all Labor-Management War Production Committees to designate someone in each plant to get all scrap moving at once and to obtain management's cooperation in the drive.

2. Have your committee call on the local Defense Council or Salvage Manager immediately to find out what the Salvage Committee is doing on scrap collection. Get that committee to work out a plan for labor's participation in the drive. Get them to help by providing manpower and assisting in getting trucks for collection purposes. If no Salvage Committee exists, insist that one be appointed.

a. As you know, it is the stated policy of the National Office of Civilian Defense that labor have adequate representation on all State and local Defense Councils including Salvage Committees. If that policy has not been followed point out to your Council or Salvage Manager the advantages and need for labor participation.

b. Together with your Local Defense Council or Salvage Manager, obtain the cooperation of the Mayor and other public officials, as well as of industry, newspapers and any other agencies, to provide transportation for house to house scrap collection on regular designated scrap collection days.

3. Obtain cooperation of the press, radio, and any and all organizations to provide publicity and stir community interest in the scrap drive.

4. See that all practical facilities for collection is worked out and appoint someone to see that it is kept moving.

5. Don't leave it all to the scrap dealers. Scrap must be sorted and graded for delivery to the mills and the dealers are the only ones thus far equipped to do the job. They must pay a fixed price for various grades and secure fixed prices for it. But dealers are not equipped to collect scrap on a large enough scale to meet the needs of the war effort. They, too, are short of manpower and transportation. Only the efforts of the whole community, backed by the patriotic spirit of organized labor can deliver all the scrap needed for the war.

The money derived through the sale of scrap can be devoted to any public service, USO, defense council, charity, or anything that the people of the community want.

It's your opportunity. Your responsibility. President Roosevelt, all government agencies and all labor organizations are back of you in your scrap drive. Without steel, copper, brass and other scrap we cannot win. Here's a job that labor can do well when it rolls up its sleeves.

This is a matter of life and death. Labor must not fail.

Fraternally yours,

(S) WM. GREEN,

President

American Federation of Labor.

SEABEES TO TRAIN AT NEW STATION

A new training station for the Seabees, the Navy's construction battalions, will begin operation about Oct. 15 on the York River near Williamsburg, Va. The new station, to accommodate 26,000 officers and men, including station complement, will be the largest Naval Construction Training Station yet established. It is necessitated by the growing importance of the construction battalions.

The new station will be named Naval Construction Training Station Peary, after Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, (CEC), USN, first to reach the North Pole. Rear Admiral Peary was one of the most distinguished officers of the Navy's Civil Engineer Corps, of which the Seabees are an important part.

Training Station Peary will be located on approximately 4500 acres of hills, fields, woods, dense brush, swamp and beach. One of the reasons for selection of the site was its wild nature, which will give the Seabees an opportunity to train under conditions closely resembling those which they will meet in establishing advance bases far beyond the continental limits of the United States.

The eight week training course to be given the newly recruited Seabees will consist of three weeks of "boot camp" and five weeks of military and specialized training. Since Seabees must know how to fight as well as how to build and operate bases, the train-

Building Trades Meet In Convention

Toronto. Building trades leaders from all over the United States and the Dominion of Canada gathered here for the most momentous convention in the history of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

The watchword was strict compliance with the stabilization agreement entered into by the department with the building industry and the government.

This agreement, which bans strikes for the duration of the war and stabilizes wages as of the July 1 level, was hailed by the arriving delegates as the best possible solution to pressing war-time problems of industry.

Union leaders expressed growing concern over the danger of widespread unemployment of building craftsmen at a time when manpower shortages in other industries are looming.

They pointed out that war-time construction already is on the decline and that growing shortages of vital materials will further curtail existing construction projects.

The situation in New York City, where hundreds of thousands of building trades mechanics are out of work, was cited as an example of what may happen in other parts of the country as America's war construction program nears completion.

Government representatives attended the convention to consult with the labor leaders on this and other grave problems affecting the 1,500,000 building trades workers represented by the department.

They praised the department and its affiliated unions for their all-out support of the war effort, which brought about construction of army and navy cantonments in record time.

President John P. Coyne and Secretary-Treasurer Herbert Rivers were on hand to greet the arriving delegates and make preparations for opening the sessions.

Union Officials Aiding War Work Get Tires, Gas

Recognizing the role of union officials and representatives in maintaining uninterrupted production in the war effort, the Office of Price Administration has provided, in tire and gasoline rationing, rulings for transportation for these officials.

A ruling just issued by Administrator Leon Henderson as an amendment to the tire rationing regulations provides for the issuance of certificates of purchase for tires by "authorized representatives of government, management and labor" to allow union officials to perform at plant "services which are directly related to the prevention or settlement of labor grievances and disputes".

Similarly, the gasoline rationing code provides for the issuance of "preferred mileage," or "C" cards, to union officials as well as to representatives of government and management in war plants.

BEING PREPARED

(New Orleans Daily Int. of Commerce)

Unless planning towards post-war rehabilitation problems represents taking time off from the war effort the propriety of that advance planning is hardly in question. It is for this reason that all discussions which have consideration for the days when peace will once return to our land, are of a nature wherein ground-work is laid for programs designed to absorb the thousands of the armed services, war industrial establishments, etc., will be demobilized with the achievement of victory against the Axis forces.

There are those who forecast an era of progress for the building industry at large. And these are not over optimistic in their vision for with private work being entirely stopped it is only natural that the present is building up a tremendous need for building which will have to be satisfied in the days ahead. On this account it is of the utmost importance, therefore, that this industry be preserved as a working force during the moderately declining war-time building operations. Much of the responsibility for sustaining a reasonable degree of public and private construction enterprise rests, of course, with the federal government, but there is at least one step that can be taken concertedly by construction men and that is the affording of an increased measure of support to their associations and possibly some adjustments within and among such association to bring about even greater unity.

Construction groups individually and collectively will have a double-headed job to do as soon as victory seems near realization. They will be called upon for guidance in the framing of work programs and they will find themselves faced also with the necessity of resisting any number of crackpot proposals from various sources. It will be a job requiring the maximum of organization and unanimity on the part of this industry.

GASOLINE RATIONING KILLS BONANZA

Figures recently released by the American Petroleum Institute reveal that since 1890 to January 1, 1942, the American motorist has been paying in gasoline tax and vehicle registration fees a total of more than $16,000,000,000. This amount, the institute reported, far exceeds the total money now in circulation in the United States and, at $10,000 a mile, the motorists' taxes paid to the states would defray the cost of six roads to the moon, or an encircling road 69 times around the equator.

New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and California received most of this bonanza and this sudden drop in revenue from this source will undoubtedly prompt State Legislatures to create tax income from other sources.

UN-AMERICAN POLL TAX IS DOOMED

(Labor)

The extent to which public sentiment is mounting against the iniquitous poll tax is strikingly revealed by the fact that the conservative New York "Times" prints the following editorial:

"The poll tax in eight Southern states—Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia—does not seem large to those accustomed to paying income taxes. Actually it does keep large numbers of citizens from voting.

"Some of its opponents have made the mistake of arguing that its repeal would unseat some Southern Congressmen and Senators. This is a separate and partisan issue.

"The real issue is whether or not a state has the right to define its election laws in such a way as to obstruct the popular will in Federal elections. We do not believe it has the right.

"We believe that the Federal government is entitled, probably under the Constitution as it stands, certainly on moral grounds, to require that candidates for Federal offices, responsible to the whole people of the nation, be democratically elected."

The final decision may be postponed for a while—men like Byrd of Virginia, who are holding office because thousands of their fellow-citizens have been disfranchised, may filibuster—but the poll tax, as a qualification for voting, is doomed.

THE LIGHTS GO DOWN

(Los Angeles Citizen)

With a nightly dim-out leaving its eerie of semi-darkness over the Pacific coast, California is feeling more keenly than ever, the nearness of the war to these shores that once were so peaceful and seemingly impregnable—before ocean-spanning undersea raiders and long-distance bombers forever shattered those fragile dreams of security.

Tonight on the streets of hundreds of cities and towns in the coastal zone, the radiant glow of Neon tubes, the bright glitter of theater marquees and the flashing lights of outdoor signs and billboards, have all disappeared for the duration. The spectral half-light of darkened streets should bring home to even the most indifferent and heedless person the fact that in this global war of 1942, California is not only a great war production zone, but is a very potential zone as well, along whose shores and above whose skies a bold enemy will not hesitate to strike.

For these reasons, the dimming out of lights in homes, on cars traveling on roads paralleling or leading to the sea, the darkening of amusement and ball parks in the affected coastal areas, have become essential war-time safety precautions. Though the lights

OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION DEBUNKS SOME RUMORS

Have you heard the one about the girl who had her head blown off when she sat down for a permanent wave? Very sad. Very gory. Most unfortunate. Yep, she worked in a munitions factory. Explosive powder got in her hair. The minute the power was turned on in the beauty parlor—boom! Moral—as the pro-Nazi or outright Nazi sympathizer would put it; Women, stay out of munitions plants. Let 'em fall apart. Girl had her head blown off.

The incident described above has been related frequently—but it never happened. Girls are working in munitions plants and doing a terrific job—without hazard to themselves. The head-blown-off rumor gained wide currency in Canada and was expected by this nation's propaganda fighters to go south of the border into the U. S.

Canada's Rumor Clinic, which has a counterpart in the United States, probed the above widespread piece of gossip. Testimony secured at munitions factories proved that the purported explosion didn't and couldn't occur. Health guards in plants where girls make explosives require that the women's hair be covered completely by overall turbans or bandanas; that the girls wear special clothing, freshly laundered and supplied to them at the beginning of each shift; and that they bathe thoroughly immediately after working. No one could be found who had actually been a witness to the incident described or who personally knew the supposed victim.

The favorite line of Nazi propaganda is the one that has Britain keeping its own men on the British Isles and sending Anzacs, Canadians, and other representatives of the Empire into battle for England. This is spread in many forms. Exposed as false, it bounces back in a new shape. The only defense is to take it as it comes, showing up the lie in each case, and remembering that the basic Nazi propaganda aim is to divide the United Nations and thereby conquer the earth.

Here are the simple facts. So far, not counting statistics on Tobruk still to be compiled, British Empire men killed wounded, or missing total 183,530. Of these, fully 77% lived in the British Isles. The Nazis do not hesitate to spread the lie on Britain, and it is unfortunately true that a small number of Americans join in the Nazi propaganda drive and repeat the lie.

The low level this propaganda hits is apparent on the fact that nearly 100,000 civilians, including women, children, and old men have been killed and wounded in their homes in England.

Some of the rumors that gain currency are of the single-shot sniping variety. An accumulating stock of these potshots can serve to chip away at civilian morale and convince the populace that there's actual disintegration in the armed forces. It's important, therefore, to answer the lesser together with the greater rumors.

One such piece of sniping says: "There has been such a shortage of uniforms that some draftees have had to be rejected." Rumor probers asked Col. Winfield O. Shrum, commanding officer of the Recruit Reception Center at Fort Devens, to comment on that. Here's his statement: "This report is absolutely false. There has been no shortage of army uniforms and draftees would never be rejected on these grounds. Occasionally, the army may have difficulty in fitting a soldier who wears exceptionally odd sizes. But everyone is being equipped with uniforms."

Then there's the type of propaganda that tries to shatter civilian nerves by telling American their water's drugged, their food's poisoned, and the Nazis and Japs are too firmly entrenched in the U. S. to be uprooted. It's essential that lips be clamped tightly on war secrets and that constant look-out be kept for saboteurs. On the other hand, jittery Americans can help only the Axis.

Here's a rumor designed to create just such panic-stricken Americans: "The Japanese, largest manufacturers of arsenic in the world, plan to poison all U. S. water sources." Here are the facts: No evidence of such a plot exists. Japan is actually one of the smallest producers of arsenic, and for military purposes, is keeping every gram it has.

The possibility of poisoning even one small reservoir in the U. S. is fantastic. A million-gallon reservoir couldn't be poisoned by all the obtainable arsenic there is. In addition, unless the arsenic were carefully distributed from a motorboat or tug, gallon by gallon, in every part of the reservoir or stream, it would have no effect at all.

Because the manufacture of wire coat hangers has been stopped to conserve steel, Price Administrator Leon Henderson lately announced that dry cleaners and laundries may require a reasonable deposit—of from 1 to 5c—to insure the return of such hangers used in delivering finished garments. However, when a customer furnishes his own hanger, a deposit may not be required upon return of the finished garment, although the establishment is not obliged to return the identical hanger.

Local Union 102
lathers score highest.

Members of our Local 102 scored high in War Bond purchases, as can be seen on this billboard posted on the job site where they recently worked. The secretary reports that the following week after this picture was taken, lathers reached the top goal of 30.2 per cent., which was an all-time high for trades on the job.

"This is a remarkable record," Business Agent Vohden points out, "when you consider that the lather, when he works, has many places to put his money, paying bills for the time when he will not be working."

DO YOU SERVE THE AXIS?

By Ruth Taylor

Do you complain at every restriction of war? Do you resent its interference with your plans for living? Do you take time off to discuss with other disgruntled people how war is changing your entire mode of life? Do you object to sacrificing non-essentials to keep your freedom. If you do, you are serving the Axis.

Do you question every act of those in authority? Do you from the security of your own front porch or shop corner, waste valuable time saying what should have been done by men thousands of miles away who are fighting twenty-four hours a day and giving their lives to keep the war from your doorstep? Do you doubt the loyalty of that Ally who has fought the Axis for three long years until there is not a family even in the most crowded factory town that has not felt the dread hand of loss? Do you question the loyalty, intelligence, ability of your own sons, and your neighbors sons? If you do, you are serving the Axis.

Do you serve your own ends first? Do you give half-hearted service? Are you sticking to your own personal task, or doing the war job you could do? Are you relying on others to protect you and dodging your civilian defense job because it is hard or tedious work? Are you skimping on full time, and not giving over time? If you are, you are serving the Axis.

Do you stand on your rights? Do you demand preferential treatment for yourself, or your community or your group? Do you refuse to do your part in this war until you are paid to do it? Are you a "mercenary" soldier, not a "citizen-soldier"? Do you think only of yourself and your narrow circle of life instead of the nation as a whole? Do you demand the privileges of democracy and ignore its responsibilities? If you do, you are serving the Axis.

Now is not the time for a divided allegiance! This is OUR war—the war of all of us. This is the UNITED States of America. We are Americans all. Don't serve the Axis!

THE WORLD AT WAR

By Lloyd M. Crosgrove

The Prophecy of Tennyson

Men, my brothers, men the workers, ever reaping something new:

That which they have done but earnest of the things that they shall do;

For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see,

Saw the Vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be;

Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails,

Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;

Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rain'd a ghastly dew

From the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue;

Far along the world-wide whisper of the south-wind rushing warm,

With the standards of the peoples plunging through the thunder-storm;

Till the war-drum throbb'd no longer, and the battle-flags were furl'd

In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world.

There the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe,

And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapt in universal law.

These words were written in 1842, just a hundred years ago, by the English poet, Alfred Tennyson. He expressly disclaimed any "gift of prophecy" by saying that he was peering into the future with a "human eye." The fact that, a century later, the darker portion of his prophecy is being so terribly verified gives ground for hoping that, in time, the brighter portion will be experienced also. Alfred Tennyson was, indeed, a man of thoughtful insight into human affairs past, present and future and all that he said is worth pondering.

(1) Tennyson recognized that, fundamentally, all men are brothers. A race of "super-men" was beyond his comprehension. The fallacy of "Mein Kampf" would have been very clear to him, even as it is to every lover of democracy.

(2) Tennyson realized that the willful idler is a poisonous parasite. Human achievement is the result of work.

(3) Tennyson, to a peculiar degree for one living in his age, saw that, for better or for worse, change is always taking place. He was sure that, in the long run, the changes that occur make for improvement.

(4) Tennyson was optimistic concerning the future achievements of mankind and he based his optimism upon the enormous achievements of mankind in the past. The human race, in his opinion, is a race of boundless capabilities living in a universe that is infinite in extent and variety. During the long ages of the past, the race has made many discoveries and inventions, beginning with such simple but fundamental things as the wheel, the lever, and the artificial creation of fire. As time has passed, the inventions and discoveries have not grown fewer but, on the contrary, have poured forth in ever-increasing number. Between the year 1763, when James Watt invented the steam-engine, and 1842, when Tennyson wrote his prophecy, they had been far more numerous than during any period of like extent before. Tennyson reasoned that past achievements of the race were "but earnest" or pledge of future achievements. He was right so far as the next hundred years were concerned and there is no reason to think that he was not eternally right.

(5) Tennyson showed insight when he predicted commercial flying. He had no idea, of course, as to how it would be done but in his day aerial experiments were being made and much interest was being shown in the subject. He rightly conjectured that, having started along this path, mankind would in time make wonderful progress. To Jean de Rozier, a Frenchman, goes the distinction of being the first man to ascend in a balloon, his initial flight having been made in 1783. To him also goes the somber distinction of being the first man to meet death in the air, for in 1785, when at a considerable altitude, his balloon burst into flames. Danger does not stop the tide of progress, however. Experiments continued; and, as Tennyson foresaw, commercial flying at last became a reality.

(6) Like every sane person, Tennyson hated war. Like every idealist, Tennyson believed that wars could be eliminated from human society. Like every sane idealist, Tennyson realized that wars could not be made to disappear at mere command. He guessed that the problem of aerial navigation would be solved before the problem of obtaining universal peace. Every newspaper and news broadcast today bears sad and eloquent testimony to the correctness of his belief.

(7) Tennyson realized that, even in his day, the world was growing rapidly smaller. The steamship "Savannah" had crossed the Atlantic in 1818. Telegraphic experimentation had been going forward since the middle of the previous century and in 1838 Morse had transmitted a message for forty miles, thereby proving that, in principle, the problem had

WAR PROBLEMS OF VITAL INTEREST TO LABOR, SAYS AFL COUNCIL

Toronto, Can.—The American labor movement must concentrate all its energies and resources upon war needs and realize that, with the very life of the nation itself in dire peril, labor's normal peacetime objectives must be laid aside, the Executive Council told the sixty-second annual convention of the American Federation of Labor as the first wartime AFL conclave since the St. Paul convention of 1918 got under way at the Royal York Hotel here.

"Only fundamentals should have consideration and action at the present time," the council's report declared. "Undertakings and objectives important for human welfare cannot be advanced when our national institutions themselves are in peril. We therefore are holding many such commitments in reserve until the war is won."

Pointing out that the issues in the war are "the very heart of democratic institutions and the democratic way of life," the Executive Council said the American Federation of Labor stands squarely behind the Federal Government in its prosecution of the fight against the Axis.

"The months immediately ahead will bring sacrifices and burdens," the report said, "but we must be prepared to go through with determination and conviction. Freedom is at stake. The issue is worth what we have in material substances as well as personal sacrifice. We call upon all wage-earners to prepare to stay in the battle till victory is won."

President Roosevelt was urged to establish an over-all Board of Economic and Military Strategy. Such an agency should be charged with the responsibility of "planning for resources to be mobilized for war, for the economic needs of the civilian population, for the conservation of human welfare and for reconversion to peace," the Executive Council proposed.

Over-all planning would be valuable as a guide to the operating war agencies and would help to bring about coordination of the activities of these agencies, the council asserted.

In its report, which covered almost 250 printed pages the council dealt with a multitude of subjects of vital importance to the millions of American wage-earners—those in war industry, those still in civilian industry and those who have left their regular employment and gone into the armed services. Subjects covered in the voluminous report included production problems, manpower distribution, wage stabilization, social security, housing, legislation, relations with the labor movements of Latin America and Europe, post-war problems and scores of other topics.

The Executive Council report contained criticism of the War Production Board and the Office of Price Administration. The failure of these agencies to give organized labor adequate representation in the formulation of policy drew the council's fire.

As regards the WPB, the council voiced some dissatisfaction at the fact that recently labor has been accorded a degree of representation and the hope was expressed that "this constructive development may be carried further."

"Opportunity for joint consideration of programs has not yet gone far enough," the council declared.

The OPA was castigated for its cavalier treatment of organized labor.

"From its inception until June, 1942, the Office of Price Administration dealt with vital questions of economic policy without any labor consultation, labor participation or labor representation," the Executive Council related.

"As a result of a concerted drive for labor representation made by the American Federation of Labor in May a Labor Policy Committee was formed within the OPA and began its work on June 22. The committee consisted of three representatives each of the American Federation of Labor, railroad unions and the CIO.

"Shortly before the Labor Policy Committee was formed a Labor Office was established on the staff of OPA. Characteristic of the OPA attitude was the fact that the posts of the director, assistant director and principal staff members of the Labor Office were filled by the administrator without consultation with organized labor."

One of the most significant sections of the Executive Council's report was that headed "Peace Objectives." In this portion of the report the Council warned that defeat of the Axis will not end the responsibility of the United States which, as "the most powerful country in the world," will have to see to it that order must be restored.

"And it must be the kind of order for which we are now fighting," the Council emphasized.

been solved. To a delicate sensibility like that of Tennyson, it was apparent from the first that a more compact world would, of necessity, have to have a unified control that would, at the same time, avoid the evils of regimentation. He therefore predicted a "Parliament of man" (not a "universal Fuehrer") and a "Federation of the world" (not a "master race"). His ideal of world government rested squarely upon the principle of democracy ("the common sense of most"). In the last analysis, his prediction was that world-wide, organized, non-regimented democracy would be the only way to prevent permanently such frightful convulsions as the one through which we are now passing. The prophecy of Tennyson in no way conflicts with the ideals of the Atlantic Charter.

MY LITTLE LAD*By Raymond Lawrence(From The Sign, Contributed by Brother John J. Buckley)*

One happy morn—it seems but yesterday—
 I watched the children, playing on the lawn;
 Beheld their soldiering and deeds of arms;
 Unbloody battles, fought since early dawn.

And suddenly my boy, my little lad,
 Fell, wounded, at my feet—in great pretense;
 Lay stark and still, as if grim death had come
 And summoned him and borne his spirit hence.

I cried aloud, I could not bear the sight.
 In some strange way I could not comprehend;
 It pierced the very marrow of my soul,
 Like some dark dream of evils that impend.

Surprised, my little lad awoke and smiled.
 His dark eyes gazed in mine, dispelling fear.
 " 'Tis only play, you know," he cried in glee;
 "They have not really killed me, Mother dear!"

And so, tonight, the tears more gently fall;
 The day, though dark, is not entirely sad.
 I have those words to aid me in my grief;
 That happy vision of my little lad.

And from the field carnage where he lies
 His smile brings faith and hope, dispelling fear.
 He cries to me: " 'Tis only play, you know.
 They have not really killed me, Mother dear!"

IN APPRECIATION

On behalf of myself and four brothers, I want to thank the members of Local 74, Chicago, Local 72, Boston and Local 359, Providence, Rhode Island, for their kind expressions of sympathy and floral offerings.

We are sincerely grateful for their many kind expressions and helpful courtesies, which have made our sorrow from the loss of our dear mother more possible to bear.

Harry F. Haun, member of Local 72
 William M. Haun, recording sec'y. Local 74

THE OLD FRIEND

There is no friend like the old friend who has shared our morning days,

No greeting like his welcome, no homage like his praise;

Fame is the scentless sunflower, with gaudy crown of gold;

But friendship is the breathing rose, with sweets in every fold.

—By Oliver Wendell Holmes.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty God in His wisdom to remove from our midst and membership our beloved Brother Rodger William Quinn, No. 13588, who has been a loyal member of our craft for many years, and

WHEREAS, Brother Quinn has been a member of Local 109 for the past twenty years and served on the Executive Board as Chairman the greater part of that time, Local 109 has lost a true and loyal member, as has the craft at large, Brother Quinn formerly also having served Local 42 as business representative, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the membership of Local 109, express the deepest sympathy to the family of our departed brother; and be it further RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our journal.

H. S. Hyberger, Secretary,
 Local Union No. 109.

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty God to remove from our midst our Brother Henry S. Gretton, No. 25070, who passed away on September 4, 1942, be it

RESOLVED, That Local 278 extend its deepest sympathy to the relatives of the deceased; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the charter of Local 278 be draped for thirty days; and a copy of these resolutions be published in our official journal.

L. S. Blanchard, Secretary
 Local Union No. 278.

ing will cover the manual of arms, bayonet practice, and work on the rifle range. Marine Corps officers will instruct Seabees in field maneuvers, deploying and camouflage, so that they will be well versed in handling themselves in hostile territory.

While the Seabees will practice construction at Peary, they are not building the station itself. This work is being done under contract with private construction companies.

THE FOOD FOR OUR SOLDIERS IN OVERALLS

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, under the direction of I. M. Ornburn, Secretary-Treasurer, is sponsoring a series of articles by outstanding scientists on the subject of proper food and diet.

This is one in a series of articles written by Dr. Mark Graubard, Industrial Workers Nutrition Specialist in the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, Federal Security Agency. Dr. Graubard is one of the Nation's outstanding biochemists and is a historian of science and student of food habits of primitive peoples and modern nations. He was professor at Columbia and Clark Universities; lecturer on science to labor unions since 1933; and is the author of several books on science.

Meat is also a good source of the vitamin B group and of several minerals. It was believed in the past that meat was the proper food for hard working men because it yielded strength. This is as much of a superstition as the relatively recent idea that meat is hard on the kidneys or that it makes one cruel. Science proves neither the exaggerated claims nor the disparaging ones.

The truth of the matter is that history provides us with tribes which, like the Eskimos, prosper on an almost exclusive meat diet, and with other human groups that prosper as well on a non-meat diet. The masses of Japan and China seldom, if ever, taste meat. Those Japanese who are relatively more prosperous eat fish which they consume raw, while the poor peasants and workers do not even eat that. They must get proteins, however, in their diet and obtain them chiefly from soy beans and legumes which they consume in large quantities. Other non-meat eating nations get their protein from nuts, seeds and legumes, and still others, as we have seen, from milk and its products.

Eskimos eat practically no vegetables but they use their meat food far more intelligently than we do, otherwise they undoubtedly would not have survived. Unlike us they do not destroy most of their vitamins by cooking. In fact, they lean in the opposite direction and eat most of their meat raw. Moreover, they eat the entrails and the inner organs such as the heart, liver, spleen, sweetbreads, kidneys, and brain which they prefer raw, while the tissues are still warm. The entrails are baked entire as found, usually full of sea plants and fishes which the animal happens to feed on. This dish is known as chitterlings and is eaten by many people in our South and considered a great delicacy.

It is this habit of eating the glands and inner organs that is responsible for the Eskimos' survival. The glands are full of all the vitamins we require. They have vitamin A, the B vitamins, the citrus fruit vitamin, and the sunshine vitamin. They are rich in minerals as well. Our own custom obliges us to hold in contempt these organs except the liver which has recently gained in acceptance and price because medicine proved its dietary value in health and in the cure of anemia. But the other glands and organs are equally valuable and yet we discard them. In fact, viewed impartially we appear in the eyes of science just about as strange and foolish in this respect as do those tribes which prohibit eggs and chicken but go into ecstasy over rats and mice. We eat muscle meat almost exclusively; this is good but not as rich in vitamins and minerals as the glands and organs. When laughing at other people's taboos and prejudices, we should be sportsmanlike and think of our own habits, too, occasionally.

The meat of fishes is somewhat like the meat of land animals and consists chiefly of proteins and some fat. Like meat, fish too, has been the subject of many taboos. The Bible, for example, prohibits all fishes that do not have scales and fins. Often fish is tabooed by tribes that live on the shores of lakes and seas, much to their detriment, just as the Hindu prohibition of beef is no help to the people of India. Often a food favored by our ancestors is abandoned by us. Thus, the Bible permits the eating of grasshoppers, locusts, bald locusts and beetles. These insects were and are, in fact, eaten by millions of human beings in Africa, Asia and America, but not considered a worthy food in our own eyes.

Recently, an American aviator was lost in the jungles of Australia to be rescued later by his comrades. He told how after starving for days he ate a grasshopper, which he said tasted like crabmeat. This seemed so strange to us that our press gave it front page notice. The truth is that familiarity with what man eats all over the globe helps us overcome many prejudices. Our boys lost in jungles and foreign regions may be aided in finding food which they never knew could maintain strength. Such familiarity can also help us change our own habits and establish new ones in harmony with science. In these days it is apparently difficult to be a successful Robinson Crusoe without some knowledge of man and nature. Or rather should one say that knowledge helps us do a better job of any task we are confronted with.

We eat bread and many of us believe that bread naturally tastes good to everybody. So it does—to us. But so different can human beings be that not all people eat bread. In reality bread is eaten only by less than forty per cent of the entire human race. About fifty per cent eat rice as their staple food with snacks of other things. Now, people accustomed to bread cannot feel well psychologically on a diet of rice. And our boys who are captives in Japanese prison camps do not have an easy time living on rice. Similarly Orientals deprived of rice and given bread instead, will also feel completely dissatisfied.—Dr. Mark Graubard.

WIT AND HUMOR

The wedding ceremony was at an end. Mamma sobbed convulsively, and the bride dabbed at her pretty eyes with a filmy handkerchief. One of the bridesmaids was also affected to tears.

"Why do you weep?" asked a man. It's not your wedding."

The girl looked at him scornfully. "That the reason!" she snapped.

Sergeant (to raw recruit)—"What's the difference between a time and a percussion shell?"

Raw Recruit—"That's what I say. Who cares?"

Patient: "Doctor, I'm bothered with a peculiar pain. When I bend forward, stretch out my arms and make a semi-circular movement with them, I feel a sharp stab in my left shoulder."

Doctor (amazed): "But my dear man, why make such motions?"

Patient: "Well, Doctor, if you have any other way of getting into an overcoat, I'd like to know it."

"What did the calf say to the silo?"

"I don't know."

"Is my fodder in there?"

Teacher—Sammy, name the four seasons.

Sammy—Salt, mustard, vinegar and pepper."

Sunday School Teacher—"What are heathens?"

Bright Boy—"Heathens are people who don't quarrel over religion."

An old farmer wrote a mail order house: "Please send me one of them gasoline engines which you advertise on Page 785, and if it is any good I'll send you a check for it."

The following reply was promptly received: "Send us the check, and if it is any good we will send you the engine."

"I pick out a good, honest butcher, and then stand by him," a Washington matron explained to a friend who had inquired how she always secured such delicious roasts.

"You mean you trade with him exclusively?" the friend asked.

"No," was the reply. "I stand by him while he is cutting my meat."

Eskimo Papoose—Baw-w-w, I wanna drink.

Eskimo Mother—Shut up, it's only six months 'till morning.

Colonel, to his men: "I want you to look upon each other as brothers in this regiment, and to regard me as the father of the regiment. Do you understand?"

Recruit: "Yes, dad."

Politician (boarding train)—Porter, I'm in lower 3. Is my berth ready?

Porter—No, sir. I thought you politicians made up your own bunk.

A teacher was giving a lesson on charity. "Willie," he said, "if I saw a boy beating a donkey, and stopped him, what virtue would I be showing?"

Willie—"Brotherly love."

"What's the matter—afraid of having your umbrella stolen?"

"No. Recognized."

A woman who had just completed a First Aid course saw a man lying prone in the street and was shocked that passers-by callously paid no attention to him. So she rushed up and began giving him artificial respiration. The man raised his head and said, "Lady, I don't know what you're trying to do, but I'm trying to get a wire down this manhole."

"I can turn a cigar box into a cigar lighter."

"How?"

"Why, I just take a cigar out of the box and that makes it a cigar lighter!"

Hotel Clerk: "Inside or outside room, sir?"

Guest: "Inside, dope, inside. It looks like rain."

Wife (pointing out highly-priced hat in shop window)—John, dear, isn't that a duck of a hat?

Husband—Yes, but I prefer a duck with a smaller bill.

The sailor was recounting his experiences to a dear old lady.

Old Lady—"What rank did you hold?"

Sailor—"Ship's optician, lady."

Old Lady—"I didn't know there was such a rank. What did you do?"

Sailor—"I scraped the eyes out of potatoes."

"What is the difference between a jeweler and a jailer?"

"I don't know. What is it?"

"One sells watches and the other watches cells."

POSTER FOR BOND CAMPAIGN

BUY WAR BONDS

DISTRIBUTED NATIONALLY.—More than 640,000 copies of this striking new War Bond poster, showing troops going forward in battle with bombers and a vision of Uncle Sam carrying the Star Spangled Banner overhead, are being distributed throughout the Nation for display in theaters, busses, schools, and other places of public notice. The poster was drawn by N. C. Wyeth, famous illustrator and muralist.

How Long Could Your Family Exist Without Your Income?

You, the breadwinner of your family, have assumed the responsibility of providing a home, food, clothing, and an education for your family. While you are alive, your income guarantees them these necessities. But, take yourself out of the picture and how long will your family carry on without your income?

A life insurance policy continues your income to your family after you are gone. It guarantees them the necessities with which you provided them while you were alive. It preserves the family circle and starts the children off on their own careers.

All this your life insurance policy will do for you provided you keep it in force.

Thanksgiving Day

We give Thee thanks, O Lord!
Not for the armed legions, marching in their might,
Not for the glory of the well-earned fight
Where brave men slay their brothers also brave;
But for the millions of Thy sons who work—
And do Thy task with joy,—and never shirk,
And deem the idle man a burdened slave:
For these, O Lord, our thanks!

We give Thee thanks, O Lord!
Not for the turrets of our men-of-war—
The monstrous guns, and deadly steel they pour
To crush our foes and make them bow the knee;
But for the homely sailors of Thy deep,
The tireless fisher-folk who banish sleep
And lure a living from the miser sea:
For these, O Lord, our thanks!

We give Thee thanks, O Lord!
Not for the mighty men who pile up gold,
Not for the phantom millions, bought and sold,
And all the arrogance of pomp and greed;
But for pioneers who plow the field,
Make deserts blossom, and the mountain yield
Its hidden treasures for man's daily need:
For these, O Lord, our thanks!

We give Thee thanks, O Lord!
Not for the palaces that wealth has grown,
Where ease is worshipped—duty dimly known,
And pleasure leads her dance the flowery way;
But for the quiet homes where love is queen
And life is more than baubles, touched and seen,
And old folks bless us, and dear children play:
Not for the palaces that wealth has grown,

REPORTS OF DELEGATES TO THE THIRTY-SIXTH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE BUILDING AND CONSTRUCTION TRADES DEPARTMENT OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR, HELD AT TORONTO, ONTARIO, CANADA, SEPTEMBER-OCTOBER 1942.

The 36th annual convention of the Building and Construction Trades Department convened at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, Canada, on Wednesday, September 30, with full representation from all affiliated International Unions. Due to the war, no attempt was made to make any drastic changes or to enter into questions of a controversial nature that might have an unfavorable or embarrassing effect on the Department or its affiliated organizations.

The 36th convention undoubtedly will be recorded as the convention held in the most critical time in our nation's history, because it was held in a time of war when not only the safety of the United States was threatened, but that of the entire world. Speakers from the Army and Navy and other governmental bodies, many of whose talks are included in this report, stressed that fact. They all stated that the building trades workers were one of the most important groups participating in the war effort, for without them, to build the mills and factories, shipyards and other plants, etc., wherein the means for combatting the enemy are produced, the war could not be successfully prosecuted.

Considerable criticism was directed by Government officials against the infinitesimally small proportion of building trades workers who went on strike during those trying times, due to the fact that in most instances small groups of our trade striking on a job caused a tie-up of other trades having no dispute, thus delaying completion of some badly needed plant or mill, which was expected to produce things essential to prosecution of the war effort.

In the main, however, all of the speakers commended the Building Trades officials and their constituents for the patriotic and unselfish manner in which they had responded to their country's call, furnishing building mechanics in isolated spots all over the nation and completing most Government projects ahead of time.

After the invocation by Rabbi Maurice N. Eisenrath of Holy Blossom Temple, Vice President Coyne introduced Lieut.-Colonel G. D. Barker, (Chief, Labor Relations Branch, Construction Division, Office Chief of Engineers), who addressed the convention as follows:

Mr. President, delegates and guests, it is a genuine privilege and pleasure for me to be able to come and say a few words to you in your convention. It is certainly a remarkable opportunity to be able also to speak to our fellow Canadians in their country and this wonderful city of Toronto.

I bring to you the sincere greetings of Lieutenant-General Brehon B. Somervell, the Commanding General of the Services of Supply, also the greetings and best wishes for a successful convention from Major-General Eugene Reybold, the Chief of Engineers, and from my immediate superior, the Chief of the Construction Division, Corps of Engineers, Major-General Thomas Robins.

As Chief of the Labor Relations Branch I have had the pleasure of association with a great many of your General Officers and other officials in your organization, and the co-operation that they have extended to the Corps of Engineers in the great construction task we are undertaking reserves public recognition and acknowledgment. Needless to say, my personal relationships have been splendid. I might add that when I was stationed on the West Coast prior to coming to Washington, those with whom I was associated in labor in all cases extended to me the heartiest support in our efforts to maintain harmony and labor efficiency in our projects.

Since your last convention in Seattle in September, 1941, which I had the pleasure of attending in an unofficial capacity, we have experienced the temporary disaster of Pearl Harbor, Wake Island, Guam and the Philippines. The shock of this has had its effect on our program. The manner in which labor took the bit in its teeth and pitched in to work at long hours to supplement our own defenses throughout the United States needs no amplification on my part. The effort has been tremendous and the results monumental.

The activities of labor on the island bases outside the continental United States have been no less outstanding, and their efforts will always stand out in future history as an indication of what Americans can accomplish under adverse conditions.

Let us consider for a moment what has been accomplished in the construction program under the Corps of Engineers during the period from August, 1941, to August, 1942.

During that time war construction was placed in the total amount of $3,774,162,000. In August, 1941, 437,490 mechanics and laborers were employed. In August of this year 900,891 laborers and mechanics were working on our projects—nearly double the number of workmen. During that same period there were 151,353,030 man days worked. This vast construction program transcends in scope and accomplishment all previous efforts in human history.

Now, under what labor conditions has this great program functioned? Has the attitude of labor been uncooperative or obstructive in this vital war effort? Have there been many strikes, work stoppages and slow downs? On the contrary, the whole program has functioned with a smoothness and efficiency that will reflect everlastingly to the credit of American labor. Through the veins of our working men, free working men, flows the stream of a patriotism that will drive them on in their part toward final victory as surely as the same blood spilled on our battlefronts. To believe otherwise is sheer stupidity and indicates a total lack of understanding of our American manhood.

Oh, you are not perfect. Splendid as your record has been there have been blemishes. It is true that during the year from August 1, 1941 to August 1, 1942 there were 99 work stoppages, stoppages of all kinds, involving a total loss of 101,076 man days of labor. Now this figure, taken by itself and apart, might seem alarming. But it is further true that in the over-all pictures this involved a percentage loss of 67/1000 of one per cent, or less than 1/10 of one per cent. Envious as is this record, we should strive to improve it.

The most aggravating kind of work stoppage is the jurisdictional dispute. There is absolutely no excuse for stopping work on account of a jurisdictional dispute, and it is up to you folks to eliminate them. I know you will.

A great deal of this superior accomplishment is undoubtedly due to the Building Trades Stabilization Agreement that went into effect on August 1, 1941, standardizing conditions throughout the country and industry. This agreement is concrete evidence of the part labor is taking in the war effort. It is an expression of proof that when our Government requests the cooperation of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor it will not be found unresponsive. Your organization is to be congratulated on its recent action in concluding a wage stabilization agreement with the governmental agencies prosecuting war construction work. This agreement, which went into effect July 1st of this year, is a forward looking document which further indicates the desire on the part of the Building and Construction Trades Department to keep ahead of the trend.

It has been a pleasure for me to sit on the Wage Adjustment Board created by this agreement as the representative of the War Department and discuss with the representatives of labor the various wage problems arising throughout the country. It is, and has been an education to sit together as a group and abstractly consider wage problems as they arise in various sections of the nation.

What is probably most in your minds at the present is, what does the future hold in the construction industry and how many construction workers will be needed by the Corps of Engineers? Present indications are that the War Department will still have considerable construction running into 1943 and 1944. Needless to say, I cannot give detailed facts or figures as to our future program, but as of September 1 there was approximately $2,275,000,000 worth of unfinished construction which is scheduled but has not been placed, and about one and one-half billion dollars more in new construction that has not been allocated to the field. What the future holds in store for further allocations depends entirely on what is planned for our army, which, of course, the General Staff is not divulging because of the usefulness of this information to our enemies.

The trend of employment has indicated a definite shortage of mechanics in the skilled trades, and with many mechanics going into the armed forces this already critical problem will be aggravated. Organized labor must use every means at its disposal to fill the voids that are thus being created.

There are also a great many of your tradesmen being diverted to other industries because of their mechanical skill, and again the problem of manning the projects becomes more critical. To indicate to you how to overcome these problems is beyond the province of our activities, but the facts must be faced and an adequate solution found. The future of the building industry in this war is at the crossroads. Are we to curtail our activities because of the lack of manpower on the part of labor, or are we to go ahead with our planning and rely on labor to continue to furnish us the manpower to maintain our operations? Gentlemen of labor, it is your problem and I lay it bluntly before you without embellishment.

I would like to mention at this time something which happened in our office the other day which made a profound impression on us all and reaffirmed our conviction of the wholesome spirit in the hearts of the average American working man. From two small contractors engaged in constructing a hospital on one of our projects came letters enclosing two certified checks in the total amount of $1,525.39, which had been sent by the employees on that project to the Chief of Engineers for him to use, and I quote—"any way that he saw fit in the war effort." This had been contributed by the workmen on this project pooling all their wages earned on Labor Day and was given outright by them to aid in the prosecution of the war effort. I think that this spontaneous action on the part of these men reflects the soul behind the tools in the hands of American workingmen and their willingness to give their all if necessary to protect America and the rights of free men.

There is a tendency in these days on the part of some of our more sophisticated citizens to depreciate the waving of the flag, but my friends, as far as I am concerned, we cannot wave the flag enough. I don't mean waving the flag as a means to reduce labor's gains or to violate contracts, but in the true sense of patriotism rising from the truly inspired feelings on the part of all of our people who pull together in this, our time of greatest danger. Let not our petty jealousies and selfish interests let down those unsung heroes of labor who have been eliminated by the Japs in Guam, Wake Island and the Philippines. They are also true soldiers. Those who are living as prisoners of war—may they live in the hope of seeing Old Glory coming down the stretch, and to those who have passed on to the higher reward, we in America can only say, "we acknowledge our debt to you, and we will do our part, as well as yours, to bring those oppressors of free men to their knees in the muck of their own shame and damnation."

Thank you very much.

President Coyne: Colonel Barker, it is indeed a pleasure for me to thank you for coming here this morning. I am sure we all appreciate your address very much.

President Coyne then introduced Mr. Daniel S. Ring (Director Division of Shipyard Labor Relations, United States Maritime Commission), who addressed the delegates as follows:

Mr. President, guests and members of the Building Trades

Department of the American Federation of Labor. I can't help but feel while standing here today that other men in other places have stood in the same position that we are now, and not many long years ago, in the exercise of a freedom which they thought too little of and deliberated and decided upon their destiny. Some of those men from other places today are engaged as prisoners in making roads for conquerors or providing munitions which will be directed against the last citadels of freedom.

As I think of those things what a wave of thanksgiving sweeps over me to realize that we have not yet lost the most precious possession of man, a thing which is merely a word when security bedims the possibility of losing it, but which stands out as the most real and tangible possession in the world when circumstances indicate we are in danger of being without it—freedom, liberty.

We have not yet lost our liberty or freedom and these things are more than mere names. We realize that today. Liberty and freedom mean so much that hours and weeks and years could easily be taken up in the exposition of the attributes that flow from them. To us they mean the right to work with our hands and in the sweat of our brows and to receive therefor just compensation for the contributions which we make to the community. To us they mean the right to spend what we have made in providing a home for our loved ones in which they will be secure from all influences that are detrimental to domestic happiness. To us they mean the right to send our toddling children to schools of our own choice and our boys and girls to colleges where generation by generation those who come on receive accumulatively greater benefits than those who have gone on before. To us they mean the right to worship or not to worship as we see fit and as our consciences dictate, to speak our thoughts without fear of reprisal. They mean the cherished right to guard our loved ones inviolate from force and injurious might.

We have enjoyed this freedom so long that it is hard to turn our minds to the possibility that these basic privileges of ours are in real jeopardy today. Liberty and freedom are ours only so long as we can keep them. We have not yet started winning this war. If and when we do start winning the war it is not going to be an effort of a few weeks or a few months, but will require unstinted sacrifice and irresistible determination over a period of long years. It is our privilege to contribute our pain and suffering to the major task that confronts us. Many of you listening to me here have boys who have gone out in uniform to jobs from which they may never return. Many of you have sons who may be given back to you broken men.

To wave the flag is a superfluous thing, but to call attention to stark, naked facts cannot be characterized as flag waving. Let no one belittle the contributions that you have made to the national welfare. Let no one forget that the Building Trades Stabilization Agreement was a major contribution to the construction program of the nation, and that contribution was made long before December 7th blackened the horizon for all America. Let no one forget that you were called upon to sacrifice conditions which you had achieved over many long years of struggle in the interest of the national welfare and that you did it readily and cheerfully. But let us also remember that we are not through with the sacrifices and the sufferings and the contributions which we must make if we are to achieve a final victory.

From time to time in days of stress and worry seemingly insurmountable problems will arise producing what seems an impasse between the parties to any agreement. It is then that one party or the other discouraged or bewildered feels like tossing everything overboard and scrapping the whole contract. Such a course, however, cannot be productive of any good to either party. If there are disputes, if there are misunderstandings, let's settle them man to man fashion around the table. Let's call a spade a spade and come to an agreement. The same purpose animates us all. When men are animated by a common purpose they cannot but help come to an agreement on any matters which are subordinate to that purpose or which are intended ultimately to push that purpose to a successful conclusion. By that I mean that if it can be shown that even with the record of sacrifice which you have thus far made it is necessary and important to the nation's welfare that you make still more sacrifices, you can't rest on your oars and remark, "We have already done all that we can do."

Tough as it may be to go back down the line to the membership that you so well represent and espouse the cause which to those who do not fully understand all the implications may at the start be an unpopular one, it can't be as tough as the job that those sons and brothers and friends of yours who are going to be our front line bulwark have undertaken; and the price that will be paid by you and those you represent will be cheap in comparison with the price that is to be paid by those who are protecting us.

My appeal to you is this, that you remember always that this is an unprecedented struggle, that this struggle is still ahead of us, that we must win, that we have not yet started to win, that if we are to be men capable of directing our own destinies after this struggle is over we must not adopt the attitude while we are in the struggle that there is nothing more that we can do. Examine unselfishly any program that is placed before you. Weigh the cost of it against the price you would pay for defeat in this war. Secure the safeguards that you need for yourself against the return of normal times and for the protection of conditions in normal times. If you do this I guarantee that you will ensconce yourselves in impregnable places through your own sacrifices and will secure for yourselves and those who come after you the enjoyment of the fruits of your work in the peace which will follow victory for our arms.

If any of us fail in our responsibility now the work which has been done by those who have gone before us will be wiped out. The struggle to regain our present position will be a long and bitter struggle. Let us not view ultimate victory then through rosy glasses. Let us appraise the situation as it exists today in the light of cold, clear analysis, and let us appreciate that the sweetness of victory will be all the more intense if in achieving same we have had a full realization of what defeat would have meant to us and what would have ensued if we had failed to do our part.

Thank you.

President Coyne: Dan Ring, we appreciate the fact that you have been able to be here with us this morning, and I am sure that everyone here has appreciated what you have had to say in this little address of yours.

The following resolutions were introduced and at later sessions unanimously adopted:

RESOLUTION No. 1

WHEREAS, Many millions of dollars have been appropriated by the Congress of these United States for the use of the Works Progress Administration in its activities, and

WHEREAS, It would appear that its original need no longer exists, due to the great demand for workers in both the skilled and unskilled classes, by war industry throughout the Nation, and

WHEREAS, It is doubtful in the minds of some whether or not WPA has carried on the good work intended by its sponsors or if it has just become a "political football" in the interests of those who have only the thought in mind of holding down a "soft job," and

WHEREAS, WPA has been detrimental to the best interests of the building trades from its inception—especially so to the painter—and has caused much labor trouble throughout its years by the placing of unskilled workmen at skilled trades, thereby flooding the labor market with men unqualified to follow any trade in the building industry; so lowering the standards in the construction field that, because of incompetence, there was a constant demand for wage reductions, and

WHEREAS, At Fort Schuyler, the Bronx, New York, all trades were involved in the attempt to construct several buildings for the training of recruits for the United States Navy and the Merchant Marine with WPA labor, which was finally discontinued after several weeks of dissension and labor difficulty, and

WHEREAS, This same condition exists on public work in the City of New York where unskilled workmen, employed by WPA, painted the City Hall and other projects at laborers' wages which are much less than the prevailing rate for mechanics, therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor—in regular convention assembled, September 30, 1942, in the City of Toronto, Ontario, Canada—protest against the actions of WPA Officials and others who are, or have been, responsible for the conditions complained of in the City of New York, and, be it further

RESOLVED, That the subject matter be referred to the forthcoming Convention of the American Federation of Labor together with a request that every effort be made by the incoming Executive Council of that body to advocate and assist in the passage of any legislation that will abolish the Works Progress Administration and transfer its functions and funds to the Public Works Administration of the Federal Government.

Delegation, Brotherhood of Painters,
Decorators and Paperhangers of America:

RESOLUTION No. 2

To the Officers and Delegates in Attendance at the Thirty-Sixth Annual Convention of the Building and Construction Trades Department, A. F. of L.:

WHEREAS, Over 3,000 construction workers and members of the American Federation of Labor employed at Wake, Guam and other Islands, fought as bravely as they worked to defend our country against the enemy attack; and

WHEREAS, These construction workers were finally overwhelmed, together with the members of the armed forces, by the enemy and have been imprisoned; and

WHEREAS, Compensation for all members of the armed forces and those civilian employees working for the Government under civil service has been provided for by legislation passed by Congress; and

WHEREAS, Only the construction workers and other civilian employees not working under civil service for the Government, all of whom are now imprisoned by the enemy at hard labor, are excluded from all compensation, except that their dependents are allowed paltry sums by the Old Age Pension Division of the Social Security Service; and

WHEREAS, the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor was instrumental in having legislation submitted in the United States Senate which provides for compensation to these needy imprisoned workers and their dependents; and

WHEREAS, Powerful opposition has succeeded in stalling this meritorious measure, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the Thirty-Sixth Annual Convention of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor now assembled go on record as endorsing this meritorious legislation, and be it further

RESOLVED, That Copies of this resolution be sent to the coming Convention of the American Federation of Labor for its favorable action.

JOSEPH MARSHALL, J. B. ETCHISON.
A. C. D'ANDREA,

The report of the Executive Council of the Department covered 41 cases, the most important of which was the Stabilization of Wages Agreement. The subject matter contained in said agreement was printed in full in the October LATHER as well as the executive order issued by the Secretary of Labor, exempting all building trades workers from the application of the President's order freezing wages, so we will not include it in this report.

Other cases, mostly of a local nature involving territorial and jurisdictional disputes, requests for charters, suspensions from local Building and Construction Trades Councils and similar difficulties, were covered in their report. Unanimous approval of the councils' action in every case was voted by the convention.

The Executive Council also reported on their activities in connection with Construction Battalions (Seabees), War Savings Stamps and Bonds, Agreement with Metal Trades on Shipyard Maintenance Work, Labor Relations with the U. S. Navy Department, Compensation for Captured Building Trades Workers on Wake and other islands, and similar subjects.

An interesting and instructive talk was made by Joseph D. Keenan (Chief A. F. of L. Consultant Service, Labor Division, W. P. B.) as follows:

President Coyne and delegates to this convention:—I know that you have a busy morning ahead of you, and I only want to take a few minutes of your time. I think there is something that the delegates should know and would be interested in what is in store for the building and construction trades in the future. In the year 1941 there were $11,200,000,000 spent for construction. In 1942 there was $12,700,000,000, and the figures for 1943 show that there will be $7,700,000,000. Now, that is going to mean that next year if the plans that are now on foot are carried out there will be a reduction in building construction of almost 30 per cent. Of course, nobody can look into the future, and as things develop on the war front all over the world it may be that this will be changed and possibly the construction that is being carried on this year will be carried on at the same level next year.

During this period while working in Washington from time to time, I have asked that the trades try and have the people of their trades get into these plants and do the maintenance work. We have come across cases in the last few months where the people are working on a temporary basis—and when I speak about temporary basis I mean they are put on due to the need of men to complete the job. These men work for the contractor for a certain period of time and then when they go into production they go on the management payroll. In a number of cases we find that these fellows are the people that are building up organizations to do maintenance work.

At the start of this program in 1940 the general contractor who had up to that time sublet most of his work, at the instigation of the fixed fee, he immediately started to do all the work himself. Well, now the fixed fee and the negotiated contract has another fault. On these contracts these large concerns operate on the same basis as a building contractor, and they operate under fixed fee and negotiated contracts. They are now building up plants where in the past 100 men were used for maintenance, and today they have five, six, seven, eight or nine hundred. These people are trying to maintain themselves, and if they continue and something isn't done, the future for the building construction in these big plants isn't very hopeful.

I think it is important that we watch that one phase of it, that in these large plants today that formerly manufactured durable goods and consumer goods that are now on war contracts, that when they go back to durable goods and consumer goods we are going to find that their maintenance forces are going to be people that we will have to pick up again in order to do the construction work that we formerly did.

Now, we are talking of a post-war period, but I think it is something that should be considered because it is dangerous, and any time you find plants with eleven, twelve, thirteen, or fourteen hundred maintenance people they are bound to be a factor, and they are going to be the cause of a great deal of trouble when this is over unless we keep in touch with it.

The employment in the construction industry in 1941 was 1,750,000 people. In the year 1942 it was 2,250,000 people, and the figures for 1943 show that it will be 1,500,000 people. That is 750,000 men less than what we used in this year. Now, as I said before, these are just estimates, but if the estimate is a true estimate it means that we are going to have 750,000 people that worked on building construction this year that will be looking for work in other industries. It is true that a great number of these may go into the Army, but I don't think 750,000 of them will go into the Army; and I think that there again it is important that we get our members to get into these plants on the maintenance jobs; because if we protect ourselves by putting our people in the maintenance jobs then we are going to have some control over conditions when the war is over.

There is another very important happening of the last few weeks that I think should be given a great deal of attention. I talked it over with John Coyne, but most of the people were out of Washington when I heard about it. It is relaxation of codes. There is a tendency on the part of the cities throughout the United States to relax codes that you people have spent a great deal of time and effort on by going to legislators to get them enacted, and if they are set aside now and there is no protection or nobody takes part in the relaxation of them, there again you will have something that will take a great deal of time and effort to rebuild after this thing is over.

One more item is the limitation order known as L-41. This is another order that the President and the Secretary and Harry Bates and a number of others have worked on to try and keep in touch with. We now find in the priority section that we have two or three other divisions cutting across the L-41 order, and it is causing a great deal of confusion and many jobs that could be done at this time and which would give work in these small towns where there is no work or no war work, and where there would be enough to keep your older members and the people that are not able to leave to go to defense jobs where it would give them work, due to these different priority sections cutting across L-41 we are not able to get these jobs released as we did in the past.

Now, that is another thing that we will have to get into immediately and see if we can't go to the War Production Board and have all of the limitations and all of the priority rulings on building and construction come under L-41 and set up some kind of a committee to work with the administrative branch of L-41 in order to see if we can't get these jobs with a minimum amount of criticals in small towns and in areas where there are people that are employable to go ahead with these jobs so that we can get work for them during this emergency.

Finally, I think that the building construction trades have not blown their horn loud enough. I think that with every newspaper in the country condemning us that the Building Trades Unions of this country deserve a great deal of credit. We have men from our unions all over the world. Any place that there are soldiers fighting we have building construction people there building barracks, building airports, and doing the things that are necessary and that can be done only by building construction people. The building construction trades people who were on Wake Island were just as important and took just as great a part in the battle there as the soldiers themselves, and I think it is time that the building trades of this country let the people know that you have done a job since the first day of the defense effort.

Never has there been any question of men going to a job. A job is started, the International offices notify their International representatives in the field, and the people just naturally go there. Everybody is taking it for granted. Your secretary, and the secretary of the Metal Trades and Frank Fenton was out on the job in Nevada a few weeks ago where the people had to go a mile for water. They had no sanitation, no housing. The people bring their families there and all they have for shelter are four poles with a sheet stuck up on it or a truck, or any place they can lay their head. The children run around like in a stockade and there is no place to wash. Their hair hasn't been washed in weeks, and all this is done without any protest. Yet every newspaper commentator in the United States, when there is a stop for a few hours,—headline! Never once do they come out and acquaint the people with the actual conditions of the building construction worker, and the methods under which they have to live while on these jobs.

I am happy to have had an invitation to come here, and I am also thankful for taking up your time. Thank you.

President Coyne: I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart, Joe, for the many nice things that you have done for us during the period of your tenure in the Washington office.

George Meany (Secretary-Treasurer, American Federation of Labor) addressed the convention as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Delegates to the Building Trades Convention: I assure you that it is a privilege to come here this morning and say a few words to the representatives of the building trades. I have attended many of these conventions, starting way back in El Paso in 1924, and I get as much kick out of them, I think, as anybody who comes here.

Since I had the privilege of talking to this convention a year ago in Seattle, Washington, a great many things have happened to this country, to our nation and to the labor movement as a whole. Prior to December 7th of last year our country was at peace. On the 7th of December we passed from a position of armed neutrality or preparation for war into an actual state of war. The reaction of the American Federation of Labor to that event is typical of the history of the American Federation of Labor. On last December 15th the American Federation of Labor called a meeting of the heads of the International Unions and of the Executive Council, and from that meeting was issued a document which I think will take its place with the great documents of organized labor. Simply boiled down, that document was a message to the President of the United States from the organized worker represented by the American Federation of Labor, and it said in effect, "Mr. President, whatever it is that you want us to do, whatever it is we must do to win this war, we will do."

That was the position of the American Federation of Labor at that time; that is the position of the American Federation of Labor today, and it is a natural position for trade unionists to take because unless our type of government survives, our trade union movement cannot survive.

No dictatorship can long continue in power if the citizens of that particular nation have an opportunity to gather together in free trade unions and give expression to their opinions. No institution that has for its basis the principles of freedom and democracy can be allowed to exist in a country where a dictator rules, and no one knows that better than the rank and file, the workers, the officers of the American Federation of Labor.

So, we realize that the very existence of our trade union movement which has contributed so much to the welfare of our nation depends on the winning of this war.

I read in the papers yesterday morning where someone said we could get along without labor unions. Well, I guess that is true. Germany is getting along without labor unions to a degree. I guess it is true that we could get along without freedom of religion. I guess it is true we could get along without freedom of speech. There is no freedom of speech in France, no freedom of religion in any of those countries dominated by the Nazi dictatorship. I guess we can get along without freedom of opportunity to work where and when we see fit. There is no freedom of opportunity in Korea. Manthukus, countries overrun and dominated by the Japanese military clique for the past two or three decades. But the answer to that is that while we could get along without these expressions of human freedom, while we could get along without trade unions, the answer to that is that we don't want to get along without trade unions. We don't want the Hitler type of government. We don't want to live in a country where freedom of speech is suppressed, where the right to worship as your conscience dictates is taken away from you by the ruling power. We want to live in a country where men have an opportunity to gather together, such as the representatives of the American Federation of Labor have gathered together for the past 60 years, to improve the conditions under which they work and to improve the conditions under which they live."

We want to live in a country where all forms of free expression under the law are allowed. So, the answer to that argument that we can get along without labor unions is yes, we can, but we don't want to get along without labor unions. We don't want to get along with a type of government that is going to suppress labor unions and other institutions that represent free expression and free thought.

Prior to our entry into this war I think the unions of the American Federation of Labor have made a record that is without parallel in any other nation on earth. I remember very definitely the year 1940, and I am sure every building trades representative in this room also remembers that year. When the record of this war is written I think that that will be the year which will be pointed out as the most crucial year in history. That is the year that saw France go down in defeat, saw the low countries overrun, Norway overrun. That is the year that saw the British fighting with their backs to the wall. That is the year that Britain will always remember as the Dunkirk year. And that is the year that the American people woke up to the fact that their institutions were threatened by the actions of Hitler and those associated with him.

The American Federation of Labor didn't have to wake up to that threat and menace to their institutions. They recognized that threat way back in 1933. Perhaps other liberal groups recognized the threat early, but the American people did not recognize the threat to the American institutions that was contained in the actions of Hitler until June, 1940. Then when our War and Navy Departments set out to do the job that had to be done and had to be done in a hurry, they were then faced with their first man-power problem, the problem of erecting cantonments, schools, training centers, aviation centers, and every other type of construction that entered into the war program. They were faced with that problem, and to whom did they turn in order to get their manpower to these jobs in the isolated sections of the country? They turned to the only group that could give them the service that they needed, they turned to the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

I remember one particular camp out in the wastelands at Cape Cod. The summer population, perhaps, out there was great. The winter population of the nearest town to this camp was 300, and they had to go eighty miles to reach a fair-sized city. They had a job to be done. The United States Employment Service couldn't get the men, with all due respect to that branch of the Department of Labor. No private employment service could get the men. Whom did they turn to? They came in to see John Coyne, and John Coyne placed at their disposal all the machinery of the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, and through that machinery there was constructed from a wasteland with no facilities of any kind as to sewage or water, there was constructed in twelve weeks a city to house 28,000 people, with a hospital containing over a thousand beds, complete heating plant, complete in every way. Constructed by the mechanics of the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor and made possible by the machinery of that Department, that was done for the Quartermaster Corps of the Army.

Well I remember at the very same time the position that the Department of Yards and Docks of the Navy found themselves in, in June of 1940. Where did they turn? To the Building Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. We all remember Pensacola, and we all remember Corpus Christi. I can well remember also the expression of gratitude on the part of the chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks of the United States Navy to the building trades workers of the American Federation of Labor for the construction miracles which they performed in that trying year of 1940.

There is no question that labor takes a realistic view of the war situation. There is nobody more hard-headed and practical than a trade unionist. We know what is at stake. We know what our particular stake is in the outcome of this conflict. We know that as many sacrifices have been made, whatever efforts have been made, much more effort and many more sacrifices must be made. We know that we are not going to use the law of supply and demand to increase the wages of groups that are considered in the high-wage category. We know that we are not going to improve working conditions over what they have been during the war period. We don't ask for any special favor. We don't ask that we be allowed to sacrifice less, if you please, than the rest of the citizenry of our nation, but we do ask that we be allowed to contribute more to the war effort, that we get our rightful place on every top activity having to do with war production; and we have a right to ask for this increased representation in the war production effort because the record will show that in every place that labor has been allowed to contribute, that labor has been allowed to participate, that they have brought to the particular department with which they were co-operating real results.

So I say to you this morning that we are realists about this. We know we have got to make great sacrifices and greater efforts. We are ready to make greater sacrifices and greater efforts, but we also know what we are fighting for. We are fighting for a right to live under a system of government that provides freedom of speech, freedom of religious worship, freedom of assemblage and all the liberties under which we have contributed so much to the building up of our nation.

The American worker today stands head and shoulders over any other worker on earth. He is better clothed; his children go to better schools; he eats better food; he takes his place in the community as an equal with any group or class of citizens. That is not true in any other place on earth. We claim, and rightfully so, that the American Federation of Labor in its 60 years of existence as a pressure group, if you please, has raised the standard of the American worker to the point where we can look on the rest of the world and say, "Well, here we are; come up to our standards."

That has been done through trade unionism, and we realize what we are up against, the effort and the sacrifice that must be made, but we also realize that one of the things we are fighting to win, one of the things we hope to preserve when we preserve the American system, is the trade union movement that has meant so much for the American worker the last 60 or 70 years.

As to the results, I haven't any doubt and I know you haven't any doubt that the American Federation of Labor is going to make its contribution, a greater and greater contribution to that inevitable day when victory will be ours.

Thank you!

President Coyne: Secretary Meany, we want to thank you from the bottom of our hearts for your valuable contribution to our proceedings.

President Coyne then introduced President William Green of the American Federation of Labor as follows:

We have with us also this morning President Green of the American Federation of Labor. It has been a time-honored custom that he always address our convention, and I am sure that he will have something worth while to tell us this morning. President Green:

Mr. Chairman, Secretary Tracy, officers and delegates in attendance at this highly important convention of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor: I bring to you, as I have every year since I have been privileged to attend your convention, the greetings of your colleagues and your associates in the American Federation of Labor. I know you will accept them as genuine, and tendered to you through myself with all sincerity.

I was pleased, indeed, in that I was privileged to come in this morning just when Secretary Tracy was submitting his interesting address. I was glad, indeed, that I was privileged to listen to the highly instructive, educational and informative address which he delivered. I learned some things, as I know you learned some things, from the facts and information which he just submitted. I think I can truthfully state that we all deeply appreciate the fact that during this trying period we have within the Department of Labor a Building and Construction tradesman, one who understands the Building and Construction Trades Department. I know you feel like me, that we are highly favored and that we deeply appreciate the fact that Secretary Tracy is the Assistant Secretary of Labor now.

Many things have happened during the past year. I recall my attendance at your convention at Seattle one year ago. At that time we could not look into the future and appraise the changes that were about to take place. It was only a short period between October of last year and December when the cowardly, dastardly attack was made upon us by the Japanese at Pearl Harbor. Since that time we have passed through most interesting changes, economic, social and political. And I presume that we can justly anticipate the fact that there are going to be many more changes take place before the war is finally over and victory is won.

I am happy, however, in looking over the record to find that the Building and Construction Trades Department especially has adjusted itself to the economic changes which have taken place since Pearl Harbor. In a wonderful, I think, and in a most amazing way you have faced the facts and the realities as practical, trained men and have adjusted yourselves to these changes so as to secure for those members you represent in the Building and Construction Trades Department the protection they needed and at the same time to render the highest service of which you are capable to the Government. It seemed that it is difficult to understand how this splendid organization has so fully grasped the situation. It is reflected in the stabilization agreement that was referred to by Secretary Tracy. An agreement of the kind upon which he reported this morning would not be negotiated, I presume, between the building trades organizations and the Government during a normal period, but when the Building Trades Department realized that these tremendous economic and industrial changes had taken place they very wisely adjusted themselves to that change, set the pace, established a high standard for other workers to follow and, in my judgment, rendered the greatest service they ever rendered to the building trade organizations in America. When the facts are finally established and when the record is made and when the war is over and we are able to calmly examine it all and go into it all and appraise it all, we will, I am sure, arrive at the unanimous and definite conclusion that the Building and Construction Trades Department met the war issues in a most wonderful way, an amazing and constructive way.

I can say the same thing, I think, of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor. They met the situation, too, just as you met it and as a result of it they have served the membership in the Metal Trades Department in a most wonderful way.

Of course, we cannot tell, we cannot see at the moment what is going to happen, but there is one thing we have finally determined, come what may. It matters not how short or how long, how quick or how long postponed, we have firmly resolved, the men and women of labor along with other American citizens, that this war must be won for democracy and for the free people of the world. That is a fixed determination, and so we have set ourselves steadfastly to the task to give and to serve and to measure up to the call of the Government, every requirement of the Government that is within the bounds of reason in order that this war may be won ultimately but as quickly as possible.

Now, there are some who are impatient, and, I regret to note, critical of labor. Then there are others who engage in lectures and who scold labor. I do not think any of that is justifiable, because the record shows that labor in America has rendered exalted service. May I particularly and with pride point to the fact that the membership of the Building and Construction Trades Department responded to the call of the Government first of all after Pearl Harbor, because we had to begin as it were from a bare foundation. Cantonments had to be built, flying fields had to be created, war material production buildings had to be constructed and erected. Who did that work? Who was called upon to do the work first of all? Even our splendid men of the Army and the flying fields could not, of course, begin to train and to serve until equipment was ready and housing facilities, places where they could gather so that they could mobilize their military strength. Who was it who built the cantonments in record breaking time? Who erected the flying fields, the naval training stations? Who was it did this work in a splendid, scientific way? It was the members of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, and it seems to me that full credit ought to be given them for the way in which they responded. There is no room for a single word of criticism that can be directed against these men. They moved their men from the industrial centers to the remote sections where buildings were constructed, without cost to the Government in many instances. Where was there any other group other than organized labor that measured up to that requirement? The cantonments were built; the flying fields were constructed; the naval training stations were erected, and all of it done in record breaking time. Isn't that something? Doesn't that count? Who is it that can justify themselves if they withhold credit from the men who did this work in such a wonderful and splendid way? When I run across those among the law-making bodies or representatives of the Army, Navy or the Government who find fault and criticize labor because they say we are losing the war, the answer is what more could labor do? Point out to me where they could do more than they have done. I know that if they can serve better they will, and if the call comes for additional service they will give it. I know that if mechanics are needed in the remote sections of Texas and they can't be found that the Building Trades Department of New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, St. Louis, Chicago and other cities will send them there so that they can render the service to the Government. They are truly and really soldiers of production, moving from one camp to the other, rendering service equally with the soldiers in order to promote the war effort.

And, by the way, I cannot help but say the same service was rendered by the Metal Trades Department. The ships have been built ahead of schedule. I am proud of what they have done. We can all feel proud over the fact that these splendid men identified with the Metal Trades Department, have worked as many hours as the government asked them to work, have given up many things they enjoyed under normal conditions, have responded to the call of the government and have during the past and are now sending these ships down the ways into the seas weeks and months and, in some instances, a year ahead of schedule.

Well, why should labor be criticized and condemned when they make such a record as that? Who can justify criticism of labor when they make such a record as that during these trying days? I know we all feel that we must give more. If we have resources we can draw upon, let them be trained resources, technical resources, physical resources, mental resources, whatever resources, whatever it may be, we must call upon all those resources and give them these days.

I can appreciate the fact that that is the overshadowing issue now. At this convention we must meet this issue. We cannot give it the consideration that we would to our normal, economic, social and industrial problems. Everything must be subordinated to the winning of the war, and we are all willing to do that for yourselves, for your government, for free men and women in order that they may remain free throughout the world.

Just one other matter I want to refer to in this brief talk this morning. We have passed through some trying experience since Pearl Harbor in a legislative way. There are those in the law-making bodies who seem to feel that force ought to be applied rather than voluntarism in calling upon labor to give and to serve. I cannot begin to tell you how many bills and laws and resolutions were introduced in the Congress of the United States during the past year since Pearl Harbor, all attacking labor and all of them designed to reduce labor to the condition of servitude. You will recall the notorious Smith Bills introduced in the Congress of the United States for the purpose of preventing strikes for the purpose of controlling labor, making it subject to the government. In other words, for the purpose of introducing here in America in control of the masses of the people the same policy pursued by totalitarian governments against which we are fighting at the present time.

I am happy to report to this Building and Construction Trades Department Convention that we succeeded, you succeeded, men and women of labor in America, succeeded, through co-operation in bringing about the defeat of every one of those measures in the Congress of the United States. One of the notorious Smith Bills passed the House of Representatives. It passed because in Oklahoma and Texas, Kansas and other agricultural states a well conceived and well organized policy of propaganda was launched, and the Congressmen representing Congressional Districts from those states in the Congress of the United States and others from other states were showered with telegrams and postal cards and letters and denunciatory editorials written by editors who seemed to hate labor. They were influenced, so much so that some members in the Congress of the United States who had steadily stood by labor on every proposition left us and voted for this notorious Smith Bill. But I am happy to report to you that it stopped here. It got no farther. It was impossible to prevail upon the Senate of the United States to give favorable consideration to such legislation.

There has been other legislation of a similar kind introduced, all aimed at labor, all formed and introduced for the purpose of controlling labor. Sometimes we were called racketeers and sometimes we were called other names equally as bad, and are being called that now. These are the men that are giving the service to the country. There are so many of them that do not see a single virtue in labor. It is all wrong. Everything is wrong, and some have even gone so far as to say that there is no need of unions any more and we could get along without unions. Well, that isn't the tribute paid to labor organizations by those who hold key positions in the government of the United States, for within the last few weeks men who serve in the most important key positions of the government have said to me that "We were extremely fortunate in that we have an organization in existence like the American Federation of Labor during this war period, because it is through them that we have been able to promote the sale of bonds: It is through them that we have been able to reach labor, that we have been able to get over to them the thing we wanted them to know and understand; and without that organization we would have failed."

Now, regarding the anti-strike legislation, I know you will agree with me that during this war period we cannot utilize our economic strength as we would do and could do and should do under normal periods. The chief asset of labor is its economic strength. If we are stripped of that, what have we left? Even the threat of a strike many times brings definite results, but during this period we have assured the President of the United States, the Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, that we are willing to voluntarily relinquish the exercise of the right to strike during the war period. We did that as free men, exercising a free right we possess. We do it voluntarily, but we would resist with all the power at our command any attempt to enact legislation taking from us the right to strike now or any other time.

There is a vast difference in the two formulas. The one which provides that we will voluntarily relinquish the right to strike and the other that we will willingly say to Congress, "Take from us the right to strike," and acquiesce in it. There is a vast difference in that, because even though they may in some sort of glowing and persuasive language say, "We want to take from you the right to strike by legal measures for the duration of the war," we as hardheaded, trained, experienced workers know that when such a law is written on the statute books it is very difficult to take it away even after the war is over. So, the safe way to do is to do the thing that we want you to do as free men and do it voluntarily, but to oppose with all of the vigor and force at our command any attempt to take from us our chief asset, our only strength, the power we possess to resist against injustice and to do it by legislation. So we have opposed any attempt to enact the legislation which embodied within it that principle.

Now, of course, the legislation that is attracting your attention, as it is the attention of all other workers, is the wage stabilization legislation. We can understand, as economists,—and there are very few men but what understand economy. Some of them understand it better than professors who have taken special economic courses in our universities. We know that we can't pass through a period of rising prices, such as develops out of the war situation, without courting the danger of inflation. And we know that if inflation comes that it is the masses of the people, the workers who suffer most and first.

Some of us recall reading what happened in Germany following the close of the World War when prices moved upward and upward in a spiral way that could not be stopped, and a wage earner couldn't get a basketful of marks, couldn't earn them in order to buy a meal. So, we are interested, much interested in preventing inflation, but in so doing we want to follow the reasonable course, the wise course, the sensible course, the course that we think is justifiable and has developed out of our changing economy. There is a vast difference between stabilization of wages and freezing of wages. There is a tremendous strong sentiment in Congress in favor of wage freezing, passing a law which provides that wages, to whomever paid and in what way paid, on a fixed and definite date shall be frozen. That is rigidly, inflexibility. By an Act of Congress you are stopped, you are frozen. There it is.

We take the other position that we favor stabilization as a stabilization program that will permit the application of the changing law of economics to the facts and circumstances as they may develop day by day. That would mean that perhaps in the bracket here the wages would stand, but in a bracket below and still below adjustments should take place, so that inequalities and sub-standard rates could be corrected. We have stood religiously for the application of that principle and then, if in the changing course of things the economics of the situation will require and call for some improvement in the whole wage structure let it be done in a sensible and realistic way so that it will square with the facts.

Now, I have endeavored in that simple way to draw the line between stabilization and freezing of wages, because there are many people outside the ranks of labor who are unable to draw the line of distinction between wage freezing and wage stabilization. I have watched carefully the movement of the stabilization bill in Congress from its induction to the present time. There were times—there were days when I felt greatly disturbed because of the pressure that was brought to bear from this source and that source, but I can truthfully say that it is my opinion that if the Wage Stabilization Bill, now nearing the end of its passage in Congress, is enacted into law without further change, we can feel that we have succeeded in our efforts to incorporate in it the stabilization of wages instead of the freezing of wages.

When the executive order is issued, based upon the legislation passed by Congress, I feel you will agree with me that our interests have been adequately protected.

It occurred to me that I could report to you these matters this morning, because I know you are interested in all that I have reported to you. I am happy indeed over the great progress every one of your organizations has made during the past year. You have succeeded in maintaining the supremacy of the building trades organizations chartered by and in affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. I congratulate you upon the successful way in which you have prevented the invading hosts from invading your field. You represent the groups that have maintained your supremacy. Good luck to you. May you always keep it and may no one ever be permitted to invade it. I thank you.

President Coyne: President Green, it is with a great deal of pleasure that I congratulate you upon the manner in which you have so ably described the work which has been accomplished by the American Federation of Labor through the Building Trades Department. I thank you.

Report of Secretary-Treasurer. The Secretary-Treasurer's report showed an increase in membership of 114,000 members during the last year.

Eighteen new charters were issued; five charters re-issued; and two charters withdrawn.

The Department now has 524 local Building and Construction Trades Councils, 13 State Building and Construction Trades Councils and 19 International Unions affiliated with the Department. The total paid-up membership reported by the Secretary is 1,107,349.

The final business of the convention was the re-election of all incumbent Vice Presidents. They are as follows:

Third Vice President WILLIAM J. MCSORLEY, Cleveland, O.

HELPING THE AXIS

(Washington Teamster)

One way to help the Axis is to sell your war bonds to buy things you can go without. It is reliably reported that more than a few folks are running to the banks with their bonds each month. There are cases of course, where bonds must be sacrificed to care for emergencies. But the lad who cashes his bonds in to buy fine clothes or to finance outlays for luxury living, is helping the Axis.

Don't forget this: if you cling to your bonds, go without some of the comforts to which you are accustomed or forego those you have not enjoyed, you may stay out of the soup lines after this war is over. Save that 10 percent! There will come a day when it will be mighty handy.

Finally: our country is in a desperate war—you are in it, too. When you lend your money to your country, there is an implied promise on your part to hold your bonds until they become due in 10 years. If you cash them in, except in dire necessity, you are double-crossing Uncle Sam.

FOUNDED UPON A ROCK

(The Cleveland Citizen)

"And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house, and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock."

The testing time has arrived. We will now learn whether or not we have truly founded this republic upon the rock. We have taken our democratic way of life for granted. Upon national holidays we have assembled to listen to speeches about the past, to stories of the hardships which the founders of our nation went through. We have agreed that we had a great heritage, and then we have gone back to our own comfortable way of living.

Now is the hour of trial. From all quarters of the globe, the forces that hate democracy because it is practical exemplification of the monotheistic doctrine of the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God, are descending upon us.

The founders of this country built a nation upon the belief that man is entitled to freedom, that he is capable of self-government, that his beliefs are between him and his God alone. Under this doctrine we have prospered until that prosperity has aroused the envy and covetousness of those who saw only the success and not the cause, who could not see that a man would work harder for himself than for a master.

We, the inheritors of this house, have been negligent, indifferent, over-confident—and now we are faced with the necessity of fighting to the finish for our democratic way of life. If enough of us believe in Democracy, in equal rights for all men, Democracy

DECISIONS OF THE GENERAL PRESIDENT

Sec. 121 L. I. U. Constitution provides: All decisions of the General President must be published in the following issue of The Lather, together with a short, concise synopsis of the case. All decisions of the Executive Council must be published in the following issue of The Lather.

William H. Burley, 15761 vs. Local No. 51

Brother Burley appealed against the action of Local 51 in placing fines against him as follows: $5.00 (International fine) for failure to comply with Section 145 L. I. U. constitution; $55.00 for not complying with the provisions of Section 177, (thus discriminating against the membership of this local union). The local union also quoted Section 67 L. I. U. constitution as having been violated.

The General President, after having carefully examined all of the evidence presented by both sides, found the brother guilty of some of the charges, but on account of the circumstances prevailing in this case and the member's past good record, found the fine to be excessive and therefore ordered it reduced to the sum of $30.00.

H. A. DeHaven, 39219 and Frank P. Wehling, 7433 vs. Local No. 127

Brothers DeHaven and Wehling appealed against the action of Local 127 in placing the following fines against them: In the case of Brother DeHaven, $10.00 ($5.00 being placed for violation of Section 127 L. I. U. constitution, and $5.00 for going to work for a foreman who had not deposited his transfer in Local 127). Brother Wehling, foreman, was fined the sum of $30.00 for violation of Section 127 International constitution ($25.00 being a local fine and $5.00 an International fine). The General President, after carefully considering all of the evidence presented by both sides, found the brothers did not intentionally violate either the local or International law, and he therefore ordered that the fines as placed be rescinded.

H. A. Chaney, 29920 vs. Local No. 394

Brother Chaney appealed against the action of Local 394 in placing a fine of $50.00 against him for violation of sections 127 and 145 L. I. U. constitution. The General President called to this local union's attention Section 145 which prescribes only a fine of $5.00 for this violation, and he so ruled, finding the brother guilty as charged.

PERMANENCE IN HOMES

(New Orleans Dly. Jnl. of Commerce)

Up until the time that restrictions of various kinds were imposed upon the home building industry that industry was turning out some very attractive as well as well-built small homes. And it goes without saying that during the past twenty years or so there has been remarkable improvement realized in the small home-building field. Improved heating and ventilating, ample natural light due to proper location of windows, design as well as the economics practiced in that particular field have made the small home a notable contrast to what similar structures were years back.

There are those who wonder, however, if the attractive small homes of today will be obsolete in design twenty years or so from today. They wonder whether home styles are permanent. They also wonder whether in view of the improved materials of various kinds, if homes are not being built too permanently. But to the latter question there remains that constant answer that the individual investing in a home does so with the intention of making that home his life-long abode. The average person can only afford one home and it is obvious that that home must embody features which are not only permanent in their construction but of design and general location which will keep their attractiveness through the years.

Some people naturally resent the trend toward radically changing styles in home design. They don't want their homes to become obsolete in appearance while still structurally as sound as the day they were built. Constant change as in automobiles is entirely out of the question for them—and naturally so. They still hold the thought that "it takes a lot of living to make a house a home."

FOUNDED UPON A ROCK

racy will live, no matter what gales may storm down upon us.

But we now have to prove that we believe—we have to put Democracy into action. We have to give up many of the things we deemed necessary, we have to work harder, discipline ourselves more rigidly, work together in factory and field, fight on the land, on the sea and in the air for the preservation of the freedom without which we do not wish to live.

If we do this, if we put democracy into action, we will win—for the house of our republic is founded upon the rock of freedom for all, and that rock will endure forever and a day.

MASO HEADS N. J. COUNCIL

The New Jersey State Building and Construction Trades Council has elected Sal Maso to succeed the late Freddie Scholl as their president, which is exactly what Brother Scholl predicted over a year ago, at the time Brother Maso declined the honor of running for mayor of Paterson.

We can not improve upon the following editorial published in The Paterson Evening News for describing the personality and character of the man who, in a short span of time, has gained prominence in his own community and state, by the vigorous and energetic application of fair-minded tactics, which have won him the respect of both labor and civic leaders:

"Election of Sal Maso, of Paterson, as president of the New Jersey State Building Trades Council is a tribute to the dynamic energy of a young man who in a comparatively short space of time has risen to a preeminent position in state labor councils.

"Mr. Maso came to Paterson in 1929, was called into his first position of labor prominence shortly thereafter when the lathers' union called on him to reorganize them, later electing him business agent and then business manager. Since 1933 he has been president of the Paterson Building and Construction Trades Council, a position he has filled with vigor and determination.

"His rise to prominence in state building trades circles parallels his development in his home city. Aiding in the reorganization of the State Council in 1934, he became second vice-president, then first, and for the past year, had been acting state president during the illness of the late President Fred Scholl.

"It is significant that while for a number of years workers in the building trades in this area have enjoyed a remarkable prosperity, their position of security has been attained midst an unprecedented era of labor peace and much of this has been due to Mr. Maso's policy of fostering a healthful accord with employers. Himself a fighter from the drop of the hat, it has been the new state president's policy to pursue the interests of building trades workers vigorously and energetically, but insisting wherever and whenever possible on uninterrupted operations while pressing for an advantage.

"Mr. Maso's election as state president brings new prestige to labor generally in this vicinity, but especially to workers in the building trades."

Many other duties have also been willingly undertaken by Brother Maso. He is a member of Selective Service Appeal Board No. 1 for Passaic County and of the Arbitration Tribunal of the Unemployment Compensation Commission. He is also chairman of the Consumers Interest Committee of the Patterson Defense Council and a member of the Defense Savings Committee for the State of New Jersey. In 1939 he was named to the New Jersey State Health and Welfare Conference by former Governor A. Harry Moore.

At present, Brother Maso is 6th Vice President of our International Union, to which office he was elected in 1939, and before that, he was 7th Vice President, to which office he was elected in 1936.

TO ENFORCE PRICE CEILING

(St. Louis Labor Tribune)

Housewives, labor unions and business men are up in arms, because they claim that the cost of living is soaring in spite of the setting of price ceilings. Protests from all over the country are being sent to the Office of Price Administration at Washington.

However, this is the wrong address for these protests. They should be sent to Congress, which refused to give OPA's administrator, Leon Henderson, enough money to properly and effectively regulate price controls.

Mr. Henderson asked for $210,000,000 to establish OPA offices throughout the country and staff them with sufficient inspectors to enforce the ceiling prices. But after weeks of shilly-shallying, Congress finally gave Mr. Henderson $120,000,000, which is $90,000,000 less than he considered a necessary minimum to successfully administer the act.

Because of this fact, the OPA had to close up many of its regional offices and curtail others. As a result, food processors, wholesalers and retailers all over the country are ignoring the ceilings and charging prices higher than the March 1 maximum for commodities which should be regulated. In the aggregate this extra profit extracted from the consumer will amount to many times the $90,000,000 cut from the original OPA request of Congress to successfully administer the tremendous job of regulating and holding down prices to prevent inflation.

To do a job well, a man has to have the right tools and materials with which to do it. Since price control is one of the three foundations upon which we have erected the dam to control runaway inflation, Congress should immediately grant the OPA sufficient additional funds to reopen its recently closed offices and staff them with enough inspectors and other employees required to fully administer the act. Give Leon Henderson what he needs. Then it is squarely up to him to deliver the goods.

NUTRITION AND LABOR

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, under the direction of I. M. Ornburn, Secretary-Treasurer, is sponsoring a series of articles by outstanding scientists on the subject of proper food and diet.

This is one in a series of articles written by Dr. Mark Graubard, Industrial Workers Nutrition Specialist in the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, Federal Security Agency. Dr. Graubard is one of the Nation's outstanding biochemists and is a historian of science and student of food habits of primitive peoples and modern nations. He was professor at Columbia and Clark Universities; lecturer on science to labor unions since 1933; and is the author of several books on science.

Another peculiarity of the human species is the desire for some mild narcotic or drug which excites or stimulates or soothes his nerves. Most primitive tribes knew of some such substances. Among these most commonly favored today are tobacco, alcoholic drinks, tea, coffee, hemp, cocoa leaves, betel juice, the kola nut and other such substances. Some are mild, others are strong. Most people, however, use them moderately but all can be abused if taken in excess.

It is interesting that most of the drugs and stimulants habitually taken by man do not taste very well at first and require a certain will to endure before the practice becomes habitual and yields as a result a certain amount of satisfaction. Everyone of these stimulants was at first bitterly opposed either by lay or religious authorities. It is also interesting that more often than not these drugs are associated with religious ceremonials or with social occasions like tobacco in the ritual of American Indians and the role of the pipe at their social gatherings.

We have already seen how slow people were in accepting the potato and a number of other good foods. In contrast, tobacco spread very rapidly. This is more amazing still if we realize that it met opposition everywhere. In most European countries heavy duties were imposed on its import. Many cities of Germany decreed a death penalty for smoking and most European countries prescribed whipping or other severe penalties. In Turkey the first smokers had their noses pierced and their pipes passed through them, in which condition they were paraded through the streets in Nazi fashion. Persia, Russia, and China also decreed a death penalty at first, while in Abyssinia the noses of smokers were cut off.

But all this did not help. All the cruel laws were invariably revoked by the sons or the grandsons of the legislators who themselves became victims of the habit. Even our mild coffee and tea were met with strong opposition. Coffee was originally used as a medicine and as a generally good food in Abyssinia. In the fifteenth century it appears in Arabia from where it spread to Europe. All Mohammedan countries prohibited it at first and meted out all kinds of punishment to transgressors, but within one or two generations, it became a common practice. Where-ever coffee houses appeared, they too were opposed for moral or political reasons, and all kinds of people predicted that if they were allowed, humanity would go to the dogs.

While coffee, tobacco and alcohol were opposed for moral and religious reasons, tea did not encounter much opposition on that score. The only voice against it in the early stages of its popularity came from people who claimed that it led to tea parties which provoked women to gossip and idleness.

Several measures were also taken in Africa and India against the practice of smoking or eating hemp which is very popular today among the Mohammedan nations. Arab rulers decreed that all hemp eaters were to be imprisoned. Within a few weeks all the prisons were filled and the law then resorted to pulling teeth. This was practiced for many years but as usual, to no avail.

This bit of human history seems to lead to a few conclusions. First, it appears that the human being has some craving for substances that effect the nervous system somehow. It is also clear that not all desires of man are in harmony with his biological welfare. This need not surprise us because we really have not made a contract with nature to always make all animals perfect and free from harmful tendencies. Rather it is the duty of science to examine our desires as well as our habits and see how they relate to the utmost benefits of man. After such knowledge is obtained, it is essential to study ways and means of controlling the undesirable cravings and convert bad habits into good ones. But in such cases, it is necessary to take into account the facts of human nature. A harmful practice cannot be changed by legislation or abuse. Human beings must be approached with sympathy and understanding and not with fanaticism even if that is based on sound scientific principles.

An effort to change human habits or beliefs, regardless of whether they affect diets or politics, must be done cooperatively and the hard way instead of the easy and superficial way of coercion and decree.

Members of the Chicago Flat Janitors Union, 11,000 strong, have decided to do their bit in the war effort. Housewives who refuse to properly prepare tin cans, because the polish on their nails might crack, will find their garbage uncollected.

You may eat "like a bird" or "like a horse" but it's unlikely that you've ever given any thought to the total quantity of food you consume during your lifetime.

Some industrious statistician has done a little computing and has reached the conclusion that the average person stows away about 1,400 times his own weight in food and drink, or close to 150 tons.

WIT AND HUMOR

She: "How do you like this dress I got for my eighteenth birthday?"

He: "Hm-m, it certainly has worn well."

A simple countryman saw a gaudy-plumaged parrot on the roof of his cottage.

He climbed up to capture it.

The parrot looked at him and said sharply, "What do you want?"

The countryman touched his cap. "Beg pardon sir, I thought you was a bird."

Mrs. Dinocan: "I wonder if you would be so kind as to weigh this package for me?"

Butcher: "Why, certainly; it weighs exactly three and a quarter pounds."

Mrs. Dinocan: "Thank you. It contains the bones you sent me in that four-pound roast yesterday."

First Parachute Jumper—What a mess! We're going to land on that desert island and I'll bet it's full of wild men.

Second Ditto—Cheer up, Bud, where there's wild men there's bound to be wild women.

"You complain that you have tried to support your wife's family?" the court questioned the man seeking a divorce.

"Yes, your honor."

"How much of a family has she?"

"Four children, your honor."

"Who is the father?"

"I am, your honor."

One of the boys who lives outside New York has gone all out for gas conservation and bought himself a horse, which he rides down to the station mornings and home at night.

"It's great," his wife told a neighbor recently. "No more frozen radiators, no dead batteries or tire bills. And it's exciting, too. I never know which to expect home first—my husband or the horse."

He: "What would I have to give you for just one little kiss?"

She: "Chloroform."

First Old Maid—I shiver every time I think of a handsome young man kissing me.

Second Old Maid—And here I've been thinking you had St. Vitus dance all these years.

Hostess: "Now Tommy, why don't you go out and play with your little friends?"

Tommy: "I've only got one little friend, and I hate him."

A woman complained to a psychologist:

"My family thinks there's something wrong with me, and it's all because I like buckwheat cakes."

"But there is nothing wrong about liking buckwheat cakes," the doctor replied, puzzled; "I like them myself."

"Oh, do you?" The woman was delighted. "You must come up some day. I have seven trunks full."

"Halt; who goes there?"

"American."

"Advance and recite the second verse of 'The Star-Spangled Banner.'"

"I don't know it."

"Proceed, American!"

A veterinary surgeon was instructing a farmer as to a suitable method for administering medicine to a horse.

"Simply place this powder in a gas pipe about two feet long, put one end of the pipe well back in the horse's mouth and blow the powder down his throat."

Shortly thereafter the farmer came running into the veterinary's office in a distressed condition.

"What's the matter?" asked the veterinary.

"I'm dying," cried the farmer. "The horse blew first."

"When I get into one of those war arguments, I let the other guy do all the talking," chuckles Virgil F. Whiffletree. "He never finds out how dumb I am and sooner or later he exposes his own ignorance."

In the dimly lit conservatory Herbert had asked Elsie to marry him. She had consented with fitting modesty.

"Bertie, dear," she murmured, "am I the only girl—"

"Now, look here, dearest," he interrupted, "don't ask me if you are the only girl I ever loved. You know as well as I do that—"

"Oh, that wasn't the question at all, Bertie," she answered. "I was just going to ask you if I was the only girl that would have you."

"I see, dear," remarked the wife, reading from her newspaper. "that a woman has been awarded $2,000 for the loss of a thumb. I shouldn't have thought a thumb was as valuable as that."

"Perhaps she kept her husband under it," grunted her husband.

"Is it true that it costs $100 to have your family tree looked up?"

"Well, not exactly. I paid $5 to have it looked up, and $95 to have it hushed up."

ARMISTICE DAY 1942

By Ruth Taylor

*"Here lie we dead because we did not choose
To shame the land from which we sprung,
Life is perhaps no great thing to lose,
But young men think it is,
And we were young."*

We, who remember the casualty lists of the last war, walk with ghosts today. Besides the soldiers on our streets, we see those other lads whose lives were far too short, who loved life too greatly to be miserly with it when their country called.

In the Armistice Day pause this year, there will be new heroes to remember. Pearl Harbor, Bataan, Corregidor, Wake Island, the Solomons, the Aleutians, Dieppe—before this article appears there will be as many other places all over the globe hallowed by those who could say as did A. E. Housman in the "Epitaph for the Fallen"—"Here lie we dead because we did not choose to shame the land from which we sprung."

They have given their all—and it was so much! Who knows what great things they might have accomplished, what great good might have come to the world if they had been allowed to live, what things they might have created, discovered, invented, taught!

We have to face the fact that before this war is over, thousands upon thousands of these, our finest, will have died. We who are not on the firing line have a responsibility to those who fall. We (I) must be sure that not a single life is lost because of our (my) selfishness—our (my) selfishness in demanding the right to live as usual, in our (my) careless use of rubber or gasoline, in our (my) wasting of materials needed for their armor, in our (my) utilization for our (my) own purposes of transportation space essential to war purposes—and our (my) hesitancy in working where we (I) can be most useful in producing weapons for them.

We, too, though we cannot fight, must not "shame the land from which we sprung." We have a duty as binding upon us as that of any soldier as long as this war lasts. Afterwards we have another duty, too—that of seeing to it that they did not die in vain, that the promises made in the Four Freedoms are at last fulfilled for all the people of all the earth, and that those who come after may live as free men, unafraid in a free world.

Report of Delegates to the Sixty-Second Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor, Held in Toronto, Ontario, Canada, October 5 to 14, 1942

GREETINGS! The following report is submitted by your delegates upon attendance at the 62d annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Pursuant to law, the convention opened at 10 o'clock in the Royal York Hotel, Mr. William Jenoves, President of the Toronto District Labor Council presiding. The invocation was delivered by His Grace, Most Rev. J. C. McGuigan D. D. Most welcome and interesting addresses were delivered by the Mayor of the City of Toronto, Fred J. Conboy, the Premier of Ontario, the Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn and the Hon. Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labor, all of which were gratefully responded to by President Green, who spoke as head of an organization representing 6,000,000 workers, whose ranks have been increased by one million since the last convention held a year ago in Seattle. Quoting from President Green's address on the important influence wielded through the A. F. of L., Mr. Green stated:

"Delegates in attendance at this convention represent 6,000,000 loyal, devoted workers of the United States and Canada. That is a great army exercising tremendous influence both in the Dominion of Canada and in the United States. We are happy because we are privileged to meet as free men and women in a free country, in a free land and to exercise in a convention of this kind the right to shape our own policies and to administer the affairs of our own free democratic unions in a free land. . . . That is a great army of free men and women, appreciating fully and deeply the value of freedom, democracy and liberty, and banded together in a common cause for the definite and express purpose of preserving here on the North American Continent the exercise of an inherent right to establish free democratic trade unions, free from government control and with the right to administer the affairs of those democratic unions.

That is a conviction within the hearts and minds of our workers in the North American continent, and with a purpose to defend it even unto death itself.

The great issues involved in the World War transcend and overshadow every other question that could be presented or considered at this convention. We appreciate fully the significance of those issues, what they mean to the masses of the people, what they mean to the liberty-loving people of the Dominion of Canada and of the United States."

Mr. Green further outlined the policies and warnings that have been enunciated by the A. F. of L. since 1933 against the totalitarian nations governed by tyrants and dictators and stated that the A. F. of L. as a body in recent conventions sensed the seriousness of the situation and the necessity of our country taking definite and decisive action, and quoted the following declaration in his address from the 1940 Convention:

"We favor the extension of all help possible to Great Britain in her hour of need. We must face our profound duty to produce and produce as never before in order that our friends may win the battle for democracy. We know if Britain wins we win in America. . . .

"With the same awareness and foresight with which we of the American Federation of Labor interpreted international developments, our conventions each year called upon our government to strengthen America's defenses, to build up our Navy and keep ahead of foreign nations in the development of military aircraft."

President Green brought out the fact, however, that because we on the North American continent are a peace-loving people, we cling tenaciously to the principles of peace, but that living in a realistic world, we must band ourselves together with our peace-loving neighbors to promote these ideals of peace and preserve them, through any negotiated peace that may be affected after the war, so that the tragic lessons of the past will have their effect.

President Green brought out the whole-hearted manner in which the members of the Federation responded to the call for service when war broke out. He cited the amazing production advance in war industries, the construction of army and navy camps in record time, and the building of ships, as far ahead of schedule as labor's contributions to the success of the war effort. "It won't be long," he continued, "before we are ready to strike the enemy with our full might. Our fighting men, American and Canadian, are superior to the enemies' forces, and they will win for us."

Mr. Green devoted a considerable part of his address to the subject of labor peace. He informed the delegates that conferences between the AFL and the CIO peace negotiating committees are scheduled to start next month.

"I know I speak your sentiment when I say that we wish them godspeed in their efforts and we will do everything that lies within our power to make their work a full and complete success."

Some significance was attached to Mr. Green's statement "that one, perhaps two distinct units of the dual movement have about reached the point where they will come back again to the front door of the house of labor and ask for the privilege of coming back home."

"The need for unity is profoundly impressive. I will give all I can in order to promote the realization of that purpose and of that objective."

President Green then introduced the Fraternal Delegates British Trades Union Congress: Mr. Jack Tanner, representing the Amalgamated Engineering Union, and Mr. Arthur B. Roberts, representing the Miners' Federation of Great Britain. Canadian Trades and Labor Congress: Donovan Swales, who is President of the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council.

The Committee on Credentials reported upon the credentials of 501 delegates, representing: 87 International and National Unions; 4 Departments; 34 State Branches; 95 Central Bodies; and 58 Local Trade and Federal Labor Unions; and three Fraternal Delegates, and recommended that they all be seated.

On the second day of the convention, President Green read a message from President Roosevelt to the convention, and received the same for the Federation, assuring the President of the willingness of the membership of the A. F. of L. to respond to his every request and to every order which he may issue as Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States.

The Convention was addressed by Archibald McDonald Gordon, Labor Attache, British Embassy, Washington, who gave a very informative address as regards conditions in Great Britain at this time, which country is in its fourth year of war and is standing up magnificently to a hard time. "The heart of the country is however, sound and the spirit is as good as it ever was," he stated. He brought out that two-thirds of the people of Great Britain are in war employment or in the armed forces. The remainder of the population is rapidly being absorbed into the war effort. He also cited the many sacrifices and restrictions that have been necessarily placed upon the working people as regards longer hours and in many cases, free choice of employment. However, with all of this, there has been splendid co-operation between labor and trade representatives in the operation of the government. Prices have been controlled and better conditions have been imposed in the factories.

All of your delegates were appointed to act upon various committees of the convention. Delegate Harry J. Hagan served on the Committee of the Shorter Work Day; Delegate Walter M. Matthews served on the Committee of Industrial Relations; and President William J. McSorley served on the Committee of International Labor Relations and the Committee on Building Trades.

The Report of the Secretary-Treasurer showed that there was a balance on hand at the close of the fiscal year of $1,267,171.38, of which $1,049,359 is in the Defense Fund for local trade and federal labor unions, and the balance of $217,812.38 is in the General Fund of the Federation. During the twelve months ending Aug. 31, 1942, $1,270,258.91 was expended in organizing activities.

During the twelve-month period ending August 31, 1942, the Federation issued 351 charters to affiliated bodies. Of these, 24 were the central labor unions, 211 to local trade unions, and 116 to federal labor unions. During the same period 42 central bodies disbanded, 8 were reinstated, and 1 suspended. Secretary Meany's report shows that 40 local trade unions were disbanded, 152 suspended, 21 joined national or international unions, 1 charter was revoked, 10 were cancelled, 36 reinstated. Fourteen federal unions were disbanded, 74 suspended, 9 joined national or international unions, 9 charters were cancelled, and 16 reinstated. Four national or international unions were dropped during the year.

An interesting and informative comparative statement of membership was presented, together with a chart showing trends in membership in the Federation since its inception. It will be seen that the gain in membership reported to this convention as compared to the 1941 convention was 913,525. These figures are based upon the actual paid-up membership of the Federation at the close of the fiscal year on August 31, 1942.

The Executive Council's Report to the convention was covered in a booklet of 252 pages, and touched upon matters vitally affecting the Federation and the organizations that compose it. Among the more important subjects touched were:

Resumption of Peace Negotiations with the C. I. O. International Typographical Union.
Printing Trades — Lithographers.
Proposed Alaska Territorial Federation of Labor.
National Labor Relations Act.

On this subject, a number of illustrations were presented for the consideration of the convention which exemplify the hostile attitude of some of the administrative personnel of the National Labor Relations Board toward the American Federation of Labor. This situation is added proof of the need for passage of the amendments to the National Labor Relations Act which have been proposed by the A. F. of L.

Labor Standards on Government Contracts: Under this caption was presented a report of the operation of the Walsh-Healey Act which sets minimum wages, maximum hours and other working conditions. It was noted that, under the impact of war conditions, strong pressure has developed to lower standards prescribed by the Act, with particular pressure being exerted toward the elimination of premium overtime rates. An amendment to the Act recommended to Congress by the Secretary of Labor became law on May 13, 1942, permitting overtime work at straight pay under certain circumstances. In connection with the administration of the Walsh-Healey Act, it was pointed out that lack of effective machinery and sufficient personnel in the Division of Public Contracts to make new determinations, etc., makes the wages determined no longer the prevailing minimum wages and serves to lower the wage standards required by the statute to be maintained on government contract work. The Executive Board was unalterably opposed to the complete merger of the Division of Public Contracts with the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor.

Social Security — Because of the manifest importance of this subject to wage earners, the Executive Council submitted a comprehensive report of their conclusions and recommendations on this subject to the convention, and in addition, a report was made of the fund set aside for civilian aid necessitated by enemy action, and the effort made to get Federal funds to supplement state provisions for unemployment compensation to cover workers displaced in the conversion from peace to war industries.

Wage and Hour Law Administration — In its report on this subject, the Executive Council explained the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act and the Wage and Hour Law, the former merely expresses the right of the Federal Government to prescribe basic labor standards and to require that such standards be maintained in the manufacture of all materials and equipment it purchases; the latter law sets wage standards which are absolute minimum standards.

The Executive Council reiterated its view that the determination, administration and enforcement of prevailing wage standards under the Public Contracts Act need to be strengthened, and that they should be maintained separately and apart from the administration of the minimum wage standards through the wholly unrelated machinery prescribed by the Fair Labor Standards Act, and to this end recommended that the Administrator of the Public Contracts Act and the Secretary of Labor be called to reconstitute the Public Contracts Board, which is responsible for determination of prevailing minimum wages.

Labor and the Anti-Trust Drive — The council reported that the A. F. of L. and its affiliates have vigorously fought prosecutions under anti-trust law and thus far with considerable success. However, vigilance will not be relaxed because the Anti-Trust Division is persistent in its efforts to destroy fundamental rights of organized labor.

Housing for War Workers — The council reported under this head that actual war work and output itself were curtailed due to acute housing shortages in more than twenty key war production centers and pointed out that it is imperative that proper housing be provided for. For this reason, the conclusions and findings of the Federation Committee on Housing were presented in a comprehensive way for the information and guidance of wage-earners.

Hours of Work and War Time—Attention was called under this head by the Executive Council to numerous studies that have been made clearly showing that it is the course of wisdom to limit the hours of work in war production to 48 per week. (See Report of Committee on Shorter Work Day.)

Price Control and Rationing—A detailed account was given by the Council of price and rent control agencies, and they pointed out that rationing, to be effective, must be carried out through a co-operative partnership between the government and the citizens who shall have proportional representation in the administration of rationing. The council therefore recommended that the administration of all rationing should be placed under the Director of Economic Stabilization and that representative labor boards be set up for this purpose.

Wages in War Time—In this section of the report the Executive Council pointed out that war production is greatly affected by wage policy since, if workers feel that their wage policy is not fair and just, morale will be undermined by discontent.

The Council pointed out that the President's anti-inflation program calls for equality of sacrifice on the part of all groups. Since the per capita income of farmers this year is expected to reach an all-time peak, and salaries of business executives in many corporations have increased markedly since 1940, it is only just and in fact it is essential that workers continue to receive upward adjustments of wages, if we are to maintain our place in American society.

In discussing the subject of wage adjustments the Council called attention to the fact that wage increases are not in themselves inflationary. Inflation is not caused by the income people receive but by inflationary spending which can be controlled by special measures.

An adequate living standard is vital now and after the war. If our country is to return to private enterprise after the war, workers must have adequate reserves of buying power stored up in war bonds so that their war savings may provide a market for private enterprise.

War—Of particular interest to wage earners were the sections of the Executive Council's report dealing with the war policies of the Federation and the participation of representatives of the A. F. of L. on war agencies whenever opportunity is presented to do so. These sections included reports under the following titles:

"From Defense to War," which covers the transition from peace to war and the policies formulated for guidance during the war.

"Combined X Labor War Board."

"The President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice."

"National War Labor Board."

"War Production Board."

"Women and Children in War Production."

"Prison Labor in War Material Production."

"Manpower." This section is of vital concern not only to wage earners but to the very life of the war effort, and is especially commended to your careful thought and consideration.

Anglo-American Trade Union Committee, Pan-American Labor—The officers of the A. F. of L. were exhorted by the Executive Council to continue their efforts through the various committees and direct toward the formation of a formal organization for intercourse between national labor organizations of various allied nations, which committees might well be charged with the additional responsibility of developing proposals for the Armistice and for Labor's peace objectives, to be submitted when delegates are called to formulate the Peace Treaty; and in the case of the latter, toward working out a Pan-American program which will embrace not only support of the war by the nations of the Western hemisphere but to include as well a post-war program designed to strengthen and enrich the nations and all of the peoples of all of the Americas. The council reported that a sound beginning toward this end is already under way.

Peace Objectives—The council presented a general post-war program upon which a peace can be founded, organized labor to be represented in any delegation that negotiates the peace treaty, with a voice in determining the whole treaty.

There were 142 resolutions introduced to the convention, including the two additional resolutions received from the Building and Construction Trades Department, one on Compensation for Captured Wake Island Construction Workers and one on W. P. A. (See Resolutions 1 and 2 introduced at the Building and Construction Trades Department Convention, printed on pages 3 and 4, November 1942 issue of THE LATHER.)

The Hon. Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, delivered a lengthy address to the convention. She congratulated American labor on the way it has faced its responsibilities since the U. S. was forced into the second world war. Trade Unions, she said have demonstrated their sense of discipline and public responsibilities and she lauded the way the members kept faith in the dark hour when raids by the Japanese were made on Guam and Wake Islands. Others, she stated, have risked their lives in the noble work of keeping open the life-line of China over winding mountainous roads, delivering food and munitions to our Chinese allies. Others have gone to carry on their trade for Uncle Sam in other far-flung parts of the world in the defense of human freedom. Since Pearl Harbor, she cited, organized labor responded immediately to the President's call for uninterrupted production of greater and still greater supplies for the fighting forces of the United Nations. "Voluntarily labor set aside for the duration its basic right to strike against producers of war equipment, and intrusted the settlement of its legitimate disputes to the process of mediation and arbitration, these steps not being taken by governmental decree. Instead, the responsible representatives of organized labor and management met and agreed upon methods for settling their honest differences for the duration of the war. This is the way of free men."

She brought out the manner in which labor has participated actively in all of the Wage Stabilization programs proposed by the government, and in setting aside for the duration of the war one after the other of the long established practices that have been developed to protect members against low wages, poor working conditions and unemployment.

She also lauded the Federation upon its active promotion of the voluntary purchase of War Bonds and Stamps, and in urging its membership to authorize a payroll deduction for this purpose she outlined the benefits to be derived from the experiences of the War Labor Board when peace comes, and of the U. S. Employment Service. "Another lesson to be learned from the present situation," she said, "is the need to train men for skilled work... The need for systematic training on the job, guided by organized workers and employers, is as necessary today as it ever was, and will continue to be in the future. In times of labor surplus it was easy to overlook this need. Various theories as to the displacement of skilled men by machinery also encouraged an abandonment of systematic training. Today we are paying for our lack of foresight in employment problems arising out of shortage of workers with an all around apprentice training. At the end of the war we may again hear that skilled workers are no longer necessary. Let us fight off those councils, too."

"The Department of Labor realizes the importance of regulating the physical conditions of work places; conditions such as working schedules, safety appliances, sanitary equipment, rest periods, etc., and other conditions that surround a job may determine what kind of output, quantity or quality can be obtained over the long pull and what kind of human beings will be doing the work." She further advised that the Department of Labor is actively studying the means of building a good post-war world. Quoting from Secretary Perkins' address: "In this work we welcome your thoughts and suggestions. Surely here is a task that demands the best thought and imagination of organized labor, employers and the government alike."

"The co-operation that has thus far existed between labor and employers and the government to make and deliver munitions of war has been remarkable," stated Madam Perkins and she concluded her address with these remarks:

"The intelligence and public spiritedness with which the American workers have entered enthusiastically into every civic project for financing, for recruiting, for helping the armed forces, for keeping home fires burning and protected has given confidence in our undying devotion to our own basic unity of purpose in the United States of America.

"This record means much for labor and shows forth with certainty how Labor will contribute to win this war and hold this new peace as a precious opportunity to establish on earth some part of the Kingdom of Heaven for which we pray."

Others who addressed the convention were the following: Mr. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labour, Province of Ontario; Mr. Spencer Miller, Jr., Director of the Workers' Education Bureau of America; Edward J. Phelan, Acting Director International Labor Office; the Hon. Robert P. Patterson, Under-Secretary of War, U. S. A.; Jack Tanner, and Arthur B. Roberts, Fraternal Delegates, British Trades Union Congress; Donovan Swailes, Fraternal Delegate, Canadian Trades and Labour Congress; Harold Butler, Former Director International Labor Organization; Arthur J. Altmeier, Chairman, Social Security Board of the U. S.; Prime Minister of Canada, the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King; Roane Waring, National Commander, American Legion; Wendell Lund, Director, Labor Production Division, War Production Board; Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, Chief, Incentive Division, U. S. Navy; Daniel J. Tobin; Jos. A. Padway, General Counsel A. F. of L.; Hon. James J. Davis, U. S. Senator, Pennsylvania; J. F. M. Stewart, Chairman, Payroll Section, National War Finance Committee of Canada; Lord Barnaby, Member of the British Parliament, House of Lords; Lessing Rosenwald, War Production Board, Conservation Division.

Actions taken by the convention to promote policies and programs best calculated to further the war effort were as follows:

1—Called for the creation of an over-all board for Military and Civilian strategy to centralize and coordinate direction of the entire war program.

2—Reaffirmed and reinforced labor's no-strike policy.

3—Approved the new economic stabilization program, urging that decisions on wages be left entirely to the National War Labor Board.

4—Endorsed the Manpower Mobilization program, but declared there is no justification as yet for job-freezing.

5—Called for full labor representation on all war agencies of the Federal, State and local governments.

6—Pledged the six million AFL members to buy another billion dollars' worth of War Bonds in 1943, and renewed its endorsement of the present campaign to secure the investment of not less than 10 percent of income (on a voluntary basis however) of all wage earners, also that a report of such purchases be sent by all local unions, etc., from time to time, to the A. F. of L. office.

7—Initiated a sweeping program of trade union assistance to various forms of relief through the United Nations Relief Fund.

8—Adopted a momentous report on International Labor Relations calling for closer cooperation of the labor movements of the United States and Great Britain and closer relationships with Pan-American labor.

9—Declared that labor will take its place at the peace table after the war to assure world-wide peace and social security.

10—Endorsed union-management co-operation to speed full production in war plants by the formation of labor-management committees under the auspices of the War Production Board.

11—Pledged united strength to our Commander-in-Chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt and to our gallant armed forces of the army, navy, marines and air service.

12—It instructed the President and the Executive Council to appoint a Post-War Problem Committee. Among the resolutions referred to this committee was one on the question of post-war unemployment, three on the matter of "discharge compensation and financial aid for men in the U. S. Armed Forces and readjustment of our national economy; one on "wage readjustment for men discharged from the Armed Forces and War Production," and one on the unworkability of Isolationism as a national policy in world affairs.

13—Adopted a resolution calling upon the War Production Board to change and modify the restrictive terms defining "defense worker" and so broaden the scope of that classification so as to enable our members who are engaged in any phase of work for the prosecution of winning the war, to qualify or be enabled to rent or purchase property through the machinery of the Federal Housing Administration with the approval of the W. P. B.

Report of Committee on Building Trades—In order that our members may have full information upon the subject of Housing and matters affecting the Building and Construction Trades Department, we are herewith quoting the entire report of the Committee on Building Trades to the A. F. of L. Convention from the proceedings thereof:

"Committee Member McSorley: 'Pinch-hitting for President Coyne of the Building Trades Department, as Chairman of the Building Trades Committee, I desire to state that the committee is now ready to make its report, and it will be read to the convention by Delegate McDevitt, the secretary.'

Delegate McDevitt, Secretary of the Committee, reported as follows:

Local Housing Authorities Resolution No. 116—By Delegate C. J. Haggerty, California State Federation of Labor.

WHEREAS, One of the points of production that is absolutely essential to the successful carrying out of the production war machinery in America is the quick establishment of housing facilities for war workers in sufficient quantity and quality, and located close to the war plants, and

WHEREAS, The plans for the construction of such housing is under the supervision of the Federal Housing Authority and National Housing Agency, jointly, creating cumbersome machinery and sometimes operating in opposite directions, and

WHEREAS, Local housing authorities have been set up in various cities and are of limited authority, and

WHEREAS, It is believed that if these local housing authorities had a greater scope of authority and discretion, the problem of war housing would be facilitated very materially, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That the American Federation of Labor recommend to the proper authorities that the local Housing Authorities be vested with the democratic right to determine the needs of their respective localities; be designated the sole agency for determination of such need; be granted the power of development of a reasonable and equitable method for securing without undue delay, from the Federal Government, the necessary funds to plan, construct, and manage War Housing projects with the highest coordination of skills; to the objective that American workers will be fittingly housed to produce to their greatest capacity in the service of our ultimate victory, and be it further

RESOLVED, That the President of the Federation be instructed to appoint an appropriate Committee to consult and work with the Housing Authorities in the State.

This resolution seeks to provide greater authority for local housing agencies. Since these local housing authorities are established by enabling legislation of the various states, your Committee is of the opinion that the matter should be referred to the Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor for further study, and so recommends.

Committee Secretary McDevitt moved the adoption of the committee's report.

The motion was seconded and carried.

Housing for War Workers—This section of the Executive Council's Report discusses in detail the serious housing shortage for war workers throughout the United States. Lack of proper housing is seriously interfering with current war production by creating artificial labor shortages, impairing the effort of war workers employed, by undermining their health and increasing sickness, lowering productivity of war workers in quantity and quality, because ill-housed war workers without adequate quarters, for rest and recreation cannot overcome the effects of cumulative fatigue, with the inevitable result that efficiency declines, accident rates rise and war output is slowed down, and finally it makes for constant turnover in personnel as workers leave one job for another where better housing is available.

This is one of the most serious problems confronting our Government in securing maximum production of war materials and we strongly urge that the Executive Councils of the American Federation of Labor and of the Building and Construction Trades Department give this situation careful study in order that proper housing facilities may be made available. Every effort should be made through consultation with Government Agencies entrusted with the responsibility of providing housing for war workers to correct this condition so that an all-out production record may be achieved.

Committee Secretary McDevitt moved the adoption of this section of the Committee's report.

The motion was seconded and carried by unanimous vote.

Housing Regulations—This section of the Executive Council's Report outlines the manner in which the various Government Agencies that had been empowered or authorized to construct housing were merged under a new parent agency known as the National Housing Agency. This Agency is composed of three units:

The Federal Public Housing Authority—administering all public housing.

The Federal Housing Administration—administering all private housing

The Federal Home Loan Bank Administration—handling all loan financing.

The Housing Committee of the American Federation of Labor was consulted in the preparation of the reorganization plan, and its recommendations, made on behalf of the American Federation of Labor, were fully reflected in the final plan submitted to the President for promulgation.

This reorganization plan has resulted in greater efficiency and has contributed much, to our efforts to relieve the acute war housing shortage. The policies of the National Housing Agency are set forth in this section of the Executive Council's Report and your Committee recommends that the Housing Committee of the A. F. of L. use its best efforts to have this agency conform, wherever possible, to local building codes and provide for the erection of housing units of permanent type.

Committee Secretary McDevitt moved the adoption of this section of the Committee's report.

The motion was seconded and carried by unanimous vote.

Progress of Public Housing Program—The progress of war housing construction is discussed in this portion of the Executive Council's Report and the A. F. of L. Housing Committee vigorously supported amendments to the Lanham Act, increasing by $600,000,000 the amount previously authorized in order that the accumulated housing deficit in war production areas could be met. We are informed that H. R. 712 providing this appropriation has passed the House and is now in the Senate.

Your Committee is confident that our Housing Committee will continue to exert every effort to bring about the granting of this much needed appropriation, and we commend them for their efforts in this connection.

Committee Secretary McDevitt moved the adoption of the committee's report.

The motion was seconded and carried by unanimous vote.

Effect of Shortage of Materials on War Housing—In this section of the Executive Council report the subject of the shortage of critical materials for war housing construction is discussed at some length, as well as the type of construction best adapted to war needs. It is reported that the National Housing Agency in its future program contemplates the construction primarily of temporary housing units, regardless of location, rather than permanent type of dwellings.

Your Committee wishes to express its opposition to this policy and urges the A. F. of L. Housing Committee to prevail upon the officials of the N. H. A. to reconsider their proposed program in order that provision may be made to conform as nearly as possible to permanent housing construction. Your Committee is of the opinion that the attitude of the Government on construction of homes for war workers should be favorable to permanent type construction rather than temporary as we believe that such action on the part of the Government will save money as well as safeguard the standards of safety and sanitation which are necessary to maintain both the morals and morale of our Defense Workers in their homes, and if and when temporary units are found to be essential to war production needs, that such units be restricted to rural areas. The Committee notes with alarm that ever increasing number of so-called Jerry Builders that are presently engaged in the home construction field financed by our Government to the detriment of the responsible private builders who have scrupulously followed sound construction standards and ethics while the Jerry Builder continues to disregard standards both with respect to wages and materials. The Committee wishes to reiterate the policy of the American Federation of Labor to encourage and promote the interest of the responsible building constructors both general and sub.

Your Committee recommends that this subject be referred to the Housing Committee of the A. F. of L. for immediate consideration and further recommends that this Convention go on record as being opposed to such N. H. A. policy.

Committee Secretary McDevitt moved the adoption of the committee's report.

The motion was seconded and carried by unanimous vote.

Housing Committee's Work—Your Committee is gratified with the results shown by the American Federation of Labor's Housing Committee in this report on their activities and accomplishments during the past year. Your Committee notes that the Housing Committee has made repeated efforts to have the National Housing Agency appoint labor consultants to work with them in order that the labor policies followed by the other Government Agencies engaged in housing construction previous to this merger may be carried out on all work undertaken by the National Housing Agency without any misunderstandings. Your Committee urges that our Housing Committee continue its efforts to achieve this much needed objective.

Your Committee wishes to commend the A. F. of L. Housing Committee for their activities during the past year and for their very constructive analysis of this vastly important program.

Committee Secretary McDevitt moved the adoption of this section of the committee's report.

Housing—Your Committee commends the A. F. of L. Housing and Legislative Committees for their efforts in obtaining the enactment of H. R. 6128, now known as Public 409 which amends the Lanham Act by increasing the authorization of public war housing from $300,000,000 to $600,000,000. Their efforts also resulted in the enactment of H. R. 6927, now known as Public 559, which increased by $500,000,000 the amount of mortgages which may be insured under the provisions of Title VI of the National Housing Act under which the Federal Housing Administration was established.

It is also noted that our Housing and Legislative Committees used their best effort to have H.R. 6483 enacted into Law without change. This was approved on April 10, 1942 (Public 522) and authorized $30,000,000 for a public housing program to meet the emergency housing conditions in the District of Columbia. It also authorized $20,000,000 for public works necessary to construct water supply, sewers, and other facilities essential in connection with such housing. However, Public Law No. 650, approved July 2, 1942, made appropriations to carry out this program and drastically curtailed these appropriations, providing only $15,000,000 for housing—just half the originally authorized amount—and only $17,500,000 for the necessary public works.

Your Committee recommends that the A. F. of L. Housing and Legislative Committee continue their efforts to have an additional appropriation made to provide for the difference between the originally authorized appropriations and those granted in Public Law No. 650.

Committee Secretary McDevitt moved the adoption of this section of the committee's report.

The motion was seconded and carried by unanimous vote.

Building and Construction Trades Department—The Building and Construction Trades Department in its report to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor for the past year reports eminently successful operation of the 1941 Construction Stabilization Agreement between that Department and various government agencies. This agreement establishing labor policy on all government defense and war construction projects has received praise from public and government officials throughout the nation. It has made possible the completion of war construction projects substantially ahead of schedule.

Your Committee wishes to take this opportunity of commending the National and International unions affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department for the sacrifices they have made in surrendering many conditions which it had taken years to acquire, in order that more complete cooperation could be extended our government in its war effort.

We note with great pride too that the Building and Construction Trades Department has, this year, consummated a wage stabilization agreement with the same government agencies, stabilizing building and construction trades wage rates as of July 1, 1942. This agreement is the first of its kind to be entered into by the U. S. Government in the history of our country. This was also true of the 1941 Construction Stabilization Agreement. We can not too highly praise the officials of the Building and Construction Trades Department for their aggressive leadership and patriotism in, thus, again voluntarily committing themselves to a definite course of action in their all-out efforts to aid and assist in the successful prosecution of this war. In consummating the Wage Stabilization Agreement many privileges were again foregone. It is interesting to note that the stabilization agreement has been exempted by order of President Roosevelt from the provisions of Executive Order No. 9240.

The annals of the American Federation of Labor will record with honor the leadership of the Building and Construction Trades Department in pointing out the way toward complete cooperation between government, management and labor which we are sure will result in victory for the United Nations.

The Building and Construction Trades Department further reports that jurisdictional disputes while numerous were peacefully adjusted and we are informed that stoppages of all natures on construction projects during the past year constituted less than 3/10 of 1 per cent of man hours of total employment.

The officers of the Building and Construction Trades Department, it is noted, have cooperated at all times with the Legislative Committee of the American Federation of Labor supporting them in their efforts to secure enactment of legislation beneficial to the construction workers and labor as a whole.

The record of the Building and Construction Trades Department would be hard to equal and your Committee again commends them for their many great achievements.

In addition to the above matters referred to your Committee, we also discussed the compulsory utilization of rooms in private homes as a means of relieving the serious housing shortage in defense areas. We recommend that this convention go on record as being opposed to any such requirement by our government and further recommend that this convention heartily endorse voluntary listing of unused space in private homes and further recommend that cooperation be extended in any community drives to secure such billeting.

Committee Secretary McDevitt moved the adoption of this section of the committee's report.

The motion was seconded and carried by unanimous vote.

Committee on Building Trades.

Committee Secretary McDevitt moved the adoption of the report of the Committee on Building Trades as a whole.

The motion was seconded and carried by unanimous vote."

The following resolutions of the utmost importance to the wage-earner were referred to the Executive Council for early consideration and necessary action: one dealing with the maintenance of Collective Bargaining Agreements; one dealing with or opposing national and state Sales Tax; and one calling for standardization of wages before stabilization, which latter resolution was drafted prior to passage of recent legislation on this subject, and due to the great problem involved, was so referred to the Executive Council as above stated.

Other actions taken by the Convention on important subjects follow:

C. I. O.—The convention, recognizing the need for unity in the ranks of labor, with a view toward successful negotiations, urged that all bitterness of feeling be eliminated and hostilities cease and so approved of an armistice as an essential evidence of good faith and sincerity.

Adopted the report of the Executive Council regarding introduction and progress through Congress of legislation to permit members of the Armed Forces of the U. S. to participate in elections by absentee ballot.

That portion of the Executive Council's report dealing with the introduction in the 77th Congress of H. R. 7534 by Representative Eliot of Massachusetts (a bill to amend the Social Security Act, proposing important changes, including extensions of its scope, and an increase in the Social Security Tax) was referred to the Committee on Social Security of the A. F. of L., with instructions that previous to the introduction of legislation to amend the Social Security Act, all organizations whose membership may be affected, either beneficially or adversely, be consulted.

Other resolutions referred to the Committee on Social Security were the following: one calling for medical care of war workers and their families; one on low-rate hospitalization; one calling for social security for those in the armed forces; one providing for the inclusion of public employees in the Social Security Act; and one on the question of retirement pensions.

Adopted a resolution calling upon the constituted authorities and agencies of the Federal Government to commit themselves without reservation to a guarantee of the restoration of every right and privilege of organized labor with the passing of the present national emergency.

Went on record in favor of the Anti-poll tax Bill.

Reaffirmed previous action in favor of maintaining the Civil Service Commission as a bi-partisan tribunal and as an independent agency. It also provided that at least one of the Commissioners shall be selected with particular reference to his active interest in organized labor. Also went on record endorsing the enactment of a law establishing a Civil Service Court of Appeals.

Endorsed a resolution calling for the recognition of War Service of Merchant Seamen after the war equivalent to the honorary discharge given to the armed forces when they are mustered out.

Endorsed the United Seamen's Service, Inc., and called upon all affiliated organizations and Organized Labor as a whole to endorse this project and to donate financially, making donations payable to the Secretary-Treasurer of the United Seamen's Service at Washington, D. C.

Commended the recognition of women in the field of organization, recognizing their growing place in our national and industrial life and further urged that every possible encouragement and assistance be granted to unions seeking to enlist women in our movement. Urged that equal pay on the job be made the prevailing practice, this being a matter of justice to the women which will protect the pay of all.

Adopted a resolution that "when and if it becomes necessary to employ Child Labor (in this crisis) in industry, the working conditions and educational facilities of children shall be subject to rigid controls established and supervised by experienced teachers or other persons adequately trained in the care of children."

Printing Trades — Lithographers — That portion of the Executive Council's report upon this subject, which showed that conferences have been held between the interested International Unions, was adopted and it was further recommended that these conferences be continued with the view of adjusting this matter at the earliest possible date.

Adopted the supplementary report of the Executive Council and a resolution expressing confidence in the judgment of the International President of the American Federation of Musicians and the 590 accredited delegates to the Dallas Convention of that organization in their back-to-the-wall endeavor to retain the last vestige of employment for union musicians. This with reference to their fight against unemployment in their ranks caused through the manufacture of records and transcriptions, and dispute over same, and with broadcasting companies.

Adopted several resolutions and the report of the Executive Council dealing with wage adjustments and betterment of working conditions for postal and other government workers.

Railway Employee's Department—The convention adopted that part of the Executive Council's report under this title which pointed with pride to the remarkable contribution which railroad members are making and sought sympathetic consideration of railroad management and the public to the end that their efficient, patriotic service may be continued.

Race discrimination—Reiterated its former stand and declaration against any form of discrimination on account of either race, color, religion or national origin, and voiced its approval of the recent Executive Order of the President intended to accomplish the praiseworthy elimination of racial distinction between wage earners and the citizens of the United States.

Proposed Alaska Territorial Federation of Labor—The Convention approved that portion of the Executive Council's report upon this subject, which outlined the difficulties thus far encountered in its formation.

Hawaiian Islands—Approved the Executive Council's report under this title which report pointed out the many problems confronting labor here since the war, due to their exposed position in the Pacific. The council further commended the cooperative spirit which labor is maintaining with the army and navy authorities in these Islands.

Naval Bases in the Caribbean—Adopted the report of the Executive Council under this title, which report outlined the union conditions existing here as being favorable and comparable with those existing in the United States proper.

Panama Canal—Adopted several resolutions calling for better working conditions, and higher wages for workers in this zone, as well as a resolution providing for the allowance of legislative representatives from organized workers to proceed to Washington under instructions, regardless of position, leave, or quarters status.

Adopted a resolution calling upon the Federation to continue to render all possible moral and financial assistance to the labor movement of Puerto Rico in their efforts to establish an adequate standard of living for all the workers and to see to it that a proper form of permanent government is established in the Island.

Report of Committee on International Labor Relations—This committee, of which your Delegate William J. McSorley was Chairman, had referred to it several excerpts from the Report of the Executive Council, and two resolutions. The Committee commended the International Federation of Trade Unions, whose center of operations is now London, England, for its vitality and aggressiveness under trying circumstances. It also recommended the fullest measure of cooperation of the Federation with the I. F. T. U. as it keeps aloft the banner of free trade unionism in a world of revolution.

This committee upon the subject of International Labor Office, reported the I. L. O. is devoting much of its time and resources planning post-war reconstruction, having the benefit of World War I, experience in this field. Quoting from the Committee's report:

"This agency, which owed its inception to labor and has enjoyed labor's warm support for twenty years today, has the privilege of serving as the voice of labor from those countries where the free trade union movement has been suppressed.

The work of the I. L. O. has been signalized during the last year by the event of a truly world-wide significance. The convening of an extraordinary session of the International Labor Conference at Columbia University in October and November, 1941, was both an 'act of faith' and the essence of the strategy of victory for the free nations."

The Executive Council in its report has noted in some detail the topics considered and the findings of the Conference. There emerges in any review of this historic meeting the unanimous adoption of the so-called American Resolution dealing with the post-war emergency and reconstruction and authorizing the I. L. O. to be represented in any Peace Conference following the war. Your committee regards this broad resolution of far reaching importance . . .

There has taken place the meeting of the Emergency Committee in London in April, 1942, attended by our Worker Representative Robert J. Watt, the Joint Maritime Commission held two months later in London with delegates from 15 countries and the more recent Inter-American Conference on Social Security at Santiago de Chile. To these should be added the conferences in Montreal and New York on Labor, Management and Government cooperation."

The Committee urged every possible effort be made to secure for the I. L. O. adequate financial support to enable it not only to carry on the extensive program of research and administration in which it is now engaged but to extend and expand its work in keeping with the rapidly growing usefulness of its program, and in concluding its report on this subject, the Committee stated "that total war can end only with total victory, but victory can not be military alone. It must be a victory for the principles of social justice upon which enduring peace alone can rest."

The committee also in reporting upon Resolution 22 which was in favor of going on record favoring an International Conference of Labor Unions of Great Britain, Russia and the United States, recommended in lieu of this resolution concurrence in the report of the Executive Council on this subject, as the committee was under the impression that this service could be best served by the International Federation of Trade Unions.

Pan American Labor—Reporting on this subject, the committee recommended "wholehearted approval of the work of the Executive Council in exploring the possibilities of a Pan-American Conference for the purpose of developing channels of consultation and cooperation to promote higher standards of living with broader educational opportunities for all the workers of the whole American continent, and recommended that efforts to bring about a Pan-American Labor Conference be continued. The committee recommended further that the Executive Council consider the advisability of creating an Inter-American Labor Council or other agency, for purpose of obtaining and disseminating to labor in all of the Americas, facts pertinent to the war effort, the maintenance of independent trade unionism throughout the hemisphere and keeping labor informed on the economic, social and material interests which they have in common."

The committee also expressed its approval toward every effort that is being made to assure an early restoration of Jewish Nationhood in Palestine and with the maximum of international aid.

United Nations Relief Fund—Labor's League for Human Rights—The Committee explained the noble purpose of this Fund, which has been formed by the trade union movement, chief among which is the supplying of relief to the peoples of the Old World who have been so brutally afflicted and tortured under Nazi rule, and urged affiliated unions and their members to render every possible support in carrying forward the program of Labor's League for Human Rights, United Nations Relief in the Building up of a unified program of relief and aid to all fighters against the Axis Powers through their Community and War Chests where they exist, or through Labor's own organization where no Community or War Chest exists.

Placed in the record were the facts and information presented by Delegate Hochman, Ladies Garment Workers, attesting to the atrocities and crimes committed under Nazi rule particularly in the following countries of Europe:

Yugoslavia, Greece, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Norway, Holland, France and Poland.

The report of the Committee on International Labor Relations was unanimously adopted. Those serving on this committee were: Wm. J. McSorley, Chairman, Matthew Woll, Secretary, William Green, D. J. Tohin, Geo. L. Berry, W. D. Mahon, Wm. L. Hutcheson, Wm. J. Bowen, Albert Adamski, Jos. V. Moreschi, Jos. P. Ryan, E. E. Milliman, J. A. Franklin, John P. Frey, Christian M. Madsen, Edward Flore, Henry F. Schmal, W. C. Birthright, John B. Haggerty, P. J. Morrin, Felix H. Knight, James Maloney.

Report of Committee on Shorter Work Day—This committee had referred to it that portion of the Executive Council's report entitled "Hours of Work in War Time" and reported that the unions affiliated with the Metal Trades Department, whose members are employed in the West Coast Shipyards were among the first to respond and establish work schedules and provisions for overtime pay for round-the-clock operation. Many of the other production industries were slow in establishing round-the-clock operations in their plants, and there are even now war production industries that are not so operating. These plants depend on overtime work, working their employees long hours per day and sometimes 7 days per week in order to meet their production schedules. Every effort should be made to discontinue this practise, and a program of 3 shifts per day should be instituted wherever possible.

The committee brought out in its report the argument presented of the anti-labor interests for abolishing the 40-hour week. However, since the early months of 1942, there has been a general realization that after the work week has reached 48 or 50 hours, further lengthening of hours seriously impairs the efficiency, health and productivity of the worker and causes fatigue, and absenteeism. The committee called attention further to the following part of the Executive Council's report and warmly commended the council for its comprehensive report and sound recommendations and recommended concurrence:

"A study made by Princeton University in January and February, 1942, gave the first conclusive information on the length of the work week for maximum wartime efficiency in this country. This study covered 128 companies employing approximately 2,000,000 workers in war industries. The opinion of executives of these plants was predominantly that the 8-hour day and 48-hour week constituted the optimum work schedule on war work. The industries covered were: steel, shipbuilding, heavy machinery, aircraft, automobiles, small arms and ammunition, light machinery, tools, instruments. . . .

"On July 28, eight Government agencies joined in recommending that the work week in war production plants be limited to 48 hours. This recommendation grew out of the experience of the War Department, Navy Department and Maritime Commission with longer hours of work in war production plants and shipyards. The feeling among those responsible for war work is that hours longer than 48 per week are not efficient and do not produce the best results in war work. The statement was signed by Robert E. Patterson, Undersecretary of War; Ralph Bard, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Admiral Emory S. Land, Chairman of the Maritime Commission; Paul McNutt, Chairman of the War Manpower Commission; Donald Nelson, Chairman of the War Production Board; Wayne Taylor, Undersecretary of Commerce; Dr. Warren F. Draper, Acting Surgeon-General; and Daniel Tracy, Assistant Secretary of Labor.

Significant points in the statement are:

1. While a 40-hour week is generally accepted in peacetime, there is a widespread and increasing agreement as a result of actual experience, both in this country and abroad, that for wartime production the 8-hour day and 48-hour week approximate the best working schedule for sustained efficiency in most industrial operations.
2. Plants now employing individual workers longer than 48 hours should analyze time lost because of absenteeism, accident, illness, and fatigue and reexamine the possibility of training additional workers. They should introduce the schedule that will maintain the best rate of production.

3. One day of rest in seven should be the rule.

4. A 30-minute lunch period is desirable.

5. Vacations are conducive to sustained production.

6. There should be uniformity in hours schedules of plants in the same industrial area to prevent pirating.

"American Federation representatives on the Advisory Committee to the War Manpower Board signed this declaration, after making it clear that the 48-hour week policy is definitely an emergency measure and that the 40-hour week is the generally accepted peacetime standard.

"We cannot emphasize too strongly that the use of the 48-hour work week in wartime should not be permitted to jeopardize the 40-hour standard in peacetime. The work week of maximum productive efficiency is by no means the only consideration in peacetime. After the war we will necessarily have a reduced volume of output, since military production will cease. Our manpower will be increased by the millions returning from the military services. Productivity of plants will have increased, and a vast supply of new materials will be available, developed by war needs. Under these conditions, and considering the need of leisure so that workers may enjoy opportunities for recreation, civic, education and other activities, we must look forward to the 40-hour week standard after the war as the social optimum of our country."

The committee on Shorter Work-day further recommended that all affiliated unions make every effort to return to their standard of working hours, that they enjoyed prior to our entry into the war, when the President of the United States proclaims that we are no longer at war, in order to prevent unemployment and make it possible to employ all of our returning soldiers.

The report of the committee was adopted. Serving on this committee was your Delegate Harry J. Hagen.

Report of Committee on Education—The various portions of the Executive Council's report under the following titles were adopted on recommendation of the Committee on Education:

1—Federal Aid to Education which was in accord with previous declarations of the A. F. of L., especially commending the "Permanent Committee on Education," for demanding a salary of not less than $1500 per year for every teacher as a means of preventing shortage of teachers in the nation.

2—Vocational Education and the contributions which the A. F. of L. has made in this field.

3—War Training—calling attention to the dangers involved in training on the job in relation to private contracts.

4—Workers Education Bureau—That portion of the Executive Council's report pertaining to the death of Thomas E. Burke who for fifteen years served as a wise and beloved President of this Bureau.

5—Labor Institutes and Conferences—Commended the Bureau for its leadership in setting up these labor institutes and those leaders who have sponsored their meetings.

6—Publications—The need of pamphlet materials which interpret the war to labor and labor to the public as becoming a matter of increasing importance. The Committee recommended that the Bureau as the oldest central agency in the country devoted to workers' education extend the range of its publication on the problems of a war and post-war economy for the service of labor and the public.

7—Affiliations—The committee urged that all national and international unions, state federations of labor and central labor unions be urged to affiliate with the Bureau, so its service can be more widely extended.

8—Cooperation With Bureau of Labor Statistics—The committee recommended that all affiliated bodies cooperate with the A. F. of L. and the Bureau in its continuous study of post-war labor problems. The Bureau will be glad to send information and if necessary, field workers to help unions establish their own post-war committees to educate their members on post-war problems.

The convention adopted all of the resolutions dealing with the subject of Federal Aid on Apprenticeship. It was the opinion of the committee that these resolutions represent a reasonable request for the extension of an educational service of government which is vital to the labor movement, which is doing an excellent piece of work, and which is seriously understaffed at the present time. The rapid expansion of vocational education in relation to the war effort and the important problems arising from the training of thousands of mechanics for war purposes emphasize the need for greatly extended service by the Federal Apprenticeship Committee.

The convention adopted a resolution on the subject of Curriculum and Closing Public Schools and which resolution contained a constructive program affecting the public schools in the present crisis, for all affiliated locals, state, national and international bodies to follow.

Adopted a recommendation of concurrence in the general objectives of a resolution which was referred to the Permanent Committee on Education, and which "calls upon the President to establish a Commission on Labor Education and Morale under some appropriate agency of the federal government to initiate and operate a broad education program, assisting labor to understand and to take part in the war effort and in the post-war period, thus strengthening labor's cooperation with the community and with Government departments and strengthening the war effort, and that in the organization and conduct of this commission, the active help of organized labor be used, both in the initial stages of planning and policy making, and in the operation of the program."

Referred to the Permanent Committee on Education, for further study, the following resolutions: one dealing with the subject of Training Within the Plant and one dealing with the subject of Merchant Marine Training Schools.

Referred to the Post-war Problems Committee a resolution providing for Rehabilitation of Disabled Military Servicemen and Women.

The Committee on Education brought out in their report the tremendous task and responsibility that will fall upon labor after the war in all countries of the Western World. Success in the post-war reconstruction will mean the final victory of labor. "The A. F. of L. was among the very first" they reported "to urge intensive planning and preparation in the field of educational re-construction and urged the governments of the United Nations to give immediately, when peace is established, such funds as are needed to provide financial support and credits for the re-establishment of educational institutions which have been destroyed by the dictators in the invaded countries, and further recommended that the A. F. of L. cooperate with other responsible agencies which are sincerely interested in the problems of building a better world after the dictators have been crushed."

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

AFL-CIO NEGOTIATORS MAKE PROGRESS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The American Federation of Labor and the CIO signed an armistice on Dec. 2

The agreement, entered into by the Peace Committees representing both organizations, calls for an immediate end to union raiding and jurisdictional warfare.

The conferees described their action as a most important first step toward actual amalgamation of the AFL and CIO. They also emphasized that it will be of tremendous benefit to the war production program, since the agreement will prevent delays due to union rivalry.

Having accomplished this initial and significant truce, the peace conferences recessed until later this month when negotiations to bring about a permanent merger of the AFL and CIO into a united labor movement will be resumed.

The truce, which will have to be ratified by the Executive Councils of the AFL and CIO, provides for the appointment of a joint committee of AFL and CIO representatives to hear and decide any jurisdictional differences arising between an AFL and a CIO union in the same field. If this committee fails to agree on its decision, it shall select an impartial arbiter to resolve the dispute. If the committee cannot agree on an arbiter within five days, the President of the United States shall be requested to name one.

"We recommend that this understanding shall remain in force until labor unity is effected", the announcement by the AFL and CIO Peace Committees stated.

The truce was proposed by the AFL Committee, composed of Vice Presidents Harry C. Bates, Daniel J. Tobin and William L. Hutcheson.

Their recommendation was made pursuant to the unanimous action of the recent AFL convention in Toronto which urged an immediate armistice with the CIO to end raiding. The convention declaration said:

"We are convinced if these (peace) negotiations are to be successful, bitterness of feeling must be eliminated and hostilities come to an end. Your committee believes that it would be difficult indeed for the unity committee to make satisfactory progress if in the meantime hostile raiding tactics continue. We, therefore, urgently recommend that this convention approve of an immediate armistice as an essential evidence of good faith and sincerity."

In very similar language, the agreement entered into between the AFL and CIO Peace Committees declared:

"We are convinced that if peace negotiations are to be successful and unity achieved, cooperation among our respective members and organizations

ATTENTION MEMBERS

Headquarters has been informed that fake advertisements are appearing in newspapers throughout the country, directing lathers to certain localities where there is supposed to be an urgent demand for lathers.

Some of our members took these ads at face value and went to the expense and trouble of going to these places, only to discover that no such shortage of lathers existed.

We are requesting all members, who may see any such advertisements anywhere, to immediately communicate with headquarters to verify if there actually is such a demand for lathers in the localities mentioned in such advertisements.

At present we have no calls for lathers from any locality.

THE CRIME OF HOUSING

(Bldg. Trades Union Press)

A survey of 16 shipyards by the War Labor Board shows that bad and inadequate housing is the main cause for workers staying off the job. More than 25,000 man hours are being lost daily in only 10 yards because of illness and severe inconveniences in the home life of workers directly due to the housing shortage.

We have said this before and we will keep on saying it. In order to maintain production for the war effort at top efficiency, decent and adequate living quarters must be provided for the men and women who do the work. The nation can not afford the loss of any number of ships, tanks and planes for the want of a decent roof over a worker's head.

AFL - CIO NEGOTIATES

must be encouraged and promoted. It is our belief that it would be extremely difficult to make satisfactory progress toward unity through these negotiations if, in the meantime, there is absence of practical cooperation between the two organizations. We agree to the establishment of a joint AFL-CIO Committee to hear and decide any disputed jurisdictional differences that may arise between the two above-named organizations."

At a press conference following announcement of the truce, AFL Chairman Bates said complaints could be filed with the new Jurisdiction Committee only by national and international unions affected. The committee will not consider disputes between two AFL unions or between two CIO unions, he added.

Members of the new Jurisdiction Committee will be named by the Executive Councils of the AFL and CIO when they meet to ratify the pact.

VICE PRESIDENT ORA A. KRESS DIES SUDDENLY

As this journal went to press, we received the sad news of the sudden death of our 5th Vice President, Ora A. Kress.

IN APPRECIATION

Mrs. Fannie B. Matthews, of Mobile, Alabama, widow of Brother Frank Matthews 26928, who died while working at the New River, N. C. Marine Base job, wishes to express her deep appreciation for the beautiful floral tribute sent by Local 503, Wilmington, and she also gratefully acknowledges the donations made by lathers, plasterers, and other friends working on this job.

JOHN J. BUCKLEY IS DEAD

We are grieved to record the death of Brother John J. Buckley, 14583, member of Local 72. Readers of these pages are familiar with his many interesting articles and poems.

Brother Buckley passed away November 19, after suffering from a malignant ailment for several years. His illness did not stop his pen. If anything, he applied himself more prodigiously and never failed to eulogize on the passing of a friend and brother lather, with comforting words to the survivors.

We shall miss his cheery letters and contributions.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty God to remove from our midst our Brother James Henry Lydon, No. 15384, who passed away October 19, 1942, be it

RESOLVED, That Local 68 extend its deepest sympathy to the relatives of the deceased; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the charter of Local 68 be draped for thirty days; and a copy of these resolutions be published in our official journal.

G. E. Lindquist, Secretary
Local Union No. 68

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty God in His wisdom to remove from our midst our beloved Brother Charles Wesley Adams, No. 26847, who has been a loyal member of our craft for many years, and

WHEREAS, Brother Adams has been a member of Local 109 during his entire membership—only those of Local 109 knew of his true fellowship and thoughtfulness toward his fellow workers—be it

RESOLVED, That we, the membership of Local 109, express the deepest sympathy to the family of our departed brother; and, be it further

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our journal.

H. S. Hyberger, Secretary
Local Union No. 109

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty God to remove from our midst our beloved Brother James A. Hill, No. 17905, and

WHEREAS, Brother Hill was business agent of Local 234, and will be greatly missed by our membership and also the labor movement here, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of Local 234, extend our deepest sympathy to the relatives of our deceased brother; and be it further

RESOLVED, that our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International Office for publication in our official journal.

Local Union No. 234
Jack Bailey, Secretary

Local 234 submitted a complete list of contributions on behalf of Bro. P. E. Benson 13358, which will appear in the next issue.

CORRECTIONS

Local 46's suspension of C. H. Kilgus 36073, published in the October issue, has been cancelled, as the brother is in the armed forces and has been issued an Armed Service Withdrawal Card. His name appears on Our Honor Roll commencing with this issue.

Withdrawal card issued by Local 244 to G. LaFata 34434, 7/31/42, published in the September issue, is void. Guiseppe LaFata 34433 should have been issued this card, at that time and such record has been made. Giovanni LaFata 34434, has, however, been issued a withdrawal card 10/20/42 and this is being published in this issue, along with that issued to Guiseppe LaFata 34433.

WIT AND HUMOR

"You spend all the money you get for clothes, Tom. Why don't you put something away for a rainy day?"

"Oh, that's all right. I've got the dandiest 20-dollar raincoat you ever saw."

"What did you give your baby for his first Christmas?" asked Mrs. Richards.

"We opened his moneybox," replied her friend, "and gave him a lovely electric iron."

Recruit: "How far is it from here to the army camp?"

Native: "About five miles as the crow flies."

Recruit: "How far is it if the blankety blank crow has to walk and carry a rifle?"

Another likely place for junk is back of the cushions in the car. We heard of a man who explored those depths the other day and recovered 17 cents, his wife's missing sun glasses, his own misplaced dog license, one and a half pairs of gloves, eight sticks of chewing gum, a brass lipstick holder and 172 hairpins.

—The Christian Science Monitor.

Woman—"I want some nice, big apples for my sick husband. Do you know whether they have been sprayed with poison?"

Clerk—"No, Ma'am, you'll have to get that at the drug store."

We've always wondered why Senate sessions are opened with prayer and now we know. The chaplain looks around at the Senators and then sends up a fervent prayer for the rest of the country.

The cavalry recruit was instructed to bridle and saddle a horse. Ten minutes later the sergeant-major came along for his mount and found the recruit holding the bit close to the horse's head.

"What are you waiting for," he roared.

"Until he yawns," answered the recruit.

He—I hear the garage man is selling off his daughters cheap.

She—What!

He—He has a sign out front, "Five Gals for a dollar."

A coquette is a woman without any heart who makes a fool of a man that hasn't any head.

"So your husband's in the Army now, Mrs. Worritt?"

"Yes, they've made him a gunner an' that's what he's been ever since I married him!"

"Always been a gunner?"

"Yes, ever since I knew him he's been 'gunner do this' an' 'gunner do that,' but he never did anything worth while!"

A Customer: "Why do you have an apple as your trade mark? You're a tailor."

Tailor: "Well, if it hadn't been for an apple, where would the clothing business be?"

Camp Kelly had a terrible dust storm recently and during the course of it a soldier took refuge in the cook's tent. While he was there he noticed that the lid of the soup kettle was off and he called the cook's attention to it.

"Listen, son," the cook grunted angrily, "I'll take care of my job, you take care of yours. Your job is to serve your country!"

"Yeah, but not to eat it!" snapped the rookie.

"Doesn't your wife miss you when you stay out 'till three in the morning?"

"Occasionally—but usually her aim is perfect."

Business man (rung up in error for the tenth time that morning)—No, this is not Universal Flowerpots, Limited. This is MacNab and Co. MacNab! M for murder, A for arson, C for choke, N for nepoticide, A for assault and B for battery!

A man was fumbling at his keyhole in the small hours of the morning. A policeman saw his difficulty and came to the rescue.

"Can I help you to find the keyhole, sir?" he asked.

"Thash all right, old man," said the other, cheerily, "you just hold the house still and I can manage."

"What kind of breakfast food does your wife serve?"

"Burnt bacon and scraped toast."

Teacher (warning her pupils against catching cold): "I had a little brother seven years old, and one day he took his new sled out in the snow. He caught pneumonia and three days later he died."

Silence for ten seconds. Then a voice from the rear: "Where's his sled?"

NUTRITION AND LABOR

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, under the direction of I. M. Ornburn, Secretary-Treasurer, is sponsoring a series of articles by outstanding scientists on the subject of proper food and diet.

This is one in a series of articles written by Dr. Mark Granbard, Industrial Workers Nutrition Specialist in the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, Federal Security Agency. Dr. Granbard is one of the Nation's outstanding biochemists and is a historian of science and student of food habits of primitive peoples and modern nations. He was professor at Columbia and Clark Universities; lecturer on science to labor unions since 1933; and is the author of several books on science.

With many European nations in the past and even to this day, bread was a staple food. It made up the bulk of the meal, and other foods were regarded as snacks. In the Middle Ages and in much of Europe even now, few vegetables are eaten with the dinner and bread accompanied each dish of soup, meat, fish or even the dessert. Bread and an apple are still a meal to many.

Bread and the cereals are man's oldest food. Our ancestors of many, many thousands of years ago collected the grain of wild grasses, dried them in the sun and ate them. In the course of time, they learned to crush the kernels between two stones, add water to the crude flour obtained, made the dough into cakes and baked them in the sun or on top of stones heated in the fire. It was the wife of primitive man who gathered the grain, milled and baked. In fact, most early gathering of seeds, roots and fruits was done by women, and in all likelihood, women were the great inventors during the early stages of agriculture.

The cakes were made at first from unleavened dough and were much like our biscuits. Man or rather woman learned, however, to put aside a piece of dough and use it as leaven or left-over for next time, and in this manner leavened bread was obtained. It was later found that yeast could make the flour rise even better.

The berries of our grains, wheat, barley, oats, and millet, all of which have been used for bread, are in reality seeds for the reproduction of the species of grass they come from. When placed in the soil, they grow. They consist of a very small germ which is the true seed, while the bulk of the berry consists of starch intended by nature to feed the growing germ before it has roots and can draw nurture from the soil. In addition, the entire berry is surrounded by a hard skin which is the bran.

Now, when the whole berry is crushed or ground, a crude, rather dark flour is obtained. This constitutes good nourishment. Starch is good for us because in our bodies it is broken down by active juices into smaller energy-yielding substances (carbohydrates) which finally yield sugar. Sugar is energy. It is absorbed in the intestine, enters our blood stream and is carried as fuel to every cell.

The germ, however, as minute as it is in proportion to the whole berry, is very rich in proteins, fats, oils, vitamins and minerals since it is meant to grow into the new plant until it can feed itself. Equally rich in minerals and vitamins is the bran. But it is the germ and bran that make flour dark.

As if to prove that man is not always guided wisely in his tastes and appetites, history presents us with the fact that even in ancient Egypt man did not like the looks and taste of dark whole grain flour. White bread was more pleasing to his eye and palate, and he also believed it easier on his digestion.

In the Middle Ages there were three kinds of bread available, black, brown and white, the latter being, of course, the most expensive. No sooner did the poor of Europe manage to earn a bit more with the spread of manufacture and commerce than they would have nothing but white bread. Black bread was regarded as crude, as the food of poverty. For these reasons the craving for white bread could not be stemmed.

To make white flour, the germ and bran have to be removed in milling, and man employed much thought and ingenuity to invent ways and means of accomplishing that. Little did he suspect that he was racking his brains to undermine his own health. By discarding the germ and bran, he deprived himself of the most important vitamin, B-1, and others, of protein so badly needed by the body for maintenance and repair of tissues and of the minerals. The starch of the berry has some proteins but very little. Hence, old-fashioned white bread was all right as a source of energy but not as a source of badly needed protective foods such as vitamins, minerals and some proteins. And since bread was consumed in large quantities and the variety of foods was not extensive in the diet, it can readily be seen that the damage was serious.

The discrepancy between what people wanted and what was really good for them could be seen just as sharply in the case of rice. Rice belongs to the same family of plants as wheat or rye — except that it prospers in swampy regions. It is the staple food of a slightly larger section of humanity than lives on wheat or rye. The rice-eating countries even today possess little variety in food. And there, too, white or polished rice was preferred by rich and poor alike. Hence, in the case of rice, taste and fashion caused the germ and skin to be cast away.

LATHER RESCUED WITH CAPT. RICKENBACKER

Included in Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's recently stranded party and rescued with him, was a lather. He is 2d Lt. James C. Whittaker (26874), member of Local 278 for many years and one-time business agent for this local union. We were very glad to learn of Brother Whittaker's rescue and trust he will soon recover from his harrassing experience

Minutes Of The International Executive Council Meeting Held At Dayton, Ohio, December 7th to 10th, 1942, Incl.

Monday Session, Dec. 7, 1942, Miami Hotel, Dayton, Ohio

Meeting called to order at 3 p. m. by First Vice President Hagen. Those in attendance were as follows:

First Vice President ..... Harry J. Hagen
Third Vice President ..... Joseph H. Duty
Fourth Vice President ..... John P. Cook
Seventh Vice President ..... John J. Langan
Eighth Vice President ..... Thomas Priestly
Tenth Vice President ..... J. P. Boyd
Eleventh Vice President ..... H. H. Fairbanks
Twelfth Vice President ..... C. R. Nicholas

General President William J. McSorley had wired the members of the Executive Council notifying them that Fifth Vice President Ora A. Kress of Dayton, Ohio, had passed away early December 4th, and requested their attendance at his funeral, after which a short session of the Council would be held. Most of the members of the Council arrived in Dayton Sunday, December 6, and those who arrived early enough, visited the funeral parlors where Brother Kress was laid out, and paid their respects. There were many beautiful floral pieces there from labor leaders and organizations in many parts of the nation.

The funeral was held early Monday afternoon, after short services at the funeral parlors. All of the above members of the Council, together with General President McSorley and Secretary-Treasurer Ford, accompanied the body to the cemetery as honorary pallbearers. Members of Local No. 30 acted as regular pallbearers.

The news of the death of Brother Kress, from sudden heart attack, was a shock to the officers of the International Union as it was to his family. Needless to say, the intelligent advice and experienced voice of Brother Kress, who had been a Vice President continuously since 1936, will be missed at future sessions of the Executive Council and other gatherings of our members.

A telegram was received from Second Vice President Haggerty of Los Angeles, California, explaining his absence. His message is self-explanatory and is as follows:

(Telegram) "Los Angeles, California
N. L. December 5, 1942

Wm. J. McSorley,
Miami Hotel,
Dayton, Ohio

Extremely sorry to learn of sudden death of Vice President Kress. Regret that I received your wire too late to obtain accommodations by either train or plane to permit me to arrive Dayton before Wednesday at which time business of short Board meeting would be completed. Please present my sincere sympathy to Vice President Kress' family and my regrets to the Board of inability to attend.

C. J. HAGGERTY."

A telegram was also received from Sixth Vice President Sal Maso which reads as follows:

(Telegram)

"Paterson, N. J.
December 8, 1942

Mr. Hagen,
Miami Hotel,
Dayton, Ohio.

Trouble at Paterson Defense Housing Job reason for inability to attend.

SAL MASO."

In the absence of Second Vice President Haggerty, who acts as Secretary of the Council at its meetings, Brother John Cook was selected to act in that capacity, by unanimous approval of the members present.

The Board gave consideration to the following subject matters which were referred to it by General President McSorley:

Case No. 1—Correspondence between the Occidental Life Insurance Company of California and the General President, relative to consideration of details regarding Group Insurance.

The data presented to the Council in this case referred to Group Insurance for members of our International Union. Numerous communications between the above mentioned company and General President McSorley, together with other data pertaining to this subject, were taken under consideration by the Council. Part of this data pertained to the insurance of this particular company including details under such heads as Regular, Double Indemnity, Dismemberment Benefits, Premium Rates, Payment by Members, Voluntary Insurance, The Retention and Experience Rating Formula, Group Accident and Sickness Benefits, and Medical Reimbursements, Standard and "Tailor Made" Contracts, and a questionnaire of the information required by the Insurance Company from applicants. This company now carries insurance on the membership of numerous large organizations, one of them covered by one of the numerous plans being members of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers of America. They state that since July 1, 1941, they have paid out nearly one-half million dollars to the members of this one organization alone. They are prepared to write Group Life Insurance and full coverage accident and health insurance on the members of our International Union at comparatively low cost. This protection would cover our members not only the time they are on the job but for 24 hours per day. All benefits would be paid directly to members or their families and are in addition to Workmen's Compensation and other forms of insurance.

The Council, after giving the entire subject matter as much consideration as their limited time would allow and taking into consideration the tremendous importance of this type of insurance to our members, especially the older members who would pay no more than others as the costs would be distributed and pro-rated over the entire membership, were unanimous in their expressions of a desire to give the entire matter further study on return to their homes. They therefore, recommend that the General President send to each Council member full details of this plan; and recommend further that the entire subject matter be referred to the next meeting of the Executive Council or to the next Convention, whichever meets first, for further consideration and action.

Meeting adjourned at 7:15 p. m.

Tuesday Morning Session, December 8, 1942:

Convened at 10 a. m.

Case No. 2—Appeal of Jesse B. Springer, 32941, against the Decision of the General President in the matter of a fine of $10.00 placed against this brother by the Pelican State Council of Lathers.

After a careful perusal of the evidence in this case, the Executive Council voted to sustain the action of the General President.

Case No. 3—Correspondence from Father Flanagan, head of the Boys Town Home for Homeless and Abandoned Boys, also correspondence from President Green in reference to the building and equipment of a Boys Trade School as an American Labor Memorial to the men in our Armed Forces who belong to the Trade Union Movement.

This case, as the heading signifies, pertains to the erection, equipment and maintenance of the American Labor Memorial at Father Flanagan's Boys' Home at Boys Town, Nebraska, and is to be dedicated to the members of organized labor who served their country during the present war.

Most people have heard of this world-renowned humanitarian and character building institution for boys, which was established 25 years ago for homeless, neglected and abandoned boys of all races and religious creeds from all sections of the country.

Boys Town was started by the humble and modest priest, Father Flanagan, who believes there are no bad boys, rather that they are victims of their environment and of ignorant and selfish parents, divorcees, deaths and similar causes, which result in broken homes and neglected children. Each religious group of boys lives up to its own faith and all receive religious training, considered by Father Flanagan essential as a foundation of good character.

At the present time, 500 boys are being taken care of at Boys Town. The trade classes at present are scattered in various buildings and in some instances are inadequate to accomplish the desired results. Some of this present limited space is being taken over for academic school work so that the development of a high grade school, properly equipped and with competent instructors, is now essential, if the boys are to receive the kind of training necessary to their future success and happiness. That is the reason Father Flanagan's proposal was submitted to and unanimously approved by the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor. President Green in part of his letter stated as follows:

"That the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. approves the plan of building a trade school for boys."

Father Flanagan in his letter to President McSorley states in part:

"It is not my purpose to solicit a contribution from your International Union or from any of your local unions. What I would like is permission to write to each member of your organization explaining the purpose of building a Trade School at Boys Town as a memorial to all members of organized labor who are serving their country during the present war, and giving each member an opportunity to contribute a small amount toward this project, the matter of contributing being left entirely to the discretion of each individual member and no suggestion will be made which might be construed to make it mandatory or compulsory. Each contributor will be issued a card and a certificate of appointment as an Honorary Citizen of Boys Town, issued by the Officers and Governing Board of Boys Town, the certificate being suitable for framing."

The Executive Council, after a review of the activities of this splendid institution and due consideration to the modest request for such a humanitarian purpose, unanimously approved of the action of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. and also voted unanimously in favor of complying with the request of Father Flanagan.

The Council adjourned at 1 o'clock.

Tuesday Afternoon Session, December 8, 1942:

Convened at 2:30 p. m.

Case No. 4—The Case of the funeral benefit of William A. Jones, No. 3195.

The Executive Council, after reviewing the extensive correspondence and other International records, voted unanimously in favor of paying the full five hundred dollar funeral benefit in this case.

Case No. 5—Uniform application of STABILIZATION AGREEMENT on all OVERTIME WORK FOR THE DURATION OF THE WAR.

This matter was carefully and thoroughly considered by the Council and its members are of the opinion that misunderstandings and other difficulties on jobs which have a detrimental effect on those involved, should if possible be eliminated, in order to avoid the unfavorable and sometimes disastrous results such misunderstandings create. In order to avoid such an effect on private construction during the war, and in order to place the lathing industry and its numerous integral parts in a more equitable and favorable position in the private construction field during the war, the Council recommends that local unions make the regulations of the Stabilization Agreement relating to Overtime Compensation apply on all overtime construction for the duration of the war.

Meeting adjourned 6:30 p. m.

Wednesday Morning Session, December 9, 1942:

Convened at 10 a. m.

Case No. 6—A communication from the War Production Board addressed to President Murray of the C. I. O. and President Green of the A. F. of L. and sent to all affiliated International Unions of both organizations.

This communication, six pages of important information, was prepared by the War Production Board (Labor Production Division) for the purpose of giving to the A. F. of L. and to the C. I. O. and their affiliated unions, information about the major functions of the War Production Board and described in catalogue form, a list of functions of immediate concern to labor, the various units directly responsible for the functions and the kind of relations which the Labor Production Division on behalf of labor, has established with these units.

The Council members are of the opinion that each local union representative should have a copy of this communication and should read and digest its contents carefully in order to have a comprehensive understanding of the functions of the War Production Board. The Council, therefore, recommends that the International Union make available copies of this communication to each local union representative, either in letter form or through the columns of The Lather. (This communication is published in full on pages 4 and 6 of this issue.)

Case No. 7—The question of OUR MEMBERS WORKING WITH OTHER TRADES under Section 52 of the Constitution of the International Union during the emergency.

In many sections of the Nation there has been a shortage of Carpenters and Boilermakers, while members of our organization in the same communities have been unable to secure employment at our trade. Section 52 of our International constitution prohibits a member from joining another union, whose jurisdiction claims conflict with ours, and at the same time retain membership in the L. I. U. In an endeavor to secure employment for our members, President McSorley arranged with the General Presidents of the Carpenters and the Boilermakers International Unions to have our members placed on permits of the local unions of these trades in localities where a shortage of mechanics of these two crafts prevailed, with the understanding that our members would not become members of these two International Unions, but would return to their own trade as soon as the Carpenters and Boilermakers had members of their own International Unions available to fill the jobs.

The Executive Council desires to express their appreciation for the attitude of the International Officials of the Carpenters and the Boilermakers in this matter and wishes to assure them that should the opportunity to reciprocate at some future date present itself, such action will be taken.

Case No. 8—Report of General President on the results of conference held with the NATIONAL HOUSING COMMISSION and all interests connected with the Lathing and Plastering Industry, on November 18, at Washington, D. C.

The National Federal Housing Commission had issued an order eliminating lathing and plastering on all temporary war and defense housing operations and, in order to have this order changed, President McSorley and other interests in the lathing and plastering industry held a series of conferences in Washington, one of which was with the Truman Committee, at which time they strongly protested against this discriminatory order. Through the influence of Senator Truman, who is opposed to such discrimination, the lathing and plastering interests were successful in having a new order issued in which the specifications on all jobs, where lathing and plastering had been eliminated, were changed and in their place a new section added to specifications calling for alternate bids for lathing and plastering on all jobs. Your Council strongly urges that on all jobs it is extremely necessary to perform a fair days work, if we wish to have some of the substitutes for lathing and plastering eliminated from the market and avoid issuance of such discriminatory orders as outlined above.

Case No. 9—Gas and Tire Rationing.

Communications pertaining to the above subject were received from the American Federation of Labor by President McSorley and referred to the Council. The subject matter is of such importance that the Council recommends the contents be printed in The Lather or included in the Minutes of the council.

GREETINGS:

I am glad to advise you that as a result of the efforts made during the past two months by our representatives on the Labor Policy Committee of the OPA, we were successful in securing an amendment to the tire rationing regulations which makes eligible for recapped tires authorized representatives of labor for the performance of their services directly related to the prevention or settlement of labor grievances and disputes in establishments necessary to the war effort. Enclosed is a copy of an official regulation which embodies this amendment.

The amended regulation is restricted to the services performed by labor representatives directly related to the prevention and settlement of labor grievances and disputes, in establishments engaged in war production and services. The regulation is necessarily restrictive because of the increasingly critical shortage of tires.

I want to emphasize that it is not only the patriotic duty of the American Federation of Labor representatives, but also their responsibility in pursuance to the national policy of the American Federation of Labor, to refrain from requesting tires under this regulation unless the use of such tires is absolutely essential and is indispensable in the performance of their work.

Fraternally yours,

(s) WM. GREEN, President,
American Federation of Labor."

New OPA REGULATION on TIRE RATIONING

During the past two months the American Federation of Labor representatives on the Labor Policy Committee of the OPA, have sought to secure an amendment to the tire rationing regulations, which would make labor representatives eligible to secure recapped tires when such tires are essential for the performance of their duties. Numerous conferences have been held with the officials of the OPA Tire Rationing Branch, and with the top OPA officials, regarding such regulation. We were finally successful in securing an amendment.

The Amendment of Tire Rationing Regulations, issued on September 29 and effective October 5, 1942, adds a new eligibility classification on List B of the basic regulation. The Amendment makes eligible to receive recapped tires passenger cars used principally to provide transportation services for the "transportation of authorized representatives of government, management, or labor to, from, between, or within establishments essential directly or indirectly to the war effort for the purpose of performing at such establishments services which are directly related to the prevention or settlement of labor grievances and disputes." The Amendment states further that "certificates may be issued to provide such representatives with transportation between their residence and the establishments at which they render such services, but not with transportation between their residences and fixed places of employment other than such establishments." The regulations provide also that such certificates may be issued "only when there are no other means of transportation adequate to the performance of such services by such representatives and only when the applicant shows that the vehicle to be equipped will be used economically and that he is making a reasonable effort to carry other passengers to work with him or to 'double up' with others working at the same or at nearby places."

Under this Amendment the eligibility of labor representatives for tires is extremely restricted. In view of the most rigid restrictions now in effect, however, it is felt that this regulation will meet the most urgent need on the part of labor representatives for automobile transportation where no other means of transportation are available to them, and where their services are related to the prevention or settlement of labor grievances or disputes.

The full official text of the Amendment follows:

Case No. 10—Purchase of Victory Bonds.

In order to provide as much support as possible to the special eight billion dollar Victory Bond Sale by the government this month, the Council recommends that the L.I.U. purchase $25,000.00 (maturity value) of Victory Bonds.

Case No. 11—Memorial to Fifth Vice President Ora A. Kress, our late brother and colleague.

In order to pay our respects to our late council member, Brother Ora A. Kress, whose sudden death was a shock and a distinct loss to the International Union, the Council recommends that the General Secretary-Treasurer have drawn up a suitable embossed memorial of condolence for presentation to Mrs. Kress.

Case No. 12—Election of Twelfth Vice President to fill the vacancy on the Council created by the death of Brother Ora A. Kress.

In accordance with our constitution, the sixth, seventh and following vice presidents automatically advance one step upward as vice presidents, thus leaving a vacancy in the office of twelfth vice president, which is filled by vote of the Council.

The name of Walter Turner of Local Union 104, Seattle, Washington, was submitted to the Council for their consideration as Twelfth Vice President and, after taking into consideration the fact that for many years we have not had a member on the Council from the Northwestern part of our territorial jurisdiction, the Council voted unanimously in favor of the election of Brother Turner for Twelfth Vice President.

WAR PRODUCTION BOARD LABOR PRODUCTION DIVISION Washington, D. C.

October 2, 1942

Dear Presidents Green and Murray:

The great complexity of the governmental organization for conducting the war frustrates the desire of the average citizen to address the appropriate authority when he has a problem to solve or a contribution to make to some part of the nation's war effort. Labor, as an organized group of citizens, bears on its shoulders the great burden of the war production program. The success of that program cannot be realized unless government draws upon labor for the full measure of its large resources. Correspondingly, government has the obligation to unfold its processes and its organization and to make them available to labor. We cannot afford to keep the machinery of government wrapped and concealed from the eyes of labor.

This letter has been prepared for the purpose of giving to the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and their affiliated unions, information about the major functions of the War Production Board. We hope that organized labor will thus be afforded a better understanding of what this agency is doing and how labor can join its efforts with government more effectively.

Described below, in catalogue form, is a list of functions of immediate concern to labor, the various units directly responsible for the functions, and the kind of relations which the Labor Production Division, on behalf of labor, has established with these units. You will appreciate, we are sure, that not all these relations are fully developed. Nevertheless we are striving to perfect our organization. We are going to do everything possible to insure labor's participation in the war production program, and to interpret the problems of the war production program to labor.

Establishment of Labor Policy Relating to War Production.

The Labor Policy Committee of the War Production Board consisting of Messrs. Fenton, Frey, and Masterton for the American Federation of Labor and Messrs. Golden, Green and Reuther for the Congress of Industrial Organizations, advises the Chairman of the War Production Board with respect to labor policies affecting war production. The Committee meets each week with the Director of the Labor Production Division, formulating and reviewing the policies under which this Division operates and examining the various activities of the War Production Board as they affect labor.

The War Production Board was established by executive order of the President to give central direction to the entire war production program. Thus the authority of its Chairman, Mr. Nelson, embraces a wide area of activity which vitally concerns workers in war industries.

The Labor Policy Committee was set up to represent and co-ordinate the interests of organized labor in the uppermost councils of war production.

Stabilization of Wages and Working Conditions.

It is unnecessary to review here in detail the work of the Shipbuilding Stabilization Committee. The Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor and the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers have cooperated with the War Production Board, the Navy Department, the Maritime Commission, and representatives of the several shipbuilding companies in the establishment of an agreement to stabilize wages and working conditions in the industry in the organization of the Shipbuilding Stabilization Committee, and in the administration and interpretation of the agreement. The outstanding success of this set-up for industry wide collective bargaining is a matter of record.

War Production Drive.

War Production Drive Labor-Management Committees have been organized in almost 1,500 plants. It is recognized by this Division that the success of these committees bears a direct relationship to the status of labor-management relations in the plants in which the committees are organized. A labor management committee is seriously handicapped if the relations between management and labor are unstable or one-sided. Each day, through the accumulation of experience, more knowledge is gathered about what are the elements of success in the operations of labor-management committees. The staff of the Division sifts the experiences of the committees, assists them in the solution of problems which they encounter, and passes on to the committees the fruit of the experiences of the committees collectively.

Chairman Nelson will soon appoint a War Production Drive Board consisting of two representatives of labor, two representatives of management, and a chairman, who will formulate the policies which are to govern the operations of the War Production Drive.

The Labor Production Division is equipped to render assistance to labor groups in the conduct of rallies and mass meetings in connection with the war production program.

Disputes.

The staff of the Labor Production Division includes Labor consultants who have been drafted from the ranks of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations to assist in the handling of certain labor disputes affecting war production. Working with management consultants who are also attached to the Division, the labor consultants aid the Conciliation Service and the War Labor Board in various kinds of situations, some of which are suggested below:

(1) Disputes arising out of conditions primarily related to the conduct of war production such as a company's refusal to convert rapidly to war production.

(2) Disputes which originate because of internal trade union situations.

(3) Disputes arising out of War Production Drive Committee activities.

It is the policy of the Labor Production Division to extend its services in connection with disputes only as a supplement to the services of the Conciliation Service and the War Labor Board. The Division participates only at the request of the international unions concerned.

Mobilization of Manpower.

The Director of the Labor Production Division is a member of the War Manpower Commission. The Labor Policy Committee of the War Production Board also sits as the labor half of the War Manpower Labor Management Committee. The Labor Production Division constantly consults with and advises the War Manpower Commission on labor's interests in manpower problems and policies.

Industry Branches and Divisions.

The industry branches and divisions of the War Production Board are responsible generally for the organizations

Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union

In Memoriam

Ora Arthur Kress

The Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union has lost by death many eminent and beloved members. None are more genuinely mourned by its rank and file in the sense of personal loss to such an extent as is Brother Ora Arthur Kress, Fifth Vice President of our International Union, who passed away on December 4, 1942, at Dayton, Ohio.

By his death we have lost a beloved associate, whose outstanding character as a labor leader reflected high honor upon organized labor and whose memory is a worthy inspiration for all time. We inscribe upon the records these words from Kipling's "Dedication" as most befitting the estimable qualities of our late fellow-brother:

He scarce had need to doff his pride or slough the dross of earth -
Even as he trod that day to God so walked he from his birth
In simpleness and gentleness and honour and clean mirth.

Brother Kress was initiated in Local Union 30, Dayton, Ohio, January 19, 1907. His entire period of affiliation with our International Union was through this local union, which he served as secretary for more than twenty years. He represented the Dayton building trades for almost twenty years and resigned to assume the Sixth Vice Presidency of our International Union, to which office our International Executive Council elected him at their March 1936 meeting.

Our Seventeenth Convention, held in October 1936, re-elected him to this office and our Eighteenth Convention, held in September 1939, elected him as Fifth Vice President, which office he held at the time of his demise.

In view of the loss we have sustained by the death of our friend and brother, Ora Arthur Kress, Fifth Vice President of our International Union, and realizing to the fullest extent the still heavier loss sustained by those nearest and dearest to him, be it

Resolved, That on behalf of the entire membership of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, the International Executive Council adopt these resolutions in tribute to the memory of our late fellow-member and distinguished colleague: and be it Resolved, Further, that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the official minutes of the International Executive Council and that a copy be transmitted to Mrs. Kress, that we may extend to her and to the members of the family an expression of our sincere sympathy and heartfelt condolence.

and direction of war production in each of the Nation's numerous industries, including the raw material producers, the civilian goods producers, and the manufacturers of military products. The industry branches have a responsibility for the following kinds of action: (1) the issuance of curtailment or limitation orders intended to conserve resources for war production; (2) the processing of appeals which may be made under the orders issued; (3) the planting of the allocation of materials to industries and uses through the assignment of priorities or the fixing of allocations.

The Labor Production Division has a number of consultants who work in the various industry branches advising the chiefs of the branches of labor's interests and presenting the plans and programs of unions for advancing the production of war materials and equipment. The best example of the type of relations which the division has been attempting to promote with the industry branches is in connection with copper. The labor consultants on copper work constantly with representatives of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, the American Federation of Labor, and the Chief of the Copper Branch in developing a program for increasing the supply of this very critical metal.

The industry consultants also assist other members of the staff of the Labor Production Division in the organization and servicing of labor advisory committees. In a recent conference with Presidents Green and Murray, Chairman Nelson declared that it was his policy to encourage the formation of such committees to advise the industry branch chiefs on matters of policy.

Appeals to Industry Orders.

An Appeals Board has been created to review and adjudicate appeals filed as a result of the limitation or curtailment orders described above. Appeals may ordinarily be filed by any party affected by the order, including a labor organization. A representative of labor sits upon the Board which makes final decisions with respect to the granting or denial of appeals. We have assigned members of the staff to work directly with the unions in the presentation of appeals.

Concentration of Production.

On August 26th Chairman Nelson Announced the organization of a committee on concentration of production. Mr. Joseph L. Weiner, Deputy Director of the Office of Civilian Supply was designated as Chairman. The Director of the Labor Production Division sits as a member of the Committee. The Committee has been given the job of preparing programs for concentrating certain civilian production such as the production of metal office furniture, typewriters, etc., in a minimum number of plants in order to conserve the labor force and make the most effective utilization of existing facilities. Since this committee has only recently been organized an extensive program of concentration has not yet been devised. However, it is clear that the partial use of plants and facilities by industries operating at less than capacity is an economic waste which will not be tolerated in view of the need for all-out production. The activities of the Concentration Committee will therefore be of increasing concern to labor. We invite the cooperation and participation of labor in the formulation of concentration programs. In every case industry concentration programs will be discussed and developed with representatives of labor and management.

Use of Small Plants in War Production.

Following the passage of an act of Congress, Mr. Nelson announced the appointment of a board of directors for a smaller War Plants Corporation. In making this announcement Mr. Nelson said, "We are going to do all that we can to bring as many more smaller plants as possible into war and other essential production." Given a capitalization of a hundred and fifty million dollars, the Smaller War Plants Corporation has authority to accept prime contracts from war procurement agencies and to split them up, subcontracting with small business firms for the production of component parts. Mr. Lou Holland, named Deputy Chairman on Smaller War Plants, also heads the Small War Plants Division of the War Production Board. Arrangements have been made by the Division to employ a representative of the Congress of Industrial Organizations and a representative of the American Federation of Labor to work with the Smaller War Plants Division. Labor's problems and suggestions in connection with the allocation of subcontracts to smaller plants will be handled by these two men.

Conservation Programs.

The War Production Board Conservation Division of which Mr. Lessing Rosenwald is Director, has the following principal functions: (1) the preparation of programs for the accumulation of scrap and the salvaging of other necessary materials; (2) the investigation of methods whereby less critical materials may be substituted for materials the supply of which is relatively scarce; (3) the recommendation of ways by which the use of materials may be conserved (changes in specifications).

Through the offices of the Associate Directors, labor has worked out a plan with Mr. Rosenwald for labor participation in the Steel Scrap Drive. The crucial need for the gathering of greater supplies of steel scrap has long been recognized by the United Steelworkers. A Committee of A. F. L., C. I. O. and R. R. Brotherhood representatives has been appointed in the Division to plan for labor participation in the scrap campaign. The program of the committee has been given to you and you have announced the wholehearted participation of your affiliated unions in the campaign. The Labor Production Division is keenly aware of the fact that no scrap drive can be successfully prosecuted without the enlistment of the full support and the great resources of the labor movement.

Field Organization of the War Production Board.

The business of war production is actually carried out at thousands of plants, mines and projects throughout the country. This vast program cannot be successfully executed under the direct control of those far away from the actual processes of production. The War Production Board has therefore set up twelve regional offices, each designed to function as a "Little War Production Board" in the region. The divisions and the units of the War Production Board in Washington are paralleled by a similar organization in each region under the direction of a regional director. Chairman Nelson proposes to give the regional directors all of the authority necessary to transact the business of the War Production Board in their regions.

The Labor Production Division has provided for a staff of Labor representatives to service organized labor in the various regions and to act as a channel through which labor can make itself effective in the activities of the regional offices. The regional labor staffs have been selected from the ranks of both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. We urge that you make free use of this field staff. We will, moreover, gladly receive any suggestions which organized labor may make from time to time in order to improve the quality of this service.

The sketch given above is intended only as a bare outline of some of the activities of the War Production Board of immediate concern to Labor. We are planning to fill in this outline with periodic and more detailed reports to you and the international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. We hope that this summary will, in the meantime, help to point up ways whereby labor can avail itself of the facilities of the War Production Board. The labor Production Division is labor's agency; we are successful only as we help labor speed the war effort.

BUILDING TO WIN*By Rear Admiral Ben Moreell

Chief, Bureau of Yards and Docks, U. S. Navy

There are two distinct phases to waging a war—the building and the fighting, or the construction and the destruction. One must precede the other; both are equally vital to victory.

Never before in our history had the nation faced such a gigantic construction job as that which began to take shape with the outbreak of the Second World War. Immediately the Navy Department had to expand enormously. Buildings had to be enlarged and new sites developed. Warehouse facilities had to be built. Existing shipyards had to be expanded. Some, unused since the last war, were reopened and rebuilt. Plants for guns and a multitude of war necessities were subsidized. Hospitals, quarters and housing had to be constructed.

Because of the global character of the new war advance bases had to be established thousands of miles from the mainland. Contracts were let for the construction of these bases on the Atlantic sites made available by Britain and on the islands of the South Pacific. Skilled workers were recruited from all parts of the country and the program was well under way by the time the Japanese struck on December 7.

Here at home the construction work has been proceeding far ahead of schedule. American labor has proved itself equal to the huge task. In only a very few cases has the government been forced to intervene because of labor difficulties.

At the outlying Pacific bases the situation became

Dear Sir and Brother:

Will you please state, in connection with the report of the Executive Council, that I missed connections that would have gotten me into Dayton Ohio, in time for Brother Kress' funeral, on December 7th.

I did not know or think that a regular and official meeting of the Council was to be held, or I would have been there and participated in its sessions, along with other members who were there in attendance at the funeral.

I am in agreement with the various actions taken by the Council.

grave almost immediately following the attack on Pearl Harbor. Guam, Wake and Cavite soon fell. It was then that the impossibility of carrying on this construction work with civilian labor became apparent. The need for a new type of amphibious military engineering organization was clear.

The Navy had the answer in the Seabees. During World War I some construction men were enlisted for work on the various naval stations in the country, but it was not until the latter part of 1941 that the Bureau of Yards and Docks began experimenting with construction battalions as replacements for civilians on overseas bases.

There was no time to train raw recruits in the dozens of trades required, so the Navy turned to the ranks of organized labor. Skilled craftsmen volunteered in great numbers. The American Federation of Labor gave the Navy's needs wide publicity in its journals throughout the country. Each volunteer was interviewed by a competent construction engineer and given a naval rating commensurate with his qualifications. The program has been so successful that the proposed strength of the Seabees has been raised to 100,000—more than the peacetime strength of the whole United States Navy.

A construction battalion is composed of five companies, one headquarters company of 175 men and four construction companies of 224 men each. There are twenty-five officers in every battalion. The commanding officer is a lieutenant commander in the Civil Engineer Corps and his staff includes medical,

Dear Mr. McSorley:

I am sure you will be glad to know that so far the response to the call sent out by the Labor Division of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis to all the presidents of the International and National unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor has been encouraging.

In the anticipation of the cooperation which we hope will also be forthcoming from your affiliated local unions a final word from you will be most effective.

May we therefore ask you to be kind enough to communicate with the managers of your various locals urging them to participate actively in the 1943 Drive so that organized labor may again play its customary outstanding role in the fight against infantile paralysis.

We are making this request because we know that your desire to support the cause so close to the heart of President Roosevelt, labor's greatest friend, will prompt your immediate and wholehearted response.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Very truly yours,

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS, Brother Vohden, our Business Agent, was elected to office for a term of one year, and he did a good job obtaining first-class conditions, after which his term was extended three years; after only two years of road work he was elected president of the Board of Business Agents of the Essex County Building and Construction Trades Council for a term of three years, an office no one out of Local 102 ever held; and

WHEREAS, The prestige and benefits accruing through

Brother Vohden's efforts have kept the local intact and held in high esteem by all trades in Essex County and the State of New Jersey. He has obtained work for our members at other crafts and through his efforts maintains friendly relations with locals throughout the East; and

WHEREAS, Many of our members are now enjoying the benefits of his efforts, working as other craftsmen and in other localities; and

WHEREAS, We are all aware that Brother Vohden, while secretary, was alone responsible for keeping the local going through the last depression, often paying the local per capita tax himself, when he needed the money for his home. He sacrificed all to help many of the members maintain their membership and to keep the local together; and

WHEREAS, We are now approaching serious times when we will need the able guidance of Brother Vohden, to steer us through and keep the organization and its members intact; and

WHEREAS, His ability to get jobs at other crafts has been proven. As secretary for fifteen years he was the spark plug of the organization, and as business agent the past two years continued his work on a highly respected plane. He is unselfish, untiring and fair in all his dealings. Every member of this local has received the benefits of his unstinted efforts on our behalf; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we, as a body of men reaping the benefits of his ability, extend his term of office ten years, his term of office to expire July 1, 1952, and if needs be, draft him into this position, the job he so ably performs.

dental, supply and engineer officers.

Conditions on the advance bases resemble those encountered in the development of our West. Each Seabee unit must be self-sufficient. It must bring along all the equipment and material needed to complete the job and must ingeniously use whatever local material is available to the best advantage.

As new points are acquired by our forces it can be assumed that the enemy has done his best to destroy anything of value before evacuating. Therefore, when the Seabees appear on the scene, it takes the combined skill of virtually every construction trade to construct the base—wharf builders to provide unloading places, teamsters to get the material to the site, surveyors to lay out the work and establish the grades on the runways, bulldozer operators and road builders to clear and maintain access between the various parts of the job, and plumbers, carpenters, stonemasons and electricians to provide the quarters and other facilities. Even nurserymen are needed—to transplant trees and shrubs for camouflage.

Some of the equipment brought along includes steam boilers, generators, welding machines, refrigerators and pontoons. Commercial equipment is used in most cases, but some special equipment has had to be developed.

Since only construction men of experience are enlisted in the Seabees, the training period is short—six weeks. The first three are devoted to indoctrination and basic military training. The last three are used to familiarize the men with the equipment with which they will work. They are also taught to handle rifles and machine guns. To defend what they build they may well have to use these implements.

Enlistments are open in all ratings as high as chief petty officers. Men with exceptional construction experience are given warrants. Graduate civil engineers with construction experience are eligible for commission in the Civil Engineer Corps.

With millions of civilian workers on the home front and the Seabees just behind the battle lines, America is building the facilities to launch the greatest offensive of all time.

WAGES PILE UP FOR MISSING SEAMEN

Wages will be paid to all missing seamen until a certificate of presumptive death has been issued for them. A ruling to that effect was issued recently by Chairman Edward Macauley of the Maritime War Emergency Board.

Such payments include basic wages and emergency wages at the rate provided for in the ship's articles.

He who has health, has hope; and he who has hope, has everything.
—Arabian Proverb.

Ora Arthur Kress

WHEREAS, It has pleased the Almighty God in His wisdom to remove from our midst and membership our beloved Brother Ora Arthur Kress, No. 13505; and

WHEREAS, Brother Kress has been a member of Local No. 30 for thirty-three years, served this local as financial secretary for more than twenty years, business representative for the building trades of Dayton, Ohio, for almost twenty years, which office he resigned to become Fifth Vice President of our International Union, and he will be deeply missed not only by Local 30, but by all locals affiliated with our International, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the membership of Local 30 express the deepest sympathy to the family of our departed brother; and be it also

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for thirty days.

Wm. Evans, Secretary
Local Union No. 30

---

Local No. 190 sent the following message to the family of our late 5th Vice President Ora A. Kress, which this local requested us to publish:

"Local No. 190 wishes to express its sincere sympathy in your recent bereavement. Walter Frank, Secretary."

WIT AND HUMOR

Officer—And when you join the parachute corps, you must learn their theme song.

Recruit—Theme song? What is it?

Officer—"It don't mean a thing if you don't pull that string."

Officer—I don't know why the men grumble. This soup is really excellent.

Sergeant—They wouldn't grumble, sir, if the cook would admit it was soup. But he insists it's coffee.

The teacher was greatly pleased to find her class so alert. "Who," she asked, "was the great French general in the Word War?"

"General Foch," was the reply.

"Who was the great German general?"

"General Hindenburg," another replied.

"Who was the greatest of all the generals—an American general?"

"Two of them," replied Bill.

"Name them," said the puzzled teacher.

"General Motors and General Electric."

Arabella—That handsome bachelor kissed me last night, and today the whole town knows about it.

Agatha—Goodness, how did you spread the news so quickly?

Instructor—You say in this paper that you know the connecting link between the animal and vegetable kingdoms. What is it?

Student—Stew.

"I have a pain in my abdomen," said the rookie to the army doctor.

"Young man," replied the medico, "officers have abdomens, sergeants have stomachs; YOU have a bellyache."

Sheik—"I know a man who has been married for 40 years and spends every evening at home."

Sheiba—"That's what I call real love."

Sheik—"The doctor calls it paralysis."

Girl Friend—Tell me, Sargie, why do you call your car "Shasta"?

Sergeant—Because shasta have gas and shasta have oil.

"Dad, what is an American communique writer?"

"He is a military man, son, who believes in telling nothing but the truth and as little of that as possible."

Woman—"My husband is so careless of his appearance. It seems like he just can't keep buttons on his clothes."

Neighbor—"Are you sure it's carelessness? Perhaps they are—uh—well, sewed on improperly."

Woman—"Maybe you're right. He is terribly careless with his sewing."

The mule has a reputation because it knows which end of its ability to use.

Army Sergeant: "Have you any preference?"

Draftee: "Yes, sir."

Army Sergeant: "What would you like to be?"

Draftee: "An ex-service man with a pension."

"Now children, can anyone give me a definition of a niche such as a niche in a church?"

Little Jackie: "Well, it's just like an itch in any other place, but you can't scratch it there."

A woman purchasing war bonds told the clerk:

"I've been saving this money to divorce my husband, but I can stand him better than I can Hitler."

Sergeant (surveying wreck)—And who was driving this jeep?

Rookie—No one, sir. We were all in the back seat!

"Do you believe in love at first sight?"

Soldier—"I gotta. I only got two days' leave."

Some gals are like certain newspapers—the bold face type.

"Tough luck, girls. I'm a pauper!"

"My, my, we didn't even know you were married."

To the question if we like horsemeat, all we can reply is: "Neigh, neigh!"

Paul—"What's the difference between learning to drive a car and learning to play golf?"

Ralph—"Easy. When you're learning to play golf you don't hit anything."

"I gave that girl an awful rush. Took her to dinners, shows, night clubs—even bought her a fur coat. And after six weeks of it do you know what she said?"

"No."

"How'd you know?"

NUTRITION AND LABOR

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, under the direction of I. M. Ornburn, Secretary-Treasurer, is sponsoring a series of articles by outstanding scientists on the subject of proper food and diet.

This is one in a series of articles written by Dr. Mark Graubard, Industrial Workers Nutrition Specialist in the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, Federal Security Agency. Dr. Graubard is one of the Nation's outstanding biochemists and is a historian of science and student of food habits of primitive peoples and modern nations. He was professor at Columbia and Clark Universities; lecturer on science to labor unions since 1933; and is the author of several books on science.

The nations that lived almost exclusively on white rice were the first to show the dire consequences. The peoples of Europe who clamored for white bread were saved from a full accounting by their custom of consuming other foods besides bread and by a somewhat better economic level. But the poor of the Orient could hardly afford anything beyond two or three bowls of rice a day. In addition, their customs demanded little variety, and meat and milk were not very popular and are not used much even today. At best, some spices, herbs, and a piece of fish are added to the rice. No wonder then that beriberi, a dread and deathly disease, ravaged the teeming populations of China, Japan, the Philippines, Malaya, and the Dutch East Indies. Beriberi means "I cannot," and those afflicted with it indeed could not move. It involves muscular and nervous weakness and degeneration, intestinal disturbances, swelling and ultimately death. It was known as the "scourge of the Orient."

When in 1867 Japan became united under the emperor, it decided to be like the civilized western powers and devoted much attention to the study of the diet and health of its people. It began building a large navy even then to subjugate her neighbors China, Korea, and later Russia. For years, as many as forty percent of the Japanese navy succumbed to beriberi until in 1884, Baron Takaki, a naval officer, proved that the disease was due to a faulty diet. He enriched the diet of the sailors with a variety of foodstuffs besides the traditional rice, and proved that the disease was thereby completely eliminated.

Some people like Baron Takaki fight disease because they want strong men for the subjugation or oppression of other nations. But there are also men like the Dutch Dr. Eijkmann who wished to help the poor of Java and experimented for years to find the cause and cure of the disease that hung like a Nazi plague over the natives. He discovered that chickens fed on polished rice developed a disease entirely similar to the human affliction. This marked a great advance. Finding an animal that can acquire the disease makes experimentation possible and with it comes the hope that more will be known about it and its cure.

Eijkmann found that if such diseased chickens were fed the rice polishings normally thrown away, they recovered. This marked his second great discovery. Finally he proved that chickens kept on an unpolished rice diet never developed the disease as did their sisters fed with polished rice. This was the final proof. Yet Eijkmann still believed in accordance with the spirit of the time that the diseases was caused by the presence of some poisonous substance which rice polishings could destroy. But a few years later Dr. Casimir Funk, a Polish-Jewish scientist, proved that it was the absence of some substances which caused deficiency diseases rather than the presence of harmful ones. These substances without which our bodies get into serious trouble he called vitamins. That simple but brilliant suggestion revolutionized our entire way of thinking about the problem.

Funk began the search for the particular vitamin located in rice polishings. The American chemist, R. R. Williams, working simultaneously in the Philippines brought that search to a successful conclusion only six years ago. It is a fairly simple chemical substance needed by the body in small amounts. It is called thiamine or vitamin B1 and plays a very important role in the body's utilization of starches and their products. In its absence all functions related to this utilization run afoul.

Now, this vitamin is present in many vegetables and all lean meat and, like vitamin C, can be destroyed by excessive boiling or lost in the water if much of it is used and later poured into the sink. To make matters worse, the body does not store it well, so that it must be constantly supplied. For this reason scientists, medical authorities and the government urge bakers to produce only enriched white bread and flour. We cannot make all people eat whole wheat if they do not want to. They seem to like white bread better. But the scientific discovery of thiamine makes it possible to have white bread and not get beriberi. Enriched bread has the thiamine previously discarded put back into it so that nowadays we can eat all the white bread we want and not be in any danger. We must, however, insist at the store on white bread or flour that has the word, "Enriched," on the wrapper.

Hoarding is foolish as well as unpatriotic. Hoarded flour turns rancid and wormy. Hoarded sugar turns yellow and lumpy. Hoarded tea dries up and loses its flavor. Hoarding creates shortages, and if you can enjoy your hoarded food while others go without, then you are more of a squirrel than an American.

Samuel Gompers

by

Dr. Charles Stelzle

Samuel Gompers was the "frontiersman" of trade-unionism in America. Others had previously established labor unions which were powerful in their day, but they were loosely organized and unrelated as compared with the American Federation of Labor, to the perfection of which Mr. Gompers gave his life.

Being a frontiersman, he developed many of the characteristics which one finds among all pioneers. He was a tremendous individualist and extremely jealous of what he had established. Samuel Gompers was known for his devotion to the single idea of the trade union as he knew it, and his exaltation of the great organization which he built up and whose President he was for nearly forty years. Things mattered to him, only as they affected the cause of "our great labor movement," as he often fondly called it.

Mr. Gompers was absolute master of every situation that developed at conventions of the American Federation of Labor. He rarely took part in debate, presiding impartially. But when he passed the gavel to one of the Vice Presidents—the sign that he was about to speak—there was perfect quiet, and when he had finished his always deliberate speech, there was rarely anything but a unanimous vote in favor of his position. And yet, there was positively nothing magnetic about him. Rather, he was dynamic—producing changes through the sheer force of his character. He held sway over the four hundred delegates, not as a "Czar," but because of the profound respect his followers had for him. Whether he would have lost his grip had he lived is problematic, but it was generally understood in trade union circles that "Sam" was to be President of the American Federation of Labor as long as he cared to hold the office.

He scorned political office, he refused bribes of every kind—he died a poor man—he frequently sneered at "outsiders" who wanted to help promote his cause because he couldn't quite trust them—his was a one man's job, and that job was the lifting up of our common humanity to the place which he believed it deserved. "I look for a better tomorrow, and a better tomorrow's tomorrow," he frequently said in speeches given at annual conventions of the American Federation of Labor and elsewhere.

Whatever else may be said about Mr. Gompers, he could not fairly be charged with being anything but a thorough-going American. He was loyal to the last degree—and to the last moment of his life, as his final words testified: "God bless our American institutions. May they grow better day by day."

NOTICE TO MEMBERS

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

As a result of the action of the Conservation Division of the War Production Board, through its Specifications Division in eliminating the use of "vital materials" including channel iron, metal lath and other accessories which are used in connection with the same, the use of which materials have been reduced to a minimum for the duration of the war so as to conserve the vital materials for the use of the war and defense effort, it will therefore be necessary on the part of our membership to endeavor to work for the further use of lath and plaster, embracing such materials that do not come under the classification of vital material.

And in order to meet this demand, we are endeavoring to have our membership, through their local architects and local housing commissions, adapt themselves to the use of Solid Plaster Partitions, composed of plaster board materials, such as are shown in the two drawings and details which we are publishing in this journal.

There will be another similar system placed upon the market by the United States Gypsum Company. Our understanding at the present time is that the Gypsum Company's new partition has not received the approval of the National Housing Administration, but we believe that it will.

These types of partitions are being used on housing projects in Washington, as well as in other localities and are proving to be highly satisfactory and provide equally as much work for the lather as do channel iron and metal lath partitions, and we would therefore request our membership to advocate the use of these types of partitions by Housing Administrators all throughout the United States.

The partitions have been approved by the National Housing Administration and are permitted to be used on all housing jobs that are constructed with concrete floors, and we hope in the very near future to have them endorsed in all classes of government construction.

We believe that by our members displaying some activity in contacting the local architects and housing administrators, that we may secure the approval of both architects and government officials of the general use of these types of partitions for the duration of the war, as from the present outlook, it seems as though the government officials, through their Conservation Division are determined to eliminate the use of "vital materials" under which classification come channel iron and metal lath partitions, with all of their accessories, excepting cornerites and corner beads, are practically eliminated for the duration of the war.

We would further recommend that wherever possible, in the different localities throughout the United States, that a sample partition of this kind be erected by the lathers and plasterers in conjunction with the material dealers, for the purpose of exhibiting the same to local administrators and architects.

We will be glad to furnish a copy of the plans and specifications of these partitions to any Local Committees requesting the same.

Trusting we may have the full cooperation of our membership along these lines, to the end that more work may be provided for our membership, through the Federal and Defense Housing Authorities by the introduction of these partitions, I am with best wishes

Fraternally yours,

WILLIAM J. MCSORLEY,

General President.

PLASTER PARTITIONS

December, 1942

Sec. 1. SCOPE

1 When alternate bid for plaster partitions is accepted (see General Scope), plaster partitions in accordance with either Detail A or Detail B (attached) shall be substituted and installed as specified herein in lieu of other types shown or specified for non-load-bearing partitions on concrete floors only:

- (a) Except around pipe spaces where plumbing fixtures occur.
- (b) Except that plaster and adjoining walls must be painted same color, and prefinished wall board may not be used for adjoining walls under this alternate.
- (c) Provide all related items and make necessary adjustments in adjoining work as required.

Sec. 2. MATERIALS

1. GYPSUM LATH shall comply with Federal Specification SS-P-431a.
2. GYPSUM PLASTER shall comply with Federal Specification SS-P-401, Type N.
3. HYDRATED LIME shall comply with Federal Specification SS-L-351, Type F.
4. QUICKLIME shall comply with Federal Specification SS-Q-351.
5. KEENE'S CEMENT shall comply with Federal Specification SS-C-161, Type II.
6. High early strength Portland cement shall comply with Federal Specification SS-C-201.
7. SAND for plaster shall consist of fine granular material composed of hard, durable, uncoated particles uniformly graded from fine to coarse, and free from injurious amounts of saline, alkaline, organic, or other deleterious substances.
8. WATER shall be clean and free from oil, acids and other injurious substances.
9. FURNISH AFFIDAVITS from manufacturers, certifying that materials delivered to project conform to specified requirements. Deliver packaged materials in unopened containers bearing manufacturer's name and brand.

Sec. 3. SYSTEM OF CONSTRUCTION

1. Attention is directed to the fact that patents have been applied for on the systems of construction shown.
2. See attached details for optional systems of construction.

Sec. 4. PLASTER MIX

1. First coat on lath, shall be 1 part "neat" gypsum plaster and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  parts sand, by volume.
2. Finish coat shall be 5 parts hydrated lime or lime putty, 1 part Keene's cement, and 1.5 parts sand, by volume.
  - (a) Putty made from pulverized quick or hydrated lime shall soak at least 24 hours after cooling. Keep moist until used.
  - (b) Putty made from lump lime shall be completely slaked and stored for at least 3 weeks. Keep moist. Before using strain through a No. 10 sieve.
3. When perforated gypsum lath is used for plaster base, first and second coats may be 3 cubic feet sand, 1 cubic foot hydrated finishing lime, and 15 pounds high early strength Portland cement; lime for first coat, mill-fibred.

Sec. 5. APPLICATION OF PLASTER

1. Maintain adequate continuous ventilation in plastered spaces until plaster is dry. Protect plaster from freezing and too rapid drying; remove and replace damaged plaster. Do not wet gypsum lath.
2. Protect finished floors; after plastering is completed, clean floors and leave surfaces free from plaster stains.
3. Apply first coat with sufficient pressure to provide an adequate bond with and to secure adherence to plaster base. Screed and straighten in both directions with a straight edge or floating rule (darby) within  $\frac{1}{8}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  inch of finish surface and broom to roughen surface as bond for finish coat.
4. After first coat is set sufficiently, apply finish coat,  $\frac{1}{8}$  to  $\frac{1}{4}$  inch thick and finish with a rubber or carpet float to a smooth, uniform, granular surface, free from loose sand particles and without depressions or cat faces. Cracked, blistered, pitted and discolored plaster will not be accepted.

Sec. 6. PATCHING

1. Point up around trim and other set work. Cut out and patch defective and damaged plaster. Patching of plaster shall match and finish level with adjoining plaster.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL MEMBERS

In order to clear up any misunderstanding which may now exist among our members relative to their joining other organizations whose trade claims conflict with the trade claims of our International Union, we are calling attention to Section 52 of our International Constitution which reads:

"No member of this organization can be a member of more than one local union at a time, nor of any other organization conflicting with the trade of lathing and doing work covered by our jurisdiction claims."

We are also calling attention to Section 154 of our International Constitution, which distinctly states that:

"If holders of withdrawal cards join any organization whose trade claims conflict in any way with our trade claims, said cards shall be declared null and void."

Some of our members are of the opinion that they can carry cards in our International Union and also join other organizations at the same time.

We want to emphasize that no member of our organization can join another organization whose trade claims conflict with ours and still retain membership in our own International Union.

No member can take out a Withdrawal Card and join any organization whose trade claims conflict with those of our own organization.

Any member who wishes to join any organization whose trade claims conflict with ours, will have to sever his relations with our International Union entirely.

At this time we also wish to call to the attention of our members that any one going into another local's jurisdiction to work on a permit with the permission of some other trade, such as the Carpenters, Iron Workers, Asbestos Workers, or Boilermakers, must take his transfer from his home local and deposit this transfer in the local union in whose jurisdiction he is going to work.

All members should read this article very carefully and give it their serious consideration before joining any other organizations whose trade claims conflict with any claims of our own International Union.

BROKEN PROMISES

This is a study of Hitler's labor record—some of the typical promises he made to working people, and a chronological listing of how he kept faith with those promises.

The Promise

"National Socialist employees and National Socialist employers both are chargees and guardians of the entire national community. The great measure of personal freedom which is hereby granted to them in their activity can be explained by the fact that, according to experience, the efficiency of the individual is increased more by a far-reaching granting of freedom than by compulsion from above. . ."

—Mein Kampf.

"Such as the situation is today, trade unions cannot be dispensed with, in my opinion. On the contrary, they belong to the most important institutions of the economic life of the nation."

—Mein Kampf.

"When one party, be he employer or worker, has all the law and all the power on his side and the other has no rights, you know yourselves that no tolerable contract, no tolerable conditions are possible."

—Hitler, Siemenstadt Speech, November 10, 1933.

"We do not wish to interfere with the rights of others, to restrict the lives of other peoples, to oppress or subjugate other people."

—Hitler, speech in Lippw, January 14, 1934.

"We National Socialists do not wish that our military resources should be employed to force on other peoples what those peoples themselves do not want."

—Hitler, speech at Nuremberg, September 14, 1936.

The Record

January 30, 1933—Hitler named Chancellor.

February 1, 1933—Reichstag dissolved.

May 2, 1933—Hitler destroys trade unions, arrests leaders, confiscates property; Nazis set up "Labor Front" to take control of all German workers.

May 19, 1933—Nazis set up 13 "Trustees of Labor," political officials drawn mainly from ranks of retired army officers, to settle disputes over employment, wages, working conditions.

June 21, 1933—Storm Troops enter homes of trade unionists, beat them up, kill dozens, arrest many who are sentenced to death.

July 14, 1933—Nazis loot Social Democrats' employees' pension funds.

January 20, 1934—New Nazi labor code set up: Collective bargaining abolished, forced dues collected, union elections banned, Nazi-appointed "leaders" get authority over workers and employers.

"Courts of Social Honor" set up to discipline employer and employee: Penalties set for employers who "interfere" with "union" management by Nazi leaders, also for employees who make "frivolous appeals" over grievances.

February 17, 1934—Nazis regiment leisure time of workers with "Strength Through Joy" trips.

July 12, 1934—Nazis announce 300,000 young men compelled to enter labor camps.

October 24, 1934—Nazi decree places Labor Front in Nazi party organization, its finances controlled by the Party.

March 21, 1934—Leipzig Agreement: Labor Front surrenders functions to Nazi Ministry of Economics, thus completing enslavement of German worker to the Nazi party.

June 18, 1935—Nazis order six months compulsory manual labor in labor camps for all youth of both sexes at age of 19, the camps serving as pre-military training and indoctrination centers.

June 28, 1935—Nazis deny workers freedom to choose jobs: Labor Exchange gets monopoly on employment service.

March 7, 1936—Nazis break Locarno Pact, troops occupying Rhineland.

January 26, 1937—All civil service employees ordered to take oath of allegiance to Hitler.

May 9, 1937—Nazis order male youths to workers' service or military service.

March 12, 1938—Nazis occupy Austria.

July 4, 1938—Nazi labor court decides a worker can be dismissed if his "voluntary" contribution to the Winter Relief Fund is deemed insufficient.

September 30, 1938—Munich pact signed. Hitler takes Sudetenland.

February 13, 1939—Nazis decree orders every inhabitant of German-held territory subject to compulsory labor.

March 15, 1939—Nazi troops enter Prague.

April 1, 1939—Mass deportation of Czechs for forced labor begins (to reach 400,000).

To deceive low-flying enemy patrol planes, British submarines are painted to match the color of the waters in which they operate: in the Atlantic they are blue; in the Mediterranean, gray; in the China Sea, black.

Bill Jones Is Dead!

(Labor Bulletin, Aberdeen, Wash.)

Bill Jones had just graduated from agricultural college. He was ambitious to put into action all he had learned about conservation of soil, better breeding of cattle, rotating crops, because his dad's farm was in pretty bad shape. When war came, Bill enlisted in the army.

Bill went to the Philippines and the little town where he was billeted was over-run by a horde of Japs. Bill fought as long as he could and then, under orders, surrendered. They tied his hands behind him and a Jap soldier started to rape a white woman. He had torn her blouse off when Bill kicked him in the belly, and three Japs waiting their turn rammed their bayonets into Bill's guts.

This happened about the time you were telling the folks at your house that it was all darned nonsense to ration sugar because cake and candy were certainly no diet for soldiers.

Bill Jones is dead. He was a soda jerker in a small town, and when the bands blared and the flags fluttered, he signed up for the navy. They put him on a torpedo boat. He learned to wear his hat on the corner of his head, and to roll when he walked. Then his boat got into a scrap down in the South Seas. Bill stood by his gun and laughed when he fired it, but a shell hit its deck beside Bill. When he tried to pull himself to his feet, he saw that right arm was in the scuppers five feet away. He reached for his gun with his left hand and then things went black. The list of the ship rolled a dead sailor into the scuppers where his dismembered arm lay. Its extended thumb touched the tip of his nose, so that in death as in life, Bill was thumbing his nose at the Jap ship that got him.

This was the same day you were raising hell because they were rationing gasoline, and for fear you couldn't drive up to the lake to go fishing every week-end this summer, you hid four cans of gasoline in your garage.

Bill Jones is dead. Bill's dad had a lot of money, and when Bill wanted his own plane, dad bought it for him. Bill was a wild devil, driving a car out of all reason, and flying a plane the same way. But he was the first man in his town to respond to the Air Corps' call for fliers.

Bill got into a dog fight over the English channel. There were six German planes. But with a "Tallyho!" Bill dived into the bunch of them. He got two before a third sent a burst of bullets into his back that almost cut him in half, but he held on to the stick until he rammed the fourth plane and went down with it locked in the flaming embrace of death.

This happened about the time you were bellyaching and feeling abused because of the outrageous treatment given you by the tire rationing board which would not allow you recaps for your pleasure car.

Bill Jones is dead. Bill was a boy who had inclinations for the ministry, but when the call came, Bill laid aside his Bible and joined the Marine Corps. Bill wasn't much fun around the blanket where they were shooting craps, and he wasn't so hot at the beer drinking contests in the jukes, but he earned his sergeant's stripes before they sent his gang ashore in one of those new boats which land through the surf.

The fistful of fighting fools charged a machine gun nest, and Bill had just taken careful aim and let go a hand grenade when another machine gun caught him. Four bullets in his head, but a Marine has four speeds forward and no reverse, and Bill fell toward the enemy.

That was the afternoon when you were sitting at the golf club with a highball in your hand, telling the other three fellows in your foursome that if income taxes were not reduced they were going to kill initiative in this country.

Bill Jones is dead. Bill was a football player who had good prospects as a professional coach at a small college. Then came Pearl Harbor. Bill used some football language, and headed for town to sign up with the parachute troops. He did all right.

Bill got action in an air raid in enemy country. He hit the ground with a dozen of his pals and raced to where their machine guns and grenades had landed near them. Fully equipped, they made for a nearby farm house from which bullets were spraying like water out of a garden hose.

Six of those machine gun bullets fairly cut Bill's legs off, but he lay on his belly in the mud and got two Heinies. Bill's last words were, "Of all the damn fool luck!"

That was the time you were telling the boys at the poker game that the union racketeers and the munitions

God Help the Poor Business Agents

By A. F. Lockhart

(The Minnesota Union Advocate)

There isn't a more abused, a more misunderstood or undervalued mortal under the sun than the average business representative of an average trade union. Nor is there anyone this side of the pearly gates more deserving of the pearly gates when his time comes to die than the average business agent.

A business agent is a human being but no one seems to think so. For example: After putting in a long day at the office he isn't supposed to go to a show, to a party or to his lodge for the simple reason that some member may want to call him up and if he is out of the house—he can't be called. And what do people call a business agent about? Well, a B. A. is supposed to know everything. He is supposed to be able to do anything and everything. He is supposed to be able to create jobs where there are no jobs. He is supposed to know about every job and every project not only within the local jurisdiction but in Iceland, Greenland, Jamaica, Alaska, Canada, Aran, Dakar, the Canal Zone, Pearl Harbor, New Brighton, Rosemount, Portage, Baraboo, Rapid City, Hollywood and God only knows where not. A business agent is supposed to be able to just reach up in the air and pluck out a job that is hand-tailored for the guy who is out of a job.

Yea, verily, a business agent is a man of parts, a genius and a bum all rolled in one. He is supposed to carry on a constant agitation for a shorter work week, more pay, time and a half for overtime and double time for holidays, but he works from 12 to 18 hours a day, his telephone is always busy and if he doesn't show up at the office before 8:30 there are those willing to have him burned in crude oil for trying to act like a banker. And talking of bankers, a B. A. is supposed to be able to hand out a dime or two bits every time a moocher flashes a union-card on him; he is supposed to dig down into his jeans for a couple of bucks every time a fellow unionist is short; he has to dig up to buy flowers for someone he never heard of and if he doesn't kick in—he is tagged as one of those cold-blooded gawks who live off the Labor movement, one of those per capita leeches who are sucking the life blood of their fellows and never giving anything in return!

A good business agent is supposed to be able to settle any dispute and all disputes and no matter how many he does settle—someone is always dissatisfied with the way he did the job. He is supposed to be able to out-talk a Philadelphia lawyer, and if he can't—there are always a half dozen or more in his union who know damn well that they could do that job without batting an eye. He is supposed to be able to write a contract that will give the employees everything and the boss nothing. He has to be able to argue classifications, the complicated language of the War Production Board, the OPA, the CCC, the WLB, the NLRB, the U. S. supreme court and the jibberish of Leon Henderson on a bicycle. He has to know all about base rates, depreciation, capital investment, Vitamins B-one and how to make out an income tax that even Henry Morgenthau doesn't understand.

And that isn't all. A good business representative should be able to settle domestic quarrels that the Court of Good Will and Mr. Anthony would duck in abject fear. He has to be able to explain how one woman's husband is able to get a job while that particular man's brother-in-law can't buy, steal, beg or inherit a job. He has to know all the answers and if he doesn't, God 'elp 'im! He has to be able to get a B or a C card for any duffer who insists that he can't ride the streetcars because they make him seasick; he has to square things with the tire rationing board, the draft board, the sugar rationing board, the board of health and the welfare board. He has to have a stand-in with the members of the city council, with the county commissioners, with the Governor and all the other politicians. He has to get into a campaign to knock hell out of some candidate and then if that candidate happens to be elected—the B. A. is supposed to go around and square things for the union that went on record demanding the politician's defeat.

A business agent is supposed to be just a human being and that's all he is but he is also supposed to be endowed with a sixth sense that permits him to tell offhand just how long a job will last, what is the railway fare to Great Lakes Station, how cold it gets in Newfoundland, whether the Alaskan mosquitoes are poisonous, how much it will cost for room and board in Anchorage, and the current value of Cities Service stock. He must know which is the best doctor to go to when you are sick and how those mutual hospitalization systems operate. He has to visit the sick, attend funerals, pass the hat to buy tools for some fellow who lost his in a crap game, act as co-signor on small loans, furnish bail for members unfortunate enough to get into the toils of the law, arrange for legal assistance, and attend all dances, bazaars, raffles, shindigs, wakes and reunions. He is supposed to buy tickets on every jackpot, alibi for members who lie to their wives about the time the union adjourned, help make out questionnaires for fellows who don't know what it is all about, get free publicity for the union, get passes to the ball games for certain people and make deals for a special price on beer for the annual party. He must have a smile for everyone and a constant curb on his temper; he must be in a dozen different places at once and at the same time never get more than three jumps away from the telephone; he must be temperate but at the same time be willing to buy the drinks for the crowd; he must be a hale good fellow at all times and if he is—there are those who are willing to say he is putting on the act. If he dresses well he is under suspicion of getting side money; if he wears old clothes, he's a bum; if he goes to church he's a hypocrite, if he doesn't go to church he's indifferent, irreligious and perhaps a scoffer. If he contributes to a religious organization it is because he is looking for publicity; if he doesn't contribute, he's a tightwad, a cheap skate or what have you?

Of course, almost anyone can qualify for the job of a union business representative provided he has the patience of Job, the fortitude of a Christian martyr, the courage of a viking and a sense of tolerance that would glorify a saint. Plus these common faculties he must have a gentleness of spirit that permits him to forgive those who would crucify him on a cross of selfishness, a willingness to learn something new each day, the grace to judge all men by the standards laid down in the Sermon on the Mount—and an ever-abiding sense of humor that doesn't know one day from another.

BUY WAR BONDS

The Revolutionary War laid the foundation for this nation under the leadership of George Washington, whose birth we celebrate February 22. The Civil War brought unity to our country under the guidance of the great liberator, Abraham Lincoln, whose birth we celebrate February 12.

The people of their time sacrificed much for our country, in a measure far beyond our conception of the word "sacrifice". Can we, who have so much more to offer, do less in this present crisis?

AMERICA'S NATURAL RESOURCES

In the laboratories of America, miracles are in the process of being wrought. New frontiers of science are being explored. And old and commonplace materials are being turned to new and marvelous uses.

Coal and oil are cases in point. We think primarily of coal as a substance which provides motive power for industry and which heats home. We think of oil as a variety of liquids which propel our engines and lubricate our machinery. But coal and oil are the basis of new materials which serve a thousand other vital purposes.

The loss of our natural rubber is leading to the creation of a vast new synthetic rubber industry. Some kinds of synthetic rubber are made from oil derivatives. Other kinds are made of derivatives of coal. All the various synthetic rubbers have special and important uses. And the chemists are certain that, in time, we will have an abundant supply of artificial rubber which will be superior in all ways to the natural products.

We are just on the verge of what might be termed the "plastic age." Again, coal and oil enter prominently into the picture. They are the basis of a long list of plastics which will be used for an astonishing variety of purposes in the future. Plastic autos, plastic airplanes, plastic window glass, plastic furniture, plastic home utensils—these are but a few of the revolutionary chemical developments of the time.

America is singularly blessed in the magnitude of its natural resources. And it is equally blessed in the efficiency and progressiveness of the great private industries which develop them. Natural resources give us strength in time of war. They will give us a higher standard of living than we have ever known, when peace comes again.

PRAYER FOR THE NATION

Eternal God, the Father of all mankind, and the sure defense of those who are sore beset, remember in mercy, we beseech Thee, our country now involved in war. Give wisdom to our counsellors; and courage and endurance to our soldiers, sailors and airmen, and all who guard our shores. Look in compassion on those immediately exposed to danger and hardship—all who are embattled and imprisoned; all who wander sad-hearted and alone; all whose homes have been left unto them desolate. Vouchsafe unto us all that courage that shall enable us to live through anxious days and troubled nights. And grant that, when the current conflict of the nations is overpassed, there may be in us a mind forgetful of past ill-will, a heart of love for all true spirits, and a disposition to find a way of living that shall last forever. Through Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen.—Harold Benner Kerschner, in Federal Council Bulletin.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, God Almighty in His infinite wisdom has deemed that surcease come to the earthly endeavors of our beloved Brother Curtis Allen Hartsell, No. 282, and

WHEREAS, Brother Hartsell was a faithful worker and served our local union loyally in various capacities for almost forty years, and by his example inspired many another brother to do likewise, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of Local Union No. 24, extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family; and also be it

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days, and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our official journal.

H. B. Kimple, Secretary
Local Union No. 24

By divine will, Brother Frederick Henry Michel, No. 8688, passed away January 27, 1943, after a long illness.

Brother Michel was a member of our Local Union No. 77, Everett, Washington, for more than thirty-three years, and during that time, with untiring effort, continually strove to better the lot of his fellow-workman. He was president of the Everett Central Labor Council, president of the Trades Building Association, secretary of the Labor Journal Bureau, supervisor of the Washington State Department of Labor and Industry for Everett and Snohomish and Island Counties. He served our local union as secretary for many years, which office he held at the time of his death.

WHEREAS, Brother Michel by his understanding and fairness commanded the greatest respect and esteem of his fellow-men; and his guiding hand will be sadly missed by our local union; and the labor movement has sustained an irreparable loss, be it

RESOLVED, That the charter of Local Union No. 77 be draped for a period of thirty days; and a copy of these resolutions be submitted to our International Office for publication in our official journal; and that we, the members of this local union, extend to the bereaved family and his many friends, our deepest sympathy in their bereavement.

W. A. Ferris, Secretary p. t.
Local Union No. 77

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst our beloved brother and president, Brother Guy W. Yant, No. 26612, and

WHEREAS, Bro. Yant will be greatly missed as our president and fellow worker, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of Local 252, express our deepest sympathy to the relatives and friends of our deceased brother; and be it further

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International Office for publication in our official journal.

H. H. Heater, Secretary
Local Union No. 252

JAMES FRANKLIN MACE, No. 8757

Local Union No. 5, Detroit, Michigan, has lost one of its most beloved members in the passing of Brother James Franklin Mace, No. 8757. Brother Mace died on January 17, 1943.

Brother Mace was initiated as a member of our International Union February 14, 1910 and was a staunch and understanding brother always. He served our local union as delegate for many years and gained eminence by his wise guidance of our local union's affairs and active participation in the Detroit labor movement.

We feel that none could be more genuinely mourned by the rank and file, in the sense of personal loss, than Brother Mace, and his place can never be filled in the hearts of his fellow-members. We quote these lines in tribute to the character of the man we called "Jim":

Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me,
and know my thoughts;

And see if there be any wicked way in me,
and, lead me in the way everlasting.

Dayton, Ohio
January 17, 1943

Terry Ford
Gen. Secretary-Treasurer
Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers
International Union

Cleveland, Ohio

Dear Mr. Ford:

I have been wanting to write you for some time to thank the Executive Council, General President McSorley, and yourself for your kindness and helpfulness after Mr. Kress' death.

I received the memorial the other day and can't find words to tell you how proud we are. To know that Mr. Kress was so highly thought of by members of his organization is very consoling to us at this time.

The quotation from Kipling's poem, "Dedication," fits his life so well, we feel it was almost written especially for him. This memorial is something that will be cherished by myself and children all the rest of our lives.

Kindly give my best wishes and thanks to the Executive Council, General President McSorley, and yourself.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ora A. Kress and Children.

EARL WATTS, Jr.

Earl Watts, Jr., apprentice of Local 65 and son of Brother Earl Watts, Sr., 18387, was killed in action while on a bombing plane in the battle of Coral Sea, and was buried in the New Hebrides Islands. He was an Aviation Ordnance 3rd class, U. S. Navy.

PRAYER OF A YANKEE MOTHER

Dear Lord,
You gave Your Son to save the world.
You didn't count the cost
In blood and sacrifice:
You gave Your Son that we might live.
Dear Lord,
Can I do less?
I give the world my son
That he may help to save
The things for which Your Son
So nobly died.
If, when the Victory's won, Dear God,
And you send back my son,
I'll press him to my breast and thank You, Lord.
And if he goes to join Your Son
I'll understand;
And, through my tears, rejoice
To know that my son and the Son of God
Go hand in hand. . . .

Do you discriminate against your fellow Americans? Are you a disseminator of the poison of hatred with which Hitler is trying to gas this country into confusion? Do you generalize about racial and religious groups—passing on as gospel truth the lies handed out by Herr Goebbels and his emissaries—forgetting they are not groups but individuals, many of them neighbors with whom you have grown up and liked, who have lived with you, suffered with you, sacrificed with you and rejoiced with you? If you do, you are serving the Axis.

BILL JONES IS DEAD

manufacturers were making fortunes out of this war, when we had no business getting into it in the first place.

Bill Jones is dead. Bill was an uneducated clam digger on the New England coast, but he knew about boats. He had only one eye and the uniformed ranks wouldn't take him, so he shipped on a tanker. His ship was bringing oil up the coast when a German pig boat came up out of the slime and sent a torpedo into the hull amidships. The freighter burst into flames and Bill went over the side into the burning oil.

When he came to the surface, a machine gun was practicing on the bobbing heads. When the bullets hit Bill's head, it burst open like a dropped egg. His charred bullet-riddled body sank beneath the surface.

That was the night you were telling the folks at your party that this war is being run by a lot of old women in Washington, the most mismanaged mess ever heard of.

Bill Jones is dead. When God in His infinite kindness meets Bill Jones at Heaven's gate, He is going to say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant!"

What He is going to say to you, God alone knows.

 WHY WE ARE FIGHTING

We are fighting a war so that we can maintain a way of life through the future which we have found through past experience to be not perfect, but pleasant, decent and dignified.

That way of life to the average man is made up of many small things, which grouped together comprise such high-sounding titles as democracy and freedom.

These little things consist of taking off your shoes and hoisting your feet up on the porch railing after the day's work is done, of having a few beers with the boys on Saturday night, of pulling down the blinds and locking the door and answering the doorbell only if you feel like it, of respecting your neighbors' privacy, of going to the movies or to church whenever you take a notion.

It is just such things that we are shedding blood and sweat and tears to maintain.

WIT AND HUMOR

Two men worked side by side in a War Production Board office in Washington. They never spoke, but each watched the other. One man quit work daily at 4 o'clock. The other toiled until 6 or later.

Some weeks passed. Then the harder working of the two approached the other.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "Do you mind telling me how you clean up your work every day at 4 o'clock?"

"Not at all," said the other man. "When I come to a tough piece of detail, I mark it, 'Refer to Commander Smith.' I figure that, in an outfit as large as this, there is sure to be a Commander Smith. And I must be right; none of those papers comes back to me."

The hard worker started to remove his coat.

"Brother," he said, "prepare for action. I'm Commander Smith."

Architect—Now if you'll give me a general idea of the kind of home you need.

Prospective Builder—Well, we want something to go with an antique door knocker my wife brought home from Mexico City.

"For heaven's sake," wrote Tommy to his wife, "don't send any more of those nagging letters while I'm at the front. I want to fight this war in peace."

Judge—Now, tell the court how the accident happened.

Edwood—Well, I dimmed my lights and was hugging the curve * * * *

Judge—So you were. Fifty dollars and fifty days.

First Doughboy—What happened when the mess sergeant caught you raiding the ice box?

Second Doughboy—He asked for a snack and I though he said smack!

After a long, searching cross-examination, the little woman in the witness-box remained quite calm. At last the lawyer exclaimed:

"You say you had no education, but you answered all my questions smartly enough."

"Yes, sir," replied the witness, meekly; "but you don't have to be a scholar to answer silly questions."

An English soldier wrote home: "They put me in barracks; they took away my clothes and put me in khaki; they took away my name and made me 'No.

575'; they took me to church, where I'd never been before, and they made me listen to a sermon for 45 minutes.

"Then the minister opened his hymn book and said 'No. 575. Art Thou Weary, Art Thou Languid?' and I got seven days in the guardhouse because I answered that I certainly was."

"Morale," said the sergeant, "is what makes your legs do what your head knows isn't possible."

Doctor: "May I kiss you?"

Nurse: "Certainly not. Do you think I want to have a doctor's bill thrust in my face?"

A young candidate for the navy was being put through a general knowledge test by a board of admirals.

"What kind of animals eat grass?" one of them asked.

The candidate fidgeted and stared out of the window, but said nothing. The question was repeated but he still remained dumb.

"Surely," said one of the examiners, kindly, "you can answer a simple question like that? I will repeat it. What kind of animals eat grass?"

"Animals!" gasped the boy. "I thought you said 'admirals.'"

Another, who may be said to have his ups and downs is the unfortunate chap who happens to get an aisle seat at a movie.

"Have a quick one?" asked Jones.

"Don't drink," replied Smith.

"Have a cigarette then."

"No thanks. I don't smoke."

"Ever have any headaches?"

"Yes, pretty often these days."

"Just as I thought. Your halo's too tight!"

An old lady, who was about to die, told her niece to bury her in her back silk dress, but to cut the back out and make herself a dress.

"Oh, Aunt Mary," said the niece, "I don't want to do that. When you and Uncle Charlie walk up the golden stairs, I don't want people to see you without any back in your dress."

To which the old lady replied: "They won't be looking at me. I buried your Uncle Charlie without his pants."

NUTRITION AND LABOR

The Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, under the direction of I. M. Gruburn, Secretary-Treasurer, is sponsoring a series of articles by outstanding scientists and government authorities on the subject of proper food and diet.

This article was written by Dr. Robert S. Goodhart, P. A. Surgeon Reserve, U. S. Public Health Service; Technical Advisor, Nutrition in Industry, Nutrition Division, Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services; Vice-Chairman, Committee on Nutrition in Industry, Food and Nutrition Board, National Research Council.

This is a war of production; a war in which it is essential to keep the people healthy and morale high in order to assure an adequate flow of weapons to the armed forces. Unfortunately a great many workers, upon whose production depends the outcome of battles in distant seas, islands and continents, are still inadequately fed.

Some plants are located in areas where practically no community eating facilities exist, and no food is available in the plants. Many plants have expanded and the number of employees has increased so rapidly that existing food facilities are inadequate.

Part of the government's National Nutrition program is directed toward the encouragement of industry to provide adequate feeding facilities in plants, when they are not otherwise available, and where indicated, to put these on a 24-hour basis. Both management and labor are now giving more attention to the importance of making the right food available at the right time, as part of the campaign to keep workers fit.

The mid-shift meal eaten by the worker at the factory, whether in the cafeteria or from a lunch box, should be more than a snack. It should provide at least one-third of the daily food needs.

A number of plant managed and concession operated cafeterias are cooperating in the National Nutrition Program, and many are serving Special Lunches designed to provide at least one-third of the food requirements. Some have appointed nutritionists.

A good Special Lunch might include: A citrus fruit or juice or tomato juice or cole slaw; meat, poultry, fish, dried beans, eggs, cheese; potato; enriched or whole grain bread with butter or fortified margarine.

It is important to choose the right food. In the last analysis, the choice among available foods is, of course, up to the worker. However, the woman in the home—the Soldier in Aprons—can do much to help impress the members of her family with the importance of selecting the right foods.

Where no lunch or food service is available in the plant, the woman in the home or boarding house needs to give special thought to packing lunches that will provide at least one-third of the day's food requirements for health and strength.

It is also part of her war job to plan, prepare and serve food for the other two meals of the day that will provide the balance of the daily food needs. This means planning menus that include the following groups: Milk and milk products, such as cheese; fruits, especially oranges, tomatoes and grapefruit; vegetables, some green or yellow and some raw; meat, poultry, fish, eggs, dried beans, peas or peanuts as alternatives; enriched or whole grain bread and cereal, butter or fortified margarine.

Too many workers today are arriving at plants without having eaten adequate breakfasts. This is one of the most important meals of the day. No worker can give his best effort to his work unless he has had a good breakfast.

Scientific studies made in factories have shown that efficiency drops and accidents increase after four hours of working time without nourishment. Mid-morning and mid-afternoon feedings consisting of light foods, such as tomato juice or fruit juice or milk, or sandwiches made of enriched or whole grain bread, and nutritious fillings tend to reduce fatigue and accidents. This is the reason why many factories today make some provision for between meal food service on food wagons or vending machines.

The guiding of the food habits of the family, and the planning of the day's meal are vitally important jobs which require tact and talent, knowledge and its application on the part of homemakers.

VITAMINS FOR FIDO

The wartime cupboard is getting barer for Fido.

Canned dog food is now but a memory. And no allowance is made for even a marrow bone for man's best friend, in the Government's newly inaugurated "Share the Meat" program.

However, the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, points out that Fido can be kept healthy by eating such protein foods as poultry, eggs, dried skim milk, pea soup, and cooked cereals.

Condemned foodstuffs seized by the Federal or State Governments will be turned into glycerine for use in manufacturing explosives. The U. S. already confiscated thousands of pounds of condemned butter, soy beans, olive oil, and other foods from which fats can be extracted for production of glycerine.

Penny-size plastic reflector disks can be fastened to projecting beams of low ceilings, door frames and risers of cellar stairs to prevent accidents in black-outs or dimly lighted areas.

---

The rubber on U. S. trucks and buses is wearing out at the rate of 35,000 tires a day.

---

In one year, one vessel can carry across the Atlantic as much wheat as could be grown in 20,000 acres and as much timber as a small 20-year forest could yield.

At Women's Show In New York

The above photograph of the exhibit sponsored by the American Federation of Labor and the Union Label Trades Department at the Nineteenth Annual Women's International Exposition of Arts and Industries recently held in Madison Square Garden, New York, shows the War Bond booth in which the figures show that A. F. of L. workers have bought one billion dollars in War Bonds since Pearl Harbor and have pledged another billion for the next year. On the panels around the entrance and exit of the booth all Union Labels, Shop Cards and Service Buttons were displayed. Other panels in the interior and exterior of the booth chronologically depicted the progress and war activities of the American Federation of Labor and affiliated Women's Auxiliaries. A huge barometer attracted unusual attention. It portrayed the total number of man-hours worked in war industry, the appalling percentage of man-hours lost through preventable industrial accidents, and that only a small fraction of 1% of man-hours were lost due to idleness caused by industrial disputes.

KANSAS LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATION DEFENDS TRADE UNIONS ON WAR AND DEFENSE CONSTRUCTION

Topeka, Kan.—The special committee of the Kansas legislative council, named last September to investigate the labor unions and alleged improper and illegal practices, declared in its report that it had found no union practices of any consequence that were illegal.

Charges of excessive initiation fees were found in the investigation to be without foundation or greatly exaggerated.

For instance, one report was that a man paid $200 to someone to get him a job. The investigation revealed that the man had calculated that getting a war job had actually cost him $200, in travel, time lost at his regular work and his payment of initiation fees and dues to the union.

The committee's findings demolished anti-labor propaganda spread in this State by Senator Clyde Reed and other politicians who sought public office on a union-smearing campaign. Many ugly rumors of graft and heavy payments for the "right to work" were probed by the legislative committee and found to have no basis in fact.

One of the chief complaints was that the government had set the wage scale with the building trades unions for the duration. Since the government was in charge of the projects, the question: "Why did a man have to join the union to get a job?" was asked.

"In the summer of 1941 the building trades unions agreed that there should be no stoppage of work on defense construction jobs," said the report. "In return the governmental agencies and, in most instances in Kansas, the contractors concerned appear to have accepted the application of traditional union policies to defense and war construction, which, of course, included the closed shop."

An examination of many workers brought this statement from the committee:

"In every case where there has been a complaint or any question raised concerning union charges, the statements of the workmen involved have been checked against the official regulations. Rumors were frequently found to be exaggerated, as was to be expected. In every instance, however, the committee found that the statement made by the worker himself as to fees charged in Kansas was correct as to the amount involved, and that this agreed with the regulations and practices authorized by the union itself. In most instances, these regulations and schedules have been established for some years.

"In other words, the committee found that labor unions have been doing what was authorized by their regulations and bylaws, and that these fees and policies . . . are not new, but had been in existence for some time before the defense program expanded union activity in the State of Kansas. In general, such changes as were found tended more often to relax established policies or reduce fees for the defense period, than to increase fee schedules or to enforce stricter policies."

SEABEES RECOVER FLOATING DRYDOCK SECTION

Navy "Seabees," working under extremely adverse conditions, recovered and repaired a section of floating drydock which broke loose from its tow during a gale and was threatened with complete destruction on a rocky coast of Massachusetts. The "Seabees" were recruited mainly from the ranks of organized labor.

The structure was being badly damaged by the rocks and the pounding of the heavy seas. It was aground at an isolated point so difficult to reach that engineers at first considered it to be a total loss. However, if it was abandoned a complete floating drydock would have been kept out of use until the missing section was replaced. It was decided, therefore, to attempt to salvage the unit.

Navy Construction Battalion, or "Seabee", men set to work to recover the dock section under the direction of Civil Engineer Corps officers. The men battled sub-zero weather, bitterly cold winds, breakers on the shore, and heavy seas. They constructed a temporary pier out from the shore.

Over this were taken men, materials, and equipment. From the pier carpenters and mechanics went to work on the upper part and inside of the dock at the same time divers worked under water on the hull.

Large jagged rocks had punched holes in the bottom of the dock section. It was necessary to build water-tight boxes around the holes so that the dock could be pumped out. When this had been done the rocks under the hull were blasted loose with dynamite. It was necessary to handle this blasting with great care so that the charge would not damage the hull further. In addition the "Seabees" had to blast and dredge a clear channel to deep water.

The dock section was so firmly wedged aground that it could not be floated at once even after the holes were sealed and it was once more made buoyant. This obstacle was overcome by building a jacking platform on shore side of the section and actually lifting up the grounded end with jacks, until it was free. Sea-going tugs pulled the structure free and towed it to open water. In spite of the most adverse conditions, the work was completed six weeks after it began.

A BILL TO MAKE REQUESTS FOR HIGHER WAGES A CRIME

By Alfred Baker Lewis

Member, American Federation of Teachers Local 189

A bill that carries extreme dangers for the rights of workers is the Hobbs Bill now before Congress to make organized labor subject to the so-called anti-racketeering statute. The bill is particularly dangerous because it seems reasonable enough that labor should not be permitted to racketeer and to persons who do not know the facts that seems all that the Hobbs Bill would do. But the wording of the anti-racketeering statute is so wide that actually demand for increased wages, if the employer feared or testified that he feared, that there might be a strike if he refused to concede them, could be made subject to ten years imprisonment.

For the anti-racketeering statute reads that anyone who in connection with interstate commerce "obtains or attempts to obtain by the use or attempts to use or threats to use force, violence or coercion, the payment of money or other valuable considerations," is guilty of violation of the law and may be subject to ten years in jail or $10,000.00 fine or both.

If you read that carefully you will see the joker in it from the point of view of labor and of anyone who wants organized labor to keep the right to function at all. For the statute says that anyone who threatens to use coercion to obtain the payment of money is guilty. Higher wages of course constitute the payment of money. Unless the employer takes the initiative in offering increased wages you have to put some pressure on him and that is coercion. If the employer says he was afraid of a strike and if a strike might interfere with his business or his profits, and all strikes do that to some extent, then there is coercion. If there was merely the possibility of a strike lurking in the background or present in the employers' thoughts and consideration as a possible penalty for failure to reach some agreement through the process of collective bargaining, then there is the threat of coercion.

Thus the union official or the union members who acted on the collective bargaining committee or who called or participated in a strike, or who the employer thought would call or participate in a strike, would be guilty of coercion or a threat to use coercion to obtain money, that is high pay. Nor would a strike or collective bargaining in which the possibility of a strike was in the background be legal merely because it was not ever the question of higher pay. For the phrase "other valuable considerations", takes care of that.

Thus organized labor could not function at all.

It is not too much to say that that is the purpose

HOME-GROWN FASCISTS DESTROYING UNITY NEEDED TO WHIP ENEMY

Strikes Take Only Fraction of Toll in Munitions That Industrial Accidents Are Causing

By J. Frank Dobie

Internal boring, as though we had no war to win, is calmly proceeding with business as usual. State legislatures throughout the country are being flooded with anti-labor legislation under various guises; and there are those who, minimizing the real dangers to our country from our enemies without, use cheap politics in their subtle tactics to try to divide the nation.

Professor J. Frank Dobie, widely known author and professor of history at the University of Texas, with keen insight analyzes the current situation in the following article published in the February 21 issue of the Waco Tribune-Herald, brought to our attention by E. W. Bundy, president of Local 364:

The United States now has probably more than a million and a half of its uniformed men in foreign zones. Undoubtedly more are going. Except for detachments in the Pacific and for widely dispersed flying squadrons, they have at this writing hardly begun to fight. The navy, of course, has been fighting. An army in Africa is gathering itself to spring at the axis. The invasion of Europe has not been started—an invasion that, to quote the administration's spokesman, James F. Byrnes, will be "one of the greatest military operations ever planned in history, involving casualties such as this nation has never before endured." And this nation once endured the Civil war.

And in this solemn hour before the earthquake of bombings and before the tidal wave of blood, in this solemn hour while legions of light-footed and open-faced young men wait to die deaths that will reach into most of the households of the land, the people of America are more disunited than they have been at any other time since Woodrow Wilson lost his fight for a league of nations. The situation is stranger, with potentialities more tragic, than the fall of France.

Japs Still on Top

Meanwhile, despite some losses and setbacks she has suffered and despite our maneuvering into offensive positions, Japan still has us guessing. Meantime, also, Chinese soldiers are growing too weak from literal starvation to fight. Russia's call for food is as insistent as her call for materials of war. The African land we deploy over without fighting is starving, and we have to convoy as much food to it as to our soldiers on it. Meantime, the submarine menace is growing in power.

Amid such conditions James B. Farley of New York makes a speech to the legislature at Austin and says, in effect, that we have as good as won the war and that it is now time to turn to domestic matters. By turning to domestic matters, he means turning against the Roosevelt administration.

Amid such conditions Senator W. Lee O'Daniel is in a well-managed campaign going over the country reading a speech to those state legislators from whom invitations to appear can be manipulated. The burden of his speech is: (1) Rationing is unnecessary; there is plenty of everything; the administration is enforcing rationing just because it has a passion for making itself unpopular. (2) Put the clamps on labor. The administration that favors labor is as vicious as labor is. Oust the administration.

Sooners Flay W. Lee

After Senator O'Daniel spoke in Oklahoma, incensed legislators made speeches against his vicious attacks on the government and demanded an explanation of how he got invited to speak. Before he spoke in Minnesota, citizens carried signs in front of the capitol bearing this inscription: "Hitler can't be here. Senator Pappy O'Daniel speaks in his place to divide U. S."

What, anyhow, is the source and center of all our internal dissension? It is, while throwing much dust into the eyes of the public over bureaucrats and strikes, an upsurge of reactionaries against liberalism.

It's Up to Us

We shall not fight the axis powers into an unconditional surrender unless we people at home unite behind our well co-ordinated fighting forces of air, sea and land. Powerful reactionary forces in America, keeping well back behind the scenes, seem not to want an unconditional surrender on the part of the axis powers. Take Martin Dies and his committee—which does not stay behind the scenes. Have you ever heard of this committee's investigating fascist elements in the government? The only enemies it has ever recognized are alleged communists. It was fine when Will Rogers Jr. got up in congress the other day and remarked that no matter what Russia's point of view might be, she is not helping to spread the Nazi "state of mind" over the world and through America.

Whom Does He Hate?

I do not see how anybody who hates what the nazis stand for can spend his whole time pouring out hate against labor, hate against the administration that is directing our war, hate against the Russians, who, while beating German armies are losing millions of their men, women and children under the heel of nazism.

The main object of attack just now in the great American Internal Strife is organized labor. I am not an economist, but I have recently tried to inform myself somewhat on the subject. In order to get the truth about anything you always have to go back some distance and take in various surrounding conditions.

Hazardous Work

Industrial labor has always been fraught with hazards to life and limb. One of the chief motives for organization of the railroad brotherhoods of America was to force the railroad companies to spend some of their profits on improvements for protecting the lives of trainmen and to promote mutual life insurance. At a time not remote, no old line life insurance company would insure the life of a brakeman. His average expectancy of life as a brakeman was less than five years.

During the year following Pearl Harbor, according to Lieut. Gov. John Lee Smith of Texas, 600,000 man work days were lost to American industry by reason of strikes. During 1941, according to a bulletin issued by the U. S. department of labor, industrial accidents cost that same industry 251,000,000 man work days. Following Pearl Harbor and intensification of work, the accident rate increased markedly. Yet, in 1942 American laborers worked 10,696,250,000 man days. Divide this into 600,000 and you will get the percentage of loss to total industry through strikes—roughly, six-thousandths of one per cent (.000056).

This percentage of strikes among our 39,000,000 industrial workers—not even the majority of them organized, however—does not appear to be very serious. It is not serious. The fact is that a strike of any kind always makes news. Five hundred wildcat strikers can make bigger headlines than the machinations of one enormous corporation that has brought a perilous shortage of rubber to the nation.

The Real Cancer

Then Professor Dobie goes on to state that while the millions are working on, day and night, a baker's dozen of strikers get the headlines, and are called "scoundrels", which leaves the impression that organized labor is the cancer of American democracy.

In order to protect Texas from this "cancer" a representative from Gonzales county, where no labor organizations exist, was recently selected to introduce a bill into the Texas legislature that, if made a law, would ham-string all organized labor. One thing to be said for union men is that as a rule they are well enough informed on economic matters to prevent politicians from pulling the wool over their eyes. In Texas there has not been a single strike in war industries since the war started.

I am not afraid of any men who sweat, be they organized or unorganized. I am not afraid of the men in uniform. I am afraid of fascists who are trying to drive a wedge of hate and distrust between the men who fight and the laborers who supply them materials to fight with.

Hitler, Laval, Too

Hitler banned all labor unions as soon as he came to power. Collaborationist Laval regards unions as worse than his country's slavery under Hitler. There are no labor unions in fascist Italy. There can be no labor unions in any axis dominated country. In Great Britain there is a strong labor party, and if this party had been stronger the appeasers led by Chamberlain would never have allowed Hitler to turn this earth into the hell it has become.

The National Manufacturers association may raise clouds of smoke and dust against labor, but that will not hide from the discerning the cold fact that Standard Oil by its treaties or cartel agreement, with the super-corporation of Germany has lost to the citizens of America and to our war effort more than hours than all the strikes of 1941 and 1942 put together.

Why They Organize

We live in an age of organized business. How could a democracy with many millions of laborers remain a democracy without organization of labor also? Some of these organizations have made mistakes, have done wrong. But all their strikes put together have not held up production as much as shortage of materials directly traceable to the refusal of industry to expand production requested by the government in 1940 and 1941. Certain organized sections of industry held up emergency defense legislation for months while they worked for tax concessions that would enable them to write off new plant investment in five years. Some industries refused to convert from commercial to war production, insisting on the construction of new plant facilities and childishly hoping to maintain production of consumer goods and to handle big war contracts at the same time.

Poor Prophets

Some of the mighty corporations who wanted to do business with Hitler but who were poor prophets and were exposed are now yelling "Stop Thief" and pointing at labor, at the administration, at anything to take public attention away from their own mistakes. Their cries do not add to their own patriotic stature. The millions they are spending on publicity does not lessen the favor with which the recipients look on them!

I often think of my father as one of the justest men I have ever known. He was an unswerving democrat, but lived most of his life under republican administrations. He always held family prayers. I can hear him now as he prayed nightly for God to bless "those in authority over us. Bless, oh, God, and be with the president of our country."

FACING THE FACTS

With Philip Pearl

Labor's loyal enemies—they stick with us through thick and thin—have got a new word for it—absenteeism. And they are now busily using this word as a whip and a scourge on the backs of the great army of American production soldiers.

Absenteeism is a grievous fault. We would be the last to deny it. It cuts into war production, it eats up manpower, it slows down the war effort.

But are the workers who occasionally absent themselves from the job entirely and alone at fault? Is this absence altogether deliberate and voluntary? Is it caused by shirking, by irresponsibility, by lack of patriotism?

So the enemies of labor would have us believe—at least by inference. They turn the heat on labor exclusively. The anti-labor propagandists are trying to sell the public the idea that war workers are making so much money that they can't resist the urge to take a few days off for a prolonged drunk. They are trying to create the impression that absenteeism is caused by mass hangers-on.

But what are the facts?

Here They Are!

The facts are that the largest proportion of absenteeism is caused by preventable accidents and preventable illnesses; by unavoidable factors, such as blizzards, floods and transportation breakdowns; by poor housing, by fatigue resulting from excessive working hours; by shortages of materials, by bad scheduling and planning of work by management and by required appearances before Selective Service Boards and other Government agencies.

Only a tiny fraction of absenteeism results from deliberate and irresponsible waywardness by individual workers.

These facts were brought out by studies conducted by the major Federal war agencies who are most deeply concerned with the problem of absenteeism. The survey found that responsibility for absenteeism is shared by management and by local, State and Federal Government, as well as by labor. No attempt was made to hide the facts or to whitewash them. The truth was too obvious.

The toll of preventable accidents in this country since the war began is greater in deaths and disability than casualties suffered by American troops on the field of battle. Such accidents result from lack of proper safeguards, from the speed-up of war production and from the greed of profit-hungry employers, as well as from individual carelessness.

Illnesses in war factories this winter have caused excessive absence. And why? Because millions of war workers were called upon to go to communities where no proper provision for housing and heating had been made. Thousands of them are crowded in unsanitary huts and hovels and trailers and rooming houses. The high cost of living has contributed its share since adequate and proper diet is out of the reach of low-paid workers. Under these conditions, disease thrives.

Remove the Causes

When people talk freely and ignorantly of absenteeism, we'd like to confront them with workers who come to the job day after day only to be told by the foreman that there is no work for them because "the materials haven't arrived." These workers, who are paid on an hourly basis, might indeed grow bitter about absenteeism—their own enforced and unpaid absenteeism.

Now, about excessive working hours. This brings to mind an article we read recently in the Saturday Evening Post about a mid-west war manufacturer whose practice it is to lure his workers into putting in 70 or more hours a week by offering high overtime bonuses. This employer admits his men are ready to drop when they quit work, but he says they recuperate quickly when they see their pay envelopes. What he doesn't realize is that the human body is a delicate machine and will break down from overwork, regardless of high pay. This man and many other employers like him are contributing to absenteeism.

We could go on indefinitely with other examples of absenteeism that is involuntary on the part of the workers and for which inefficient management and poor Government planning are responsible. But the point is that we get nowhere by blame and accusations, whether these are directed against employers, against Government or against labor.

That isn't the way to reduce absenteeism. The way to do it is to remove its causes. And we feel that if workers' housing and diet were improved, if transportation to the job were put on a more efficient basis, if hours of work were kept within reasonable limits, if materials and tools were on hand when the worker reports on the job, if America's war production soldiers were given the credit they deserve for their service to their country instead of constant abuse, absenteeism would cease to be a problem.

Hobbs Bill

of some backers of the bill both in Congress and out. They are relying upon the anti-labor feeling which has been worked up by men like Westbrook Pegler and Captain Rickenbacker to destroy labor organizations.

THE WORLD AT WAR

WINNING THE PEACE

By Lloyd M. Cosgrove

Workers Education Bureau of America

We are tenting tonight on the old camp ground;
 Give us a song of cheer
 Our weary hearts—a song of home
 And friends we love so dear.
 Many are the hearts that are weary tonight
 Waiting for the war to cease;
 Many are the hearts, battling for the right,
 That wait the dawn of peace.

"Tenting Tonight" was a song frequently heard during the American Civil War (1861-1865). It expressed the sentiment of every soul, both North and South. That sentiment was set forth in similar words by Abraham Lincoln when, in his Second Inaugural, he said: "Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away." How that loathing of war which was felt by our ancestors echoes in our hearts today! How clearly Lincoln expressed our present wish when he ended his Inaugural with the words: "Let us do all which may achieve a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations"!

A lasting peace! That is our goal. Though we hate war; though "war is hell"; though our entire globe is enveloped in this hell today; we cannot in decency contemplate a fatuous "peace" like that which followed the First World War. Better to fight on indefinitely than to afford the aggressor nations another twenty years of truce. If it is to be only twenty years between "Kamerad!" and "Deutschland uber Alles!", the price we and our children must pay for the truce is far too high. The fires of the hell of war must really be extinguished, even though they be extinguished in rivers of blood.

The American Civil War is well worth considering because it furnished a perfect example of a successful "war to end wars" so far as the states of the Union were concerned. In two respects, in particular, it makes clear the policy that must be pursued if the present war is to be brought to more than a transitory ending.

The American Civil War was fought to a finish; it was not broken off by an "armistice." Had there been less determination on each side, a patched-up "peace" might have been arranged in July of 1863, following the battle of Gettysburg and the fall of Vicksburg. The first put an end to Southern dreams of successfully invading the North; the second, by giving the North command of the Mississippi River, dismembered the western portion of the Confederacy from the eastern portion. The ultimate victory of the North was, by these events, rendered quite as certain as the ultimate victory of the Allies was in November 1918, when Germany asked for the Armistice.

The Confederates, though, were Americans. They had no idea of acknowledging defeat so long as they were able to struggle and there was the slightest chance of victory. Furthermore, the North, under the far-seeing idealistic-realistic leadership of Lincoln, was in no mood to accept anything short of unconditional surrender. Hence it was that, although the outcome of the war was almost certain by the middle of 1863, it continued with unabated fury for almost two years longer. Hundreds of thousands of casualties were suffered by both sides during these terrible years and the agony of both North and South was intense. In this respect, the continuation of the war after July 1863 was unfortunate indeed. Many thousands of bright young lives were snuffed out even though, as we view the events from the historical standpoint, the issue was already settled.

Those who died in the Civil War after July 1863 did not die in vain. If the South had weakly surrendered before she was utterly defeated, millions of her population would have doubted the need for surrender and the seeds of discontent and, perhaps, of a new attempt at secession would have been sown. If the North had accepted an armistice and a compromise peace had been devised, the question of whether this was a nation or merely a federation of states would have remained in abeyance to hamper all our future growth and perhaps to cause a still more dreadful civil war. The firmness of the South and the firmness of the North caused the American Civil War to be fought to its ultimate conclusion and once and for all. It bequeathed no doubtful issues to posterity.

May the present war be equally decisive! The Germans and the Japanese have declared themselves to be "master races" to whom all the rest of the world owe allegiance. May they realize as soon as possible how utterly foolish their notion is! May they never surrender nor be granted an armistice until they are willing to take their proper place as citizen peoples of the world! We cannot afford to make peace with a partially beaten Japan nor with a partially beaten Germany as we did in 1918. We must have with each of them an Appomattox!

The second lesson taught by the American Civil War is that an utterly prostrate foe should be treated generously. In the main, this was the policy of the federal government toward the South—no indemnities, no executions, no prolonged imprisonments. This policy has been a major factor in healing the breach and making the South as utterly loyal

GREEN BLASTS STATES' ANTI-LABOR DRIVE AS RUDE TO HIT WAR PRODUCTION

Washington, D. C.—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor charged that reactionary interests, facing certain defeat of anti-labor legislation in Congress, have launched a concerted campaign to carry out their objectives by the enactment of similar bills in the various state legislatures.

This is an attempt to "by-pass" President Roosevelt and to obstruct him in the direction of the war production program, Mr. Green warned.

He urged all State Federations of Labor to be on the alert for such dangerous bills and to exert all their power to defeat them.

Mr. Green's statement follows:

"War production was more than quadrupled during 1942, the first year of the war. This year labor faces the heavy task of doubling last year's staggering volume of war production. We are confident we can attain this goal, which is vital to victory, if the freedoms of American workers are not restricted and if the hands of the trade unions that represent them are not tied by vicious legislation.

"The splendid production achievements of 1942 were made possible by the hard work of American workers and the all-out cooperation of their trade unions with every program initiated by the government.

"The Congress of the United States understands this and so do the officials of our federal government, led by our Commander-in-Chief, President Roosevelt. Therefore, we are confident that the anti-labor bills now pending in Congress will meet the defeat that they merit.

"Apparently, the selfish, reactionary interests who are the real sponsors of these bills also are aware of this fact. That is why they have now launched a concerted campaign to obtain enactment of similar laws in the state legislatures.

"This is equivalent to stabbing the government and the labor movement in the back. It is an attempt to by-pass the President and the leaders of our Army and Navy and erect obstacles on the home front which will hinder them in the successful prosecution of the war.

"The American Federation of Labor does not question the right or the duty of state legislatures to adopt laws which in their judgment are necessary for the welfare of the citizens they represent. But we do protest most vigorously against the false and misleading propaganda with which the enemies of labor are flooding the members of state legislatures in an effort to induce them to take piecemeal action

PEOPLE IN GLASS HOUSES

(Brewery Worker)

Certain Congressmen seem to have become greatly alarmed at the alleged high rate of absenteeism in war plants. Until a few weeks or so ago, this was a subject wholly unknown to and undiscussed by them—or by anybody else, for that matter. The first they knew about it was when some Government agency reported a recent increase in absenteeism among war workers, stressing the undesirable effect, if continued, upon the war production program. Until this subject of absenteeism was thus suddenly thrust upon them, these same Congressmen were obsessed only with a desire to pass legislation designed to stop the mythical strikes which, they claimed, were “sabotaging” the war effort; now they are concentrating all their time, effort, and vocal power on legislation to curb this new “evil”—absenteeism.

Perhaps there is reason for alarm at the number of war workers who absent themselves unnecessarily from the vital jobs they are doing. However, we venture to say that the number who stay away without good reason are but a very small percentage of the whole.

Regardless of all this, however, it appears that many, if not all, of these same Congressmen who are so bent upon punishing a worker for taking time off, are themselves in the front ranks of the nation's shirkers. The House meets but five days a week and three or four hours, at most, on these days, yet, despite these fine conditions—which no worker in the country enjoys—the absenteeism rate averages at least 25 per cent. Last week only 115 Congressmen attended a session at which an important appropriation bill was up for consideration—115 out of a total of close to 450 members. This was above the average of House absenteeism, but not at all unusual.

Now let's move over into the Senate. The Senators take their duties more seriously than do the Congressmen—that is, all except Senator W. Lee O'Daniel, the Eminent Prohibitionist and Labor Hater, and several others of his stripe. (O'Daniel's attendance mark in the Senate in recent weeks has been zero. He has been touring the country, appearing before various State Legislatures in behalf of his personal brand of anti-unionism). Yet even a Senator is not above taking a day or two off now and then, and the average absentee rate there is also higher—much higher—than the average rate in all war industries.

We do not expect that the gentlemen in Congress will ever equal the long hours of labor and the very low rate of absenteeism found among the workers of the nation. But we can at least expect that they will stop their hullabaloo on the subject until their record is as good as that of the average worker.

THE DRYS ON THE MARCH

(Catering Industry Employee)

Prohibitionists are once more active. They are intent on getting Congress to pass legislation banning the sale of alcoholic beverages in military camps and reservations and in the surrounding communities. Members of that body have been receiving a steady stream of letters, petitions and resolutions, urging the enactment of such legislation.

The plan of campaign is strikingly similar to that carried on by the dries during World War I. The first move is to be made against the camps, then against surrounding areas, which might include metropolitan centers, and finally to embrace the whole country. But it seems hardly likely that such a program can be carried through. However, the threat is serious enough to move Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., to write a warning against it in the Atlantic Monthly. He stresses that such an attempt at moral regimentation would be deeply resented by the men in the armed services.

The American people still have a lively remembrance of the great disorders that developed during prohibition. They are not likely again to accept a dispensation that breeds such evils as the speakeasy, the small-time bootlegger, and the big shot racketeer.

The Hotel and Restaurant Employees' International Alliance and Bartenders' International League of America proposes to lead in an alliance with other groups to initiate and maintain an active movement towards the defeat of any and all legislation that will tend to advance prohibition, and to inaugurate an educational campaign against the return of the speakeasy, the bootlegger, and the racketeer.

GREEN BLASTS ANTI-LABOR DRIVE

on issues which in a war emergency must be decided by the federal authorities.

“State legislatures are not in a position to know the facts with regard to the war production program as well as the heads of the War and Navy Departments, the War Production Board and the President, himself. We appeal to them, therefore, not to obstruct the war production program by local legislation but to give our Commander-in-Chief and his trusted aides a free hand in directing it.

“At the same time, the American Federation of Labor calls upon all of its affiliated State Federations of Labor to keep ever on the alert against proposed state legislation which, under cover of supposedly patriotic motives, attempts to hamstring labor. We urge our State Federations of Labor to exert all their power to defeat such bills.”

AMERICAN RED CROSS

LABOR SECTION, WASHINGTON, D. C.

February 8, 1943

Mr. William J. McSorley, President
International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers
Lathers' Building
Detroit Avenue and West 26th Street
Cleveland, Ohio

Dear Mr. McSorley:

One year ago, shortly after Pearl Harbor, the American Red Cross appealed to the American people for funds to carry on the work which it anticipated as necessary during the following year. The response of the nation to the appeal was characterized by President Roosevelt as the "the first evidence of complete national unity since our entrance into the war."

President Roosevelt has designated March, 1943, as Red Cross Month, during which $125,000,000 must be raised by the Red Cross in order to continue its broad program for another year. Members of organized labor, taking an active part in the work of the many Red Cross chapters, will be called upon to help in the campaign and to make their own donations to this fund.

In preparation for this work I am writing to ask for a statement endorsing the campaign and urging the members of your union to give their full support. While it is still a matter of weeks before the campaign opens, I would appreciate receiving this at your earliest convenience, inasmuch as both national and chapter headquarters are anxious to have it for inclusion in publicity material.

Sixty-five percent of the entire national budget will be devoted to direct services to the armed forces with which the Red Cross is charged under its Congressional charter. These include advice and help of field staffs sent with the troops to domestic army camps and overseas. Through Home Service Corps of local chapters, a link between servicemen and home is maintained by the Red Cross.

In addition, other fields of operation include extensive war relief, communication through the International Red Cross Committee to prisoners of war and persons in occupied countries, disaster relief, civilian training, and special projects such as the Blood Donor Service.

To the millions of union members who have friends and relatives in the armed forces, the appeal for funds on the part of the Red Cross has a distinct personal meaning. Organized labor responded generously in the last campaign and, I am sure, will again show the same spirit of cooperation.

As you may know, the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor has endorsed the 1943 Red Cross War Fund campaign, stating: "We urge every member of the American Federation of Labor to contribute to the Red Cross fund this year and we call upon all local and State organizations of the American Federation of Labor to give the drive their organized support." United Nations Relief has pledged the cooperation of its national and regional offices and arrangements have been made for all donations to be credited in the name of the unions.

We ask that you add your statement of endorsement to that of the Executive Council, sending one copy to your official publication and the other to us in this office for national release to daily and labor papers.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely yours,
Mary Pond
Labor Adviser

ATTENTION MEMBERS: We urge each and every one of you to cooperate in this worthy cause, by donating all you possibly can afford.

HOME-GROWN FASCISTS DESTROY UNITY

In these solemn hours and days while we wait for the titanic attacks that will before they end bring black death to hundreds of thousands of the brightest sons of America and mutilation for life to untold thousands of others, we citizens who wish for the unconditional surrender of our enemies—the enemies of mankind—must surely stand united behind our armies. I can but think that most responsible citizens who wish for that unconditional surrender and who have boys among the legions would like to unite in a prayer to God to guide and direct the commander-in-chief of all our fighting and producing forces, the president of our country.

That woman who has hoarded up 15 pairs of shoes and 10 dozen pairs of stockings and is now whining because shoes are rationed is not much smaller than many of the promoters of internal strife raging over the country. If they succeed in their efforts, we could lose the war, and a national revolution—perhaps not bloodless—is inevitable. If we are reasonably united, victory is certain and a prosperous peace possible.

WINNING THE PEACE

to the Stars and Stripes as any other portion of the nation. The brief period of "carpet-bag rule" was a shameful exception, but perhaps it served a good purpose by demonstrating how much harm the persecution of a defeated people can do. The evil, fortunately, was soon corrected.

What concrete measures we shall take with regard to our would-be "masters" after we have forced them into abject surrender is not, of course, altogether clear. Certainly we should be as kind to them as circumstances will permit for, like us, they are human beings suffering amid the flames of war. To be sure, they started the flames but by the time they are reduced to utter surrender they will merit our pity rather than our persecution.

The greatest lesson the American Civil War teaches us is the first one: we must grant no armistice; we must not enter upon a "negotiated peace"; we must have complete, utter, undisputed victory!

SOLDIERS OF PRODUCTION

Inch by inch they raised the banner,
Token of their Country's praise;
And each heart was beating faster
While they stood with upturned gaze.

Silent, grim determination
Shown on every loyal face
As they proudly watched their banner
Till it reached its honored place.

"E" the symbol, "Badge of Honor,"
None could miss the import shown,
They had taken up the challenge
And the trust would be their own.

Soldiers, all, behind the limelight,
Each one striving with his might,
Backing up their gallant brothers
With the weapons in their fight.

Would there be a single shirker?
No, not one who stood that day
Gazing upward to their banner
And to God, who showed the way.

—Alberta E. Mackey

Bulletin, Aberdeen, Washington.

We have since been informed that while the Labor Bulletin published this article, it did not originate with them, but was written by Mr. Roe Fulkerson, editorial writer for the Kiwanis International Magazine.

Nothing is so easy as to deceive one's self, for what we wish we readily believe.—Demosthenes.

Think all you speak, but speak not all you think.
—Delaney.

A PRAYER FOR COURAGE TODAY

O God, Who rulest the world from end to end and from everlasting to everlasting; speak to our hearts when courage fails, and men faint for fear, and the love of many grows cold, and there is distress of the nations upon earth. Keep us resolute and steadfast in the things that cannot be shaken, abounding in hope and knowing that our labor is not in vain in Thee. Restore our faith in the omnipotence of good, renew in us the love which never faileth; and make us to lift up our eyes and behold, beyond the things which are seen and temporal, the things which are unseen and eternal; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

MOTHER OF HARRY J. HAGEN DIES

Mrs. Mary Hagen, beloved mother of our first Vice President Harry J. Hagen, passed away at the age of 81 years, February 17, in Bound Brook, N. J.

She had been in ill health for some time and in the past four years had undergone three major operations.

We realize this has been a severe blow to Brother Hagen and we know that we are voicing the sentiments of all our officers and members in offering our sincere condolences to him and his family in their bereavement.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst our beloved Brother Jerry M. Nesbitt, No. 227, and

WHEREAS, Brother Nesbitt will be greatly missed by our craft, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of Local 17, express our deepest sympathy to the relatives and friends of our deceased brother; and, be it further

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our official journal.

H. A. Lynch, Secretary
Local Union, No. 17.

WHEREAS, The Divine Ruler in his infinite wisdom has removed from our midst our beloved Brother Joseph Orne Brower, No. 19938, and

WHEREAS, Brother Brower was a loyal worker, true to the principles of organized labor, and served our local union faithfully in offices entrusted to him—at one time he was business agent of our local union and also served on the executive board—therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That we, the members of Local Union No. 24, as a final tribute, extend our heartfelt condolences to his surviving family; and be it also

RESOLVED, That the charter of our local union be draped for a period of thirty days; and a copy of these resolutions be sent to headquarters for publication in our official journal.

H. B. Kimple, Secretary
Local Union No. 24

WHEREAS, Brother Herbert Albert Hartsel, No. 279, greatly beloved and esteemed charter member of Local Union No. 24 passed on to his Eternal Reward and

WHEREAS, Brother Hartsel will be sadly missed, as he always willingly served our local union in various capacities and for the benefit of his local union gladly shared the wisdom gained from many years of trade union affiliation, and constantly strove to maintain and better conditions which, as an old-time member, he recalled only too well had been gained at great sacrifice, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That our heartfelt condolences be extended to his family and many friends, and be it also

RESOLVED, That the charter of Local Union No. 24 be draped for a period of thirty days in tribute to our departed fellow-member; and a copy of these resolutions be submitted to our International office for publication in our official journal.

H. B. Kimple, Secretary

BRAZIL COMPENSATES MEN IN ARMY

Brazilian workers called to the colors receive fifty per cent of their minimum wages for the duration of the war, and are guaranteed their employment on return to civil life.

NUTRITION AND LABOR

Interest in food has shifted from the theoretical level to the practical. The extension of rationing, the more frequent occurrence of shortages, the disappearance from the store shelves of favorite items, the rise in prices of many commodities—all these changes bring food consciousness to every American home. In addition, the constantly changing food picture requires food alertness in order to make the best of the situation prevailing at the moment. Food is a mighty war weapon but we need nutrition information to teach us how to take care of that weapon and how to use it well.

To develop this alertness in labor, I. M. Ornburn, Secretary-Treasurer, Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, in cooperation with the Nutrition in Industry Section of the Nutrition Division of the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services is supplying information of immediate value to every housewife, to every worker and to every mother. This information will contain the latest nutrition knowledge and will take into full account the current picture of rationing, availability, cost, seasons, nutritional value, transportation facilities and similar elements which the war brings into play. By following these articles, every reader can learn to keep fit in health and morale, do his job in our struggle for survival, have a patriotically efficient kitchen, save by spending wisely and serve nutritious and delicious meals.

In the last article on dinners we discussed in some detail the fact that our homemakers have to change their ways of cooking vegetables. It is perhaps advisable to repeat here that all vegetables should be cooked in as little water as possible for a brief period of time, with little stirring and in well-covered pots. The intelligent homemaker should try to see the reasons for these kitchen commandments. It so happens that some of the vitamins contained in the vegetables are composed of delicate chemical substances. Rough treatment, such as prolonged cooking and exposure to air, changes them and destroys those wonderful properties which help in building the body's health and in keeping it working properly. Prolonged cooking destroys them. Cooking vegetables in much water removes them. When much water is available, the vitamins leave the vegetable matter and become dissolved in the water. When the water is then thrown out, as is customary with such cooks, the sink gets the vitamins and the family gets what is left, which isn't much. In exposing vegetables to air we also help bring the vitamins in contact with oxygen of the air and thus change them in such a way as to make them lose their vitamin properties.

It is precisely for these reasons that too much stirring is not desirable. In stirring we mix the material with air and therefore speed up the process of exposure to the oxygen of the air. It is also for these reasons that scientific cooking demands boiling vegetables for a short time in covered containers and without stirring. It is for similar reasons that vegetables should be prepared immediately before use and should not be cut up too much.

Consider the orange as a typical fruit. Nature protects the vitamins in the orange from these evils by a thin skin and an outside thicker one. Destroy the skins and expose the inside to air and the vitamin quality of the orange vanishes. The same is true of the potato. The skin prevents the oxygen from penetration into the inside. Cut the potato open and oxygen gets in and immediately many changes begin to take place, as can be seen by the fact that the potato will get red and black. It is this delicate chemical nature of some of the vitamins that demands intelligent handling in preparing vegetables.

That does not imply that we must do away with cooking. We must not jump from one extreme to another. Many vegetables cannot be eaten raw because they are too rough and the fiber may irritate our intestinal tract. Also cooking eases the digestion of the substances and in some cases even helps the absorption of vitamins by our tissues. It is desirable to have this point in mind for a proper balance in our dinner.

Besides potatoes, a dinner should contain cooked vegetables, such as broccoli, cauliflower, beans, kale, cabbage, etc., and also a salad made of raw vegetables such as cabbage, carrots, tomatoes, peppers, green leaves of turnips or mustard, lettuce, etc.

Now this is not a difficult thing to remember nor is it a difficult habit to acquire. Just as we remember that a dinner differs from a breakfast, so can we learn to remember that every dinner should have potatoes in one form or another, two cooked vegetables, and a raw salad. These are more important for health than fancy pies or desserts. Now some homemakers have the idea that they enjoy making roasts and pies because they require skill and they invariably are the kind of dish that shows personality and the results of their efforts; but that a salad does not amount to much, because it just means throwing vegetables together. This is not so. Salad dressings and different amounts and types of vegetables mixed together yield different tastes, and any home maker can show originality and personality in making salads as much as in making pies.

During the last war the mail-order price for a pair of overalls rose from 82 cents to $2.95 and at one time a 10-pound bag of sugar cost $2.67.

In Chicago last year, 8,105 families shared the products of 547 community war gardens.

WIT AND HUMOR

An Irishman applied for a job at the gas plant.
 "What can you do?" asked the foreman.
 "Almost anything," answered the applicant.
 "Well," said the foreman, you seem to be all right.
 Could you wheel out a barrel of smoke?"
 "Sure; fill it up for me."

Pat says if he had a face like a Jap he wouldn't care if he lost it or not.

Mike and Cassidy met in the lodge room.
 "Sure, Mike, my bhoy, and what's the idea of wearing a mourning band on your left leg?" asked Cassidy wonderingly.
 "Me mither has passed away, an' all an' all," said Mike miserably.

Cassidy scratched his head, puzzled.
 "Why, then do you wear it on your leg instead of on your arm?" he asked.
 "Well, she was my stepmither," said the other.

Casey—"It's an elegant time I had Saturday night, but the devil a bit of it I can remember after midnight."

O'Brien—"How do you know you had a good time, then?"

Casey—"Sure, and I heard the officer telling the judge about it Monday morning."—Ex.

Three tramps had boiled a chicken and were arguing how to divide it. One suggested they should toss a coin. "Head," called Sam. "Tail," called Tom. "I'll take what's left," said Pat.

It was cleaning day at the menagerie and the animals had to be shifted into fresh cages. Patrick was assisted with the transfer of a hyena.

"Stidy, there, lion," he quavered.
 "What's the idea," asked an attendant, "calling that hyena a lion?"
 "Have ye no tact? Can't ye see I'm flattering the baste?"

Two Irishmen, who had not seen each other for a long time, met at a fair.

O'Brien—Sure, it's married I am, and I have got a fine, healthy boy, which the neighbors say is the very picture of me.

Malone—Och, well, what's the harm, so long as the child is healthy?

Two Irishmen were peering through a display window at a collection of diamonds. One said to the other: "Mike, how would you like to have your pick in there?"

"Begorra," said Mike, "I would rather have me shovel."

Pat had been hurt. It wasn't much more than a scratch, but his employer, with visions of being obliged to keep him for the rest of his life, sent him to a hospital for examination.

The doctor said: "As subcutaneous abrasion is not observable, I do not think there is any reason to apprehend tegumental cicatrization of the wound."

"Ah!" said Pat, in relief. "Ye took the very words out of me mouth."

An Irishman obtained leave from work to attend a wedding. He returned with two black eyes.

The foreman asked him what had happened.

"When I got there," replied the Irishman, "I saw a fellow all dressed up like a peacock. 'An' who are you?' says I. 'I'm the best man,' he says, an' begorra, he was, too!"

The American and the Irishman were trying to see which could tell the taller story.

Said the American: "Well, I guess this beats everything. I once knew a man in the States who could take a 20-rung ladder into a field, stand it up on end, and then walk up to the top and down again."

"Begorrah, that's nothin' at all," replied Pat, not to be outdone. "Oi know a man in Oireland who can take the same ladder into a field, stand it on end, walk up to the top and then pull it up after him."

Pat, applying at the circus for a job, said: "I come here because I am the most famous dwarf in the world."

"You a dwarf? Why, you stand nearly five feet."

"That's just it. I'm the tallest dwarf in the world."

Irishman: "You seem mighty proud of them mountains."

Man from Denver: "You bet I am. And ought to be, since my ancestors built them."

Irishman (thinking this over for a few minutes): "Did you ever happen to hear of the Dead Sea in one of the old countries?"

Man from Denver: "Yes, indeed. I know all about the Dead Sea."

Irishman: "Well, did you happen to know that my great grandfather killed the thing?"

TEN RULES FOR PROTECTING YOUR WATER SUPPLY

Working men and women throughout the country are asked to familiarize themselves with ten simple rules to follow if the water supply in their communities should fail because of air-raids or other emergencies. The danger to health, the spread of disease and the consequent slowing up of vital production, were given as reasons for workers, particularly in overcrowded industrial areas, to learn the precautions they can take to prevent further disaster if water supplies should be cut off for even a short time.

The Office of Civilian Defense in issuing the rules, which were compiled by the Medical Division, urged every worker to post them in some convenient place in the home so that each member of the family can become familiar with them. The OCD statement and rules are:

An air raid may cause damage to waterworks distribution mains, the intricate network of piping which carries safe drinking water into your home. In this emergency when the water fails to flow from the tap, what you do may affect the health, comfort and property of each citizen: therefore, heed these 10 precautions

1. KEEP AVAILABLE AT LEAST ONE QUART BOTTLE FILLED WITH DRINKING WATER FOR EACH PERSON IN THE HOUSE.

Reason: Water service may be interrupted and may not be immediately restored.

2. ALWAYS TURN WATER FAUCETS OFF EVERYWHERE IN THE HOUSE WHEN WATER SERVICE HAS FAILED.

Reason: When water comes on, you may have forgotten about that open faucet upstairs. Water will be wasted, damage may result from flooding, and water pressure may be lowered over the city.

3. DO NOT FILL BATH TUBS WITH WATER FOLLOWING AIR RAID ALARMS OR DURING AIR RAIDS.

Reason: Such action if taken simultaneously in many homes will seriously reduce water pressure in the mains and limit the volume of water. This would result in a dangerous lack of water for fire fighting purposes.

4. LEAVE VALVES ALONE.

Reason: Trained men will shut off all necessary valves.

5. REMEMBER THAT THE WATER DEPARTMENT KNOWS THE SERVICE IS OFF IN YOUR AREA. YOUR TELEPHONE REPORT IS NOT NECESSARY.

Reason: The air raid warden will promptly report troubles in his area. Telephones are needed for important official calls.

6. DISCONTINUE IMMEDIATELY USE OF FLUSH TOILET WHEN WATER SERVICE GOES OFF. FOLLOW DIRECTIONS OF THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

Reason: The small volume of water stored in the home is insufficient to continue flushing.

7. PROTECT YOUR HEALTH BY BOILING THE DRINKING AND COOKING WATER IF THE HEALTH DEPARTMENT SO ADVISES.

Reason: Disruption of water mains by bombing may draw sewage from sewers or house plumbing into the water main. It is advisable to boil all drinking and cooking water for five minutes during the first 24 hours after water service is restored.

8. ACCEPT CHLORINE TASTES IN YOUR DRINKING WATER WITHOUT COMPLAINING. IT IS A SIGN OF SAFETY.

Reason: Because of a water main break, or for some other good reason, the health and water departments may increase chlorine disinfection rates temporarily for your safety.

9. DO NOT DRINK WATER OBTAINED FROM OTHER SOURCES THAN YOUR TAP OR DRINKING WATER CARTS OPERATED BY THE AUTHORITIES.

Reason: It is dangerous to use water of unknown quality from wells and springs, when the public water supply fails.

10. DO NOT BELIEVE OR REPEAT RUMORS CONCERNING WATER. THE HEALTH AUTHORITIES KNOW THE WATER SUPPLY FACTS AND WILL ADVISE YOU.

Reason: The origin of such rumors may be subversive. You can rely on your own health and water departments."

There doubtless are many members of trade unions who would prefer to get the benefits of Organized Labor, without any expense to themselves. However, if the same process of reasoning were used in other human activities, it might be found that many business men would not go into business if they could make a profit without doing so.—The Federal Machinist.

Conscientious objectors will now be used for fire prevention work; fire-fighting; construction of telephone lines, truck trails, and minor roads; field planting; and forest stand improvement.

---

Whenever you address a letter to a soldier, write his Army serial number after his name if you know it.

No oration, no matter how superb, can serve as a substitute for strength and strategy.

IT'S AN AMERICAN ARMY

By Ruth Taylor

What makes an American Army American?

It is selection. The boys come from all ranks of life, from farm and factory, from village and city, from the work bench and the class room. There is no question of class, no bar of national origin of the names they bear, no dispute as to their religion. They are chosen because they are physically fit and mentally able to do a hard job—because they are tough enough to take it—and to hand it out.

It is leadership. With only a small standing army, war found us with too few men trained to lead. But that never stopped an American army. The boys in the ranks were culled by their officers and if they showed any qualities of leadership, they were pushed into officers training camps there to earn their ratings. Gossip mongers to the contrary, practically none of our officers were selected because of their "friends." Most have come up from the ranks through sheer ability and hard work. Our leaders know the men they are leading because in the ranks are men they know, who come from the same kind of homes, were taught in the same kind of schools the same beliefs in democracy. The men obey because they know "why." The officers lead because they know "how."

It is devotion. In our ranks are men whose ancestors crossed the seas generations ago—and those who came in the last immigration; those whose only language seems to be American slang, those who talk with a "Harvard" accent, and those who still have a foreign accent; those who are Americans by birth, and those who are Americans by choice. But there is a common bond which ties them together—a bond of devotion to a flag which stands for a devotion to the free land that is America.

It is consecration. Alike the men who are Americans are consecrated to an ideal set forth in the Declaration of Independence, "We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal;" in the Farewell address of George Washington, "Citizens by birth or choice * * * the independence and liberty you possess are the work of joint councils, and joint efforts—of common dangers, sufferings and successes;" in the Gettysburg Address of Lincoln, "Government of the people, by the people and for the people" and finally in the message of President Roosevelt, "In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential freedoms."

Selection, leadership, devotion and consecration—that is what makes an American army American. That is what will carry an American Army on to victory!

FOOD PRODUCTION MUST BE ENCOURAGED TO AVERT HUNGER

Widespread hunger for Americans before the end of the year was predicted by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (Dem., Colo.), unless more manpower and machinery are made available to farmers.

If the fight for those essentials is lost, Johnson declared, the responsibility will rest on the shoulders of Secretary of Agriculture Claude A. Wickard, who was advised to follow the example of Rubber "Czar" William M. Jeffers and "get up on his hind legs and kick."

"Wickard understands the gravity of the situation," the Coloradan declared, "but his easy-going attitude invites disaster."

Johnson's disquieting forecast coincided in part with one by the Bureau of Economics of the Department of Agriculture, which declared that Americans will eat a lot less food this year. They will remain the best-fed nation in the world, the bureau said, but added this was because the rest of the world is close to subsistence or below.

There will be no famine in the United States, the bureau insisted, but it concedes there will be considerable belt-tightening, and that the nutritional value of the food available will slip below previous American standards.

If weather conditions are favorable, the bureau asserted, food production in 1943 will exceed that of last year, which was a world's record. But, it pointed out, at least a fourth of our harvests will be needed to meet the demands of the armed forces and lease-lend. What remains will provide a national diet comparable with that in 1932, when a fourth of the population was on relief.

If actual hunger is to be avoided, the bureau said, it is imperative that scarce foods be rationed, to assure those in modest circumstances they will get their share.

The bureau said civilians will get about the same amount of meats, eggs, fresh fruit, dry beans, peas, grains poultry fats and oils and fluid milk they got this year.

They will be short on fish, cheese, butter, condensed and evaporated milk, canned goods, rice, fresh vegetables, sugar, coffee and cocoa.

Meanwhile Secretary Wickard accused a House appropriations subcommittee of tossing a monkey-wrench into the food program by rejecting President Roosevelt's request for $1,000,000,000 to stimulate through subsidies the production of potatoes, beans, peas, peanuts, grain sorghum, soy beans and certain vegetables.

The subcommittee insisted that food production should be encouraged by higher prices rather than by subsidy.

THREE DECADES

A history of the Department of Labor as published in the American Federationist

By Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor

The creation of the United States Department of Labor by act of Congress approved March 4, 1913, marked the culmination of nearly half a century of continuing demands for a department in the federal government devoted exclusively to the welfare of workers and with a Secretary in the Cabinet to represent and speak for them. Throughout these years union leaders advocated and worked for such a federal department.

During the thirty years of its existence the Department of Labor has had only four Secretaries—William D. Wilson, from 1913 to 1921; James J. Davis, from 1921 to 1930; William N. Doak, from 1930 to 1933; and the writer, who has been in office since 1933.

Economic conditions following the Civil War brought about hardship and suffering to workers and their families through lack of employment and low pay for such work as could be obtained. Only a few of the trade unions organized before the war survived, but during the 1860's unions gained in strength and stability, several of those organized in that decade being among the national unions of today.

In 1866 the National Labor Union, composed of all trade and labor unions in the United States, was organized. At its first convention, in 1868, a resolution demanded a Department of Labor at Washington, headed by a Secretary of Labor chosen directly from the ranks of workingmen. This movement made little progress because of public apathy, but did publicize the idea of a federal department devoted exclusively to the interests of workers.

The organization of the Massachusetts and other state bureaus of labor for the purpose of ascertaining and publicizing the facts regarding workers and working conditions was responsible for a change in strategy. The demand for a federal executive department of labor was temporarily postponed and a national bureau of labor statistics was advocated as a practical first step toward the securing of a federal department of labor. This policy was initiated by the Industrial Brotherhood, the successor of the National Labor Union, and advocated by the Knights of Labor in its first general assembly in January, 1878, and in 1881 at its first convention by the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions, which subsequently became the American Federation of Labor.

The united and persistent efforts of the friends of organized labor for a national labor bureau were rewarded on June 27, 1884, on the approval of an act creating a Bureau of Labor in the Department of the Interior. This bureau became the statutory germ from which the executive department evolved some thirty years later.

Meanwhile agitation for a federal department continued, and in 1888 the Bureau of Labor was made an independent Department of Labor but without Cabinet representation. This did not satisfy the workers, and thereafter several bills were introduced in Congress to establish a department with a Secretary in the Cabinet. These bills, although not enacted, all had an influence in the ultimate creation of the present Department of Labor.

On February 14, 1903, Congress created the Department of Commerce and Labor, (in which the independent Department of Labor then become a bureau. The welfare of the workers was thus committed to an executive department, which also represented the interests of the employers. This arrangement proved unsatisfactory to organized labor, and demands were renewed for an independent department with Cabinet status.

On March 4, 1913, when the President approved the act creating the present Department of Labor, the dream of workers for nearly half a century for a separate department to promote the welfare of workers and a Secretary in the Cabinet to speak for them became a reality. Under the act all the activities relating to labor of the former Department of Commerce and Labor were transferred to the new Department of Labor. The Bureau of Labor became the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the Bureau of Immigration was divided into two bureaus, the Bureau of Immigration and the Bureau of Naturalization, and the Children's Bureau retained its original title. The Bureau of Labor Statistics was charged with the collection of "statistics of the conditions of labor and the products and distribution of the products of the same."

The Department of Labor was created in the interests of the wage-earners of the United States, the organic act expressly declaring that "the purpose of the Department of Labor shall be to foster, promote, and develop the welfare of the wage-earners of the United States, to improve their working conditions, and to advance their opportunities for profitable employment."

Statement of Secretary Wilson

As stated by William B. Wilson, the first Secretary of Labor, the Department was created in the interests of all the wage-earners, organized and unorganized. "Inasmuch, however, as it is only through organization that the many in any class or any interest can become articulate with reference to their common needs and aspiration," he said, the Department of Labor would usually be under the necessity of turning to the labor organizations for ascertaining the viewpoints of workers.

No set program of activities and services is provided in the organic act, the Department thus being free to develop its own field of usefulness subject to the legislative will of Congress.

On the organization of the Department, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the oldest bureau in the Department, continued its work along practically the same lines as before its transfer to the new Department, collecting and publishing data on the subject of labor. The Bureau of Immigration, the largest and next oldest of the bureaus, was concerned with the execution of the laws relating to the immigration and deportation of aliens and Chinese. This bureau had more than 80 per cent of the personnel and received over 70 per cent of the appropriations of the Department. The Bureau of Naturalization administered the laws for the naturalization of aliens. The Children's Bureau, the youngest of the Bureaus, investigated and reported "upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life."

The only new function assigned to the Department was the power of mediation and conciliation in labor disputes, which was assigned to the Secretary of Labor. A Division of Conciliation was therefore organized in the Office of the Secretary. Although the Secretary was empowered to intervene in labor disputes on his own initiative, the policy was adopted of appointing commissioners of conciliation only when requested by one or both parties to a dispute or by a third party having a public interest. Mediation being voluntary, the function of the commissioners was considered to be analogous to diplomacy rather than judicial.

The need of a federal employment service for the purpose of directing unemployed citizens to employment opportunities early became apparent. As there was no bureau especially charged with this service, the Division of Information in the Bureau of Immigration, which was concerned with the distribution of aliens admitted to the country, was utilized as an employment agency for citizens.

The first few years of the Department of Labor were devoted to the organization and slow expansion of its work in the interests of the workers. Among the services introduced were the publication of the Monthly Labor Review by the Bureau of Labor Statistics for the dissemination of authoritative labor news, and the establishment of a national employment service with a chain of federal labor exchanges, serving both citizen and alien workers. The Conciliation Service gradually extended its activities, requests for the services of its conciliation commissioners increasing from 74 in the first two years to 605 in the following two years. The Bureau of Naturalization undertook the work of Americanization of aliens and of qualifying them for citizenship.

The Department had been in existence only four years when the United States entered World War I. Immediately there was a great expansion of its functions, the coordination and extension of industrial activity making a national labor policy and direction necessary. The four bureaus adapted their work to the new demands and a War Labor Administration was incorporated into the Department. This was composed of two functional boards and thirteen separate bureaus and services.

The War Labor Policies Board was organized to harmonize the labor policies of the different agencies of the government concerned with war production.

The War Labor Board was created to adjust labor disputes in industries manufacturing war materials.

Other units of the War Labor Administration were concerned with the problems of female workers recruited for war work, working conditions, employment relations and health; the working conditions of wage-earners in the war industries, the provision of adequate housing and transportation for war workers and the problems peculiar to Negroes as wage-earners.

Notwithstanding the immense problems hurriedly thrust upon these emergency organizations, which were of a character never before encountered by the government, the record of accomplishments in the short time of less than a year before the war ended left its imprint upon the Department.

An entirely new conception of the government's responsibility to its workers had been accepted and valuable experience gained which was useful in later years.

War Organization Liquidated

Following the armistice the war organization of the Department was gradually liquidated. The Women in Industry Service was, however, made a permanent bureau—the Women's Bureau—of the Department because of demands by organized groups of women for a permanent bureau serving the needs of working women. Although the United States Employment Service had proved its usefulness, not only as a war service but also as a means of equalizing the supply and demand of labor and meeting the problem of unemployment, Congress considered it mainly an emergency service. Its appropriations following the war were therefore so small that in one year its personnel was reduced from 3,704 to 375, and its activities were consequently greatly restricted.

The participation of the Department in the general international labor conference provided for in the treaty of peace with Germany was of worldwide interest and historical significance. The preliminary details for this first meeting of what became the international Labor Organization were arranged by the Department, and the Secretary of Labor presided and was elected its president. In 1934, when the United States government became a member of the International Labor Organization, the Department of Labor was designated as the liaison agency.

During the thirty years since its creation the Department of Labor has steadfastly kept in mind the main purpose of the Department, that of service to the wage earners of the United States. In the years following World War I the people of the nation enjoyed a period of great prosperity, emerged from a great depression and are now carrying on a greater war. The functions of the Department during these periods have developed according to the changing concept of the nation's responsibility for the welfare of its workers.

BLS Expands Field of Activity

The field of activity of the Bureau of Labor Statistics has greatly expanded. Not only has the term "labor" become applicable to lower-salaried white-collar workers and even to the rank and file of many of the professions, as well as to manual workers, but new labor problems have arisen and older acute problems have vanished. Consequently, the Bureau has revised, extended and expanded its collection of labor information as occasion demanded.

The Department's Service to immigrants, which on its organization was centered in two bureaus, the Bureau of Immigration and the Bureau of Naturalization, underwent radical changes during the years. During each of the first two years of the Department's existence when over 1,400,000 aliens entered the country, problems of distribution and assimilation were acute. The European war, the Literacy Act of 1917, the quota law of 1924 and the depression all had the effect of checking mass immigration, and emphasis was then placed on the prevention of illegal entries and illegal naturalization cases. In 1933 the two bureaus were consolidated for greater efficiency and called the Immigration and Naturalization Service. Just before the end of 1940 the service was transferred to the Department of Justice.

The Children's Bureau expanded its field so that its work covers every phase of child welfare, from prenatal care to protection of the child worker. It also administers the provisions of the Social Security Act under which federal grants-in-aid are made available to the states for maternal and child-welfare services, and also the federal funds granted for crippled children's services, and cooperates with the states in establishing services for protection and care of homeless, dependent and neglected children and children in danger of becoming delinquent in areas of special need.

The function of the Conciliation Service was considered by the first Secretary of Labor as the most important of all the functions of the Department which it was then possible to administer. Throughout its history its impartial services have been available to workers, employers and the public, and its work has constantly expanded in response to calls upon it. Through its services an increasing number of industrial disputes have been adjusted without recourse to strikes or lockouts.

As early as 1918 the principle of collective bargaining was organized by the President's Mediation Commission, of which the Secretary of Labor was chairman, and under the NRA in 1933-35 the principle was accepted as a policy and administrative machinery provided through the creation of the National Labor Relations Board. In recent years it has become the established policy of the government to consult with trade unions and industrial management in matters affecting their interests. The advice of labor is sought on questions of wages and working conditions and also on the broad social problems confronting the people.

The Employment Service after the war carried on its activities through cooperation with state and municipal offices, but its main service was placement of seasonal and general farmhands through the harvest season and junior placement work. In 1930 employment offices for veterans and their dependents were opened in twenty-three cities—later increased to thirty—with a state director in each state and the District of Columbia. In 1933 the United States Employment Service was reorganized upon the terms of the Wagner-Peyser Act, and the special facilities for veterans and farm placement incorporated therein. Under this act USES supervises and coordinates a series of affiliated state employment services providing complete, public, free employment-office facilities to workers. In 1939 the Employment Service was transferred to the Social Security Board. In the six years the Employment Service operated under the Wagner-Peyser Act in the Department of Labor, it made over 26,000,00 placements, thus bringing together workers in search of jobs and employers in search of workers.

The function of the Women's Bureau, as set forth in its organic act, is the formulation of standards and policies to "promote the welfare of wage-earning women, improve their working conditions, increase their efficiency and advance their opportunities for profitable employment." It makes extensive studies of the varying social and economic factors affecting the life, health and welfare of working women. The policies and standards for women workers advocated by the Bureau are the result of careful consideration and consultation with state labor departments, workers' organizations and representative employers. The Bureau has taken the lead in establishing comparable standards and uniform methods of administration of minimum-wage legislation in the various states.

The Division of Labor Standards was established in the Department of Labor in November, 1934, to encourage greater uniformity in state labor legislation and to provide facilities for research and advice available to states on matters pertaining to labor legislation, safety codes and the improvement of labor conditions. The Division has worked for improvement of labor standards through conferences and advisory committees. It promotes apprenticeship standards and encourages training a limited supply of apprentices. It also promotes safety in industry and industrial-disease prevention.

Important new functions were granted to the Department of Labor by the Public Contracts Act and the Fair Labor Standards Act, both of which were measures designed to reduce unemployment and better working conditions. The first act requires not over 40 hours and a fair minimum pay on government contracts in manufacturing, while the second establishes on a federal basis a floor to wages and a ceiling to hours, affecting an estimated 12,300,000 persons.

When industrial activity for defense work began in July, 1940, the normal activities of the Department were greatly accelerated and expanded; and on our entry into the war the great expansion of industrial production for war increased still further the duties and activities of the Department.

Because of the need for workers with essential skills in certain industries an apprentice training unit was set up and standards for the necessary training within industry were developed.

Standards for the employment of women in war industries, imperative because of the great numbers of women engaging in industrial war work, most of whom had no previous experience, were also worked out. The Department continued and expanded its activities to safeguard the safety of war production workers, to whom the acceleration of war production brought new hazards to life and limb. As a result of a conference of representatives of labor, management and government, initiated by the Department, eight federal agencies agreed on desirable labor standards for efficiency in war production work.

The urgency of war production has made the prevention and settlement of industrial disputes of primary importance. The Conciliation Service has been active in endeavoring to assist the parties in such dis-

SUPREME GALL OF MORTGAGE SHYLOCKS

(Labor)

When Mr. Hoover went out of the presidency in March, 1933, practically all the mortgage companies in this country were on the ragged edge of bankruptcy. Just one more push and they would have tumbled into the bottomless abyss.

Instead of giving them that push, the "New Deal" came to their rescue. Government agencies took good and bad—principally bad—mortgages by the armful and paid the jittery Shylocks cold, hard cash. At the time LABOR denounced the deal, but it went through, and soon the money-lenders, instead of being driven out of the temple, were once more on Easy Street.

Now they are back in Washington again. This time they are suggesting that the government turn over to them all the good mortgages it is holding. Otherwise, they say, Uncle Sam will be competing with "free enterprise." We submit that for monumental gall it would be difficult to match that exhibit.

But they have another card up their sleeve. They opened a "War and Post-War Clinic" in Chicago last week. The president of a mortgage bankers' association demanded that "the bureaucrats be liquidated."

It developed that his idea of a "bureaucrat" was someone who believed the government should clean up slums and construct decent housing for its citizens.

That would be revolutionary, he insisted. Housing should be left to "private initiative." Well, for a good many years we have left housing to private initiative, and look where we are!

So far as the people are concerned, they favor housing reform, but if the Shylocks have their way, the people won't get what they desire and housing will continue to be the happy hunting ground of grafters and usurers.

THE WORLD AT WAR

SOCIAL REPERCUSSIONS

By Lloyd M. Crosgrove

Great wars commonly have results that are in addition to and in many cases far removed from the issues over which the wars are fought. These indirect results, which may be called "social repercussions", are exceedingly numerous. Some are relatively unimportant; some are moderately important; in exceptional cases, one or more of them may be greater, even, than the main issue. Some "repercussions" may be beneficial, some may be harmful, some may be helpful but imperfectly so because they were rudely fashioned by the rough hand of Mars rather than by calm judgment. Some of them are permanent; some are transitory. Some can be looked for with a fair degree of confidence; others are most surprising in their nature. Consider, for example, a few of the outstanding social repercussions of the following wars:

(1) The First World War. Who in 1914 would have predicted that it would bring prohibition to America and communism to Russia? Who would have predicted the later developments that have taken place with regard to these things?

(2) The Spanish-American War. This was fought to free the Western Hemisphere from the mediaeval colonial policy of Spain. The end sought was fully attained. In addition, however, it brought to us the Philippine Islands and thereby launched us upon a colonial policy of our own. We proved our ability by giving to the world an example of up-to-date, enlightened colonial administration which not even Britain could equal. Like Britain, too, we did this without killing in our wards that yearning for ultimate self-government which is the highest manifestation of colonial aims, provided the substance of utter self-government is not awarded prematurely. Most important of all, it made the United States to be, in every sense of the term, a world-power, with all the responsibilities that pertain thereto. These responsibilities, irksome as they are, we were somewhat slow to recognize, not unnaturally preferring a quiet and prosperous existence in our American "ivory tower". We are at last, apparently, fully awake, a component part of the great world and its most important single factor.

(3) The American Civil War. This was fought to decide whether the United States was a nation or an alliance of nations. Four bloody, desperate years were necessary before the announcement was made at Appomattox that the first conception was the true one. This was the greatest result of the Civil War but there were many others of immense magnitude: (a) Chattel slavery was abolished. This result doubtless would have been attained in time even if there had been no war, for chattel slavery, unable to compete with free labor, was already a dying institution. That the war hastened its demise was, in itself, fortunate. That it did so suddenly and without regulation instead of by gradual and controlled liquidation as, for instance, in the Bahamas, brought much temporary hardship upon both whites and negroes. In the fiery furnace of war there was no other recourse, however. (b) The national banking system was established. This was rendered immediately necessary in order to form an adequate market for U. S. bonds. As in the case of abolition, the step was in the right direction, although the haste with which it had to be made caused many details to be imperfect. (c) Unsecured currency, known as "greenbacks", were issued. These were sufficiently controlled as to amount to make the resulting inflation only moderate and, in the main, they worked well. When the war was over, many persons clamored for unlimited quantities of "greenbacks" and a political party of great influence came into being to promote that suicidal end. It was not until near the close of the 70's that the sound money advocates won their fight against foolish inflation and, in the meantime, the economic development of the country suffered because of the uncertainty.

(4) The Napoleonic Wars. Napoleon, not being able to match Britain on the ocean, feared he would lose the French territory in America. Accordingly, in 1803, he sold the vast "Louisiana Territory" to the United States for $15,000,000. This comprised all of the land between the Mississippi and the crest of the Rockies. It doubled our territory and made it possible for us to attain national greatness.

(5) The capture of Constantinople by the Turks in 1453. This event probably advanced by many years the discovery of America. Western Europe had been trading with the Orient by an overland route leading through Constantinople. This was closed by the Turks when they came to power. Europe could no longer obtain the spices and silks of the Orient. "Necessity is the mother of invention." There had long been a theory that the Orient could be reached by sailing westward. It had remained an academic question. With the fall of Constantinople, it became a practical question, with the result that, in 1492, Columbus set forth to try its validity. If the eastern route had not been closed, the discovery of America might not have come for many years and we might still be in the colonial stage of development.

(6) The Crusades (1096-1291 A. D.). These were attempts on the part of Western Europe to rescue the Holy Land from the Mohammedans. They did not succeed but they served to stir the mind of

F. D. R. CONGRATULATES AFL WORKERS FOR QUICK JOB ON DOUGLAS DAM

Knoxville, Tenn.—President Roosevelt sent a congratulatory message to the AFL workers who completed the construction of the new Douglas Dam of the TVA in 13 months, half the scheduled time.

Describing the construction as an engineering feat, the President lauded "the engineers and workmen who have labored day and night through storm and heat and flood."

"This dedication," he said, "honors every man or woman working with pen or shovel or machine who made it possible to shorten by half the time required for completion of this huge structure.

"We honor the men who have worked in plants and factories throughout the country where the materials that will forever be a part of Douglas Dam have been produced.

"We honor their work and we dedicate their achievement to a single purpose. Until the war is won, every kilowatt of power their skill and energy and complete devotion has provided will be used to make more planes, more tanks and more explosives; the implements of war for our men overseas.

"Let our enemies take note. Douglas Dam shows what a democracy can do."

CHICAGO UNIONS MAKE NOTABLE WAR RECORD

Union building trades workers in the Chicago area, have made an outstanding record since the beginning of the emergencies. Every defense project in this area has been completed from three to six months ahead of schedule and there have been no strikes on these jobs. Some of the larger munitions plants, airplane factories, steel plants and other vital war plants have been constructed by these building trades workers. Biggest of all jobs was the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. This job was completed in record time and at a savings in costs of several million dollars which was returned to the United States Treasury by the contractors. The contractors and the unions worked in such close harmony and cooperation on this naval training station that the entire project was practically completed at the time scheduled for the completion of the first units in the program.

Power and strict accountability for its use are the essential constituents of good government.

UNION MECHANICS FOUGHT AT GUADALCANAL

When the aircraft mechanics at Henderson Field on Guadalcanal Island said they would "keep 'em flying," they did not refer to American planes alone but also to Jap soldiers, according to Technical Sergeant James W. Hurlbut, Marine Corps combat correspondent who recently returned from that area. Many of the mechanics are former union members.

"Frequently I saw those mechanics drop their wrenches and grab rifles and go to work killing Japs," the Sergeant said. "When they finished that task, they went back to working on motors and planes."

The combat correspondent said the mechanics would lend a hand to the Marines anytime it was needed and that they "did a good job of fighting and fixing."

"Everyone on Guadalcanal took a turn at fighting when they were needed," Sergeant Hurlbut said. "By everybody I mean just that—Marines, Sailors, Coast Guardsmen, Mechanics, Seabees, Combat Correspondents, Aviators, and anyone else who happened to be around. It was everybody's job and everybody worked together to win the fight."

DEEP SEA DIVERS WORK AT COULEE DAM

Deep-sea divers are being lowered into 70 feet of the icy waters of the Columbia River, to carry out one of the most difficult assignments ever to be given workmen at the Grand Coulee Dam.

Operating from a barge, anchored at the foot of the waterfall section of the dam, the divers are checking for any possible erosion in the "spillway bucket." To make this work possible, six of the 11 huge steel drum gates at the crest of the spillway, are fully raised, confining the waterfall to the remaining five gates which are partially lowered. The water is turbulent, with strong under-currents that cause fatigue to the divers, and they work in 30-minute relays.

In its downward plunge from the reservoir behind the dam, water travels 347 feet, creating a cataract of more than twice the height of Niagara. During the flood season, the volume of water passing over the dam represents a falling weight of more than 9,000 tons per second. Bureau of Reclamation engineers constructed a curvature of concrete at the foot of the spillway section, known as the "bucket," designed to dissipate the energy of the falling water and it is at this point the inspection is being made.

It is necessary to make this check-up during the present low water period, as such work would be impossible during the flood season, which comes later in the year.

PROBLEMS OF POST-WAR RECONSTRUCTION CAN WE AFFORD IT?

Many early comments have been made on the post-war plan of the National Resources Planning Board. Most of them have been concerned about the costs of the economic and social security the plan would provide. Anxiously they have asked: can we afford it?

The question is entirely justified. But, to ask it intelligently, we must know what is meant by cost. And we must understand what we will get for the cost; who will benefit and who will make sacrifices, if there must be any.

When I make up my mind to buy a pair of shoes, I have to consider whether I can afford to spend my money on them. I also have to know what I will get for my money. But when I pay for the shoes, it makes no difference whether I take the money from my right pocket or my left.

Yet, when speaking of expenditures for economic and social security, many people are inclined to make such a distinction. They are concerned only about the expenditures of the Treasury and forget that the Treasury is just one of the many pockets of the nation.

The expenditures of the Treasury, like those of private persons and of business firms, must be looked upon as a whole.

It makes little sense to say that if economic or social security costs the Treasury two, three, or more billion dollars, this figure will be too large. Only when we know the total cost to the whole nation and the total benefit, can we estimate the significance of the expenditure made by the Treasury.

How much, then, would a sensible scheme for maintaining full employment cost?

It would cost exactly nothing.

On the contrary, everybody would gain by it; private persons, business firms, and the nation as a whole.

Full employment could sometimes be secured without expenditures by the Treasury. Let us suppose, however, that in order to maintain full employment, the Treasury had to borrow money and spend it on public works, or loan or tax subsidies, or increased benefit payments.

For every one hundred million dollars borrowed and spent by the Treasury during a depression, a multiple of this amount, two, three, or four hundred million dollars would be produced; two, three, or four hundred million dollars in new incomes would be created and distributed.

The nation's welfare would be increased. Everybody would gain and business would be among the first to gain. Losses business firms would have suffered if unemployment had deprived them of markets and had sent prices to the bottom, would turn into benefits.

To be sure, taxes might be increased in order to pay interest on the Treasury loans. This is not certain, though. Since people's incomes would have increased, the same tax rate would yield the Treasury a higher revenue.

Moreover, interest payment would constitute no real sacrifice for the nation as a whole, as they only mean that taxpayers are making payments to bondholders. But even if interest payments were considered a real sacrifice, the sacrifice would be much less than the loss which would be incurred by permitting unemployment to continue. The loss would be several times as great as the capital on which the interest payments have to be made!

Wise expenditures to insure full employment might cost the Treasury money but they would cost the nation nothing.

—o—

If unemployment were avoided, higher benefit payments for the temporarily unemployed would add nothing essential to the nation's burden.

But what would be the cost of the proposed increase of social expenditures to help the sick, the old, the poor?

These expenditures would be a real burden to the nation only if they resulted in reducing production. But there is no reason to fear that this would happen. On the contrary, the higher level of consumption, brought about by increased social benefits, is likely to stimulate production.

By affording greater social security, then, the nation as a whole would have no sacrifice to make at all.

The increased taxes and contributions needed to finance social security, might mean sacrifice on the part of those who received less in benefits than they paid in taxes and contributions.

But in assessing their sacrifice, it should be borne in mind that (1) the increase of social benefits could be gradual, to keep it in step with economic progress; (2) business firms would profit from cheaper production, thanks to improved health and greater satisfaction in work; (3) a large part of the increased social security benefits would be financed by direct contributions of workers and others receiving benefits; (4) it would not only be the rich who would have to make sacrifices for the poor, but also the poor who would have to make sacrifices for those in distress, and all this in a nation-wide solidarity.

To give jobs and to help the needy—these are goals to be strived for, even if they mean serious sacrifices.

POST-WAR RECONSTRUCTION

Human beings must be spared humiliation and distress.

Nevertheless, it is a heartening conclusion that jobs can be given and social security can be improved at no cost to the nation as a whole; that, furthermore, jobs may be created at no cost to anybody, while social security can be greatly improved at some cost, to be sure, but only to persons who are more fortunate than their fellowmen.

In the thirty years in which the United States Department of Labor has striven to be of service to the wageearners of the nation, it has been instrumental not only in administering ever-increasing functions of benefit to workers but in promoting social legislation and programs of inestimable service to all working people.

Orators are most vehement when they have the weakest cause.—Cicero.

Men who would keep himself to himself should imitate the dumb animals and drink water.—Bulwer.

THE WORLD AT WAR

Europe from the long slumber of the Dark Ages. They laid the foundation for the Renaissance and the succeeding period of enlightenment that was to come.

(7) The present World War. This, by all odds, is the mightiest struggle the race has ever encountered. Its immediate issue is clear enough: two self-denominated "master races" have launched a murderous attempt to subdue the world. Only two short years ago they had swept aside all active opposition except that of Britain and China. Then, smitten apparently by utter lunacy, they wantonly attacked Russia and the United States. Their final overthrow now seems to be only a matter of time and sacrifice, though how much of either will be needed can be only guessed. Even for the sake of the lunatic races themselves, they must be completely deprived of that military power which drives them mad. Beyond doubt, the war will have numerous results in addition to the removal of the Japanese-Teutonic menace. Some attempt to discuss these will be made in the next paper.

A PRAYER FOR PRISONERS OF WAR

Written by the Dean of York and used in a special service of intercession on Sunday, January 17, at St. Margaret's, Westminster

Look, O Lord God, with the eyes of Thy mercy upon all prisoners of war, especially those known and loved by us. Preserve them in bodily health and in cheerful, undaunted spirit. Convey Thou to them the support of our love on the wings of Thine own, and hasten the day of release through Him Who hath made us free eternally, Thy Son and our Savior, Jesus Christ. Amen.—Federal Council Bulletin.

TRIUMPHANT

By Charles Hanson Towne

I love that face the best,
That, lined and seared and scarred
After the journey hard,
Shows in each token of life's awful test
A sign of victory from the fields of pain;
Tracings that prove it braved the stinging rain
Undaunted, undismayed,
Valiantly unafraid.
Glad of its grief, yet glad now of its rest.
I love that face the best.

FINLAND ONLY COUNTRY TO GET NAZI HELP

Finland is the only European country which receives economic support from Germany, according to the American Labor Conference on International Affairs. This support may be one reason why Finland is finding it difficult to sever her ties with the Nazis and make peace with Russia, the Conference states.

The value of Finnish exports has declined to 30 or 40 per cent of their value in 1939. Like other European countries, Finland was in urgent need of imports. In order to secure her help in the war against Russia, Germany granted her considerable economic aid. According to the latest report of the League of Nations, Finland is the only country in Europe which is heavily indebted to Germany. This is because its imports from Germany have exceeded its exports to Germany. Finland's debt to Germany increased 94 per cent in the first eight months of 1942.

All the other subdued or dependent countries, including the satellite nations fighting in alliance with Germany, are brutally exploited. This is proved, among other things, by the fact that Germany is heavily in debt to these countries. She is taking from them much more than she is sending them.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Be It Resolved, That the charter of Local Union 190 be draped for thirty days in honor and sorrow of our beloved and loyal member, Brother C. C. Hall, No. 9703, who has been taken from our midst by our Dear Lord; and we extend our deep sympathy to his bereaved family; and that a copy of this resolution be published in The Lather.

Walter Frank, Secretary,
Local Union No. 190.

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God, in his infinite wisdom, to remove from our midst our beloved Brother John G. Mobley, No. 390, and

WHEREAS, Brother Mobley was a loyal member of our local union and will be sadly missed, be it RESOLVED, That our deepest sympathy be expressed to the relatives and friends of our deceased brother; and be it further

RESOLVED, That our charter be draped for a period of thirty days and a copy of these resolutions be sent to our International office for publication in our official journal.

W. A. Selby, Secretary

NUTRITION AND LABOR

Interest in food has shifted from the theoretical level to the practical. The extension of rationing, the more frequent occurrence of shortages, the disappearance from the store shelves of favorite items, the rise in prices of many commodities—all these changes bring food consciousness to every American home. In addition, the constantly changing food picture requires food alertness in order to make the best of the situation prevailing at the moment. Food is a mighty war weapon but we need nutrition information to teach us how to take care of that weapon and how to use it well.

To develop this alertness in labor, I. M. Ornburn, Secretary-Treasurer, Union Label Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor, in cooperation with the Nutrition in Industry Section of the Nutrition Division of the Office of Defense Health and Welfare Services, is supplying information of immediate value to every housewife, to every worker and to every mother. This information will contain the latest nutrition knowledge and will take into full account the current picture of rationing, availability, cost, seasons, nutritional value, transportation facilities and similar elements which the war brings into play. By following these articles, every reader can learn to keep fit in health and morale, do his job in our struggle for survival, have a patriotically efficient kitchen, save by spending wisely and serve nutritious and delicious meals.

There is something about people that makes the present so real to them that they often forget the difficulties of the past. For example, very few people realize that until about 200 years ago the population of Europe had been almost at a standstill for many centuries. It might have enjoyed some periods of prosperity and peace during which populations showed somewhat of an increase, but such periods would be repeatedly interrupted by plagues and famines; and the size of the population would drop again. The population of France, for example, was estimated in the 13th century to be around 20 million souls, and it was not more than that in the 18th century. From 1600 to 1714 the population of England and Wales only increased by 700,000, while in a briefer but later period, from 1801 to 1901, it increased by 23½ million in spite of large scale emigration. Between 1800 and 1900 the population of Europe grew from 187 million to about 400, to reach in 1933 an estimated 520 million.

Simultaneously with this increase in population, there has taken place an impressive extension of life. The human span of life is measured in terms of expectation of life at birth which is based on the average life period of the population. The expectation of life at birth for the average German increased between 1870 and 1925 from 35 years to 56. The Englishman's average length of life in the same period increased from 41 to 55.6. A similar tendency was shown in all other industrialized countries, which means in those countries in which science revolutionized industry, agriculture, and the mode of life of the people.

When we look at the state of the people's health we note that the same trends are apparent there. Not only have plagues and ancient dreaded diseases been wiped out but the average health and stature of the people improved considerably.

Since most European countries have had military conscription for many centuries, it is possible to compare the stature of the young people in those lands. We find that, for instance, in Sweden the average height of young men increased from 1840 to 1926 by over three inches. In Norway the increase was four inches between 1800 and 1900. In Holland it was 5 inches between 1850 and 1907. Similar trends are still current in this country among our young men and young women.

Several things are responsible for this increase in health and span of life. The first is the vast improvement in economic welfare of the masses due to the application of scientific knowledge to industry, agriculture, transportation, to the extension of credit, widespread labor organization, and social legislation. Another contributing factor is the dramatic advancement in sanitation and medical knowledge, which meant more numerous and better hospitals, better trained physicians, widespread health centers, and laws to protect the public. And the public participated actively in this new trend by better care in pregnancy and childhood, a more optimistic attitude to the sick and the aged.

The first milestone in the spread of sanitation came with the work of Pasteur, who by the discovery of germs opened up the new field of hygiene and prevention. The second step which gave the population of the world a new spurt in the direction of well-being was due to the discovery made in the field of nutritional science.

SELF-RATIONING ON MEDICAL CARE

You won't have to surrender a coupon from your ration book every time you go to see your doctor, but the U. S. Public Health Service has asked the American people to ration themselves voluntarily in the use of medical services.

With thousands of doctors and nurses already in the armed services, and more leaving every day, Dr. George Baehr, of the U. S. Public Health Service, recently made the following suggestions for conserving the time of our civilian doctors.

1. Call on the doctor at times when those who must work specified hours are not calling;
2. Do as much of the consulting with the family doctor as possible over the telephone;
3. Don't expect the doctor the minute he is called;
4. Help educate people to do some things for themselves; and
5. Don't demand or expect luxury services.

This doesn't mean that you aren't to call your doctor when you're really sick. If you call him at the beginning of your illness, you'll take less of his time in the end.

WIT AND HUMOR

Mrs. White—Mrs. Gray's husband didn't leave her much when he died, did he?

Mrs. Black—No, but he left her often when he was alive.

Three Canadians, sleeping in a tent in one of the English training areas last summer, were rudely awakened by a terrific crash not far away.

"What was that—thunder or bombs?" asked one.

"Bombs," was the laconic answer.

"Thank heaven for that!" chimed in the third. "I thought we were going to have more rain!"

Porter—Miss yo' train, miss?

Precise Teacher—My man, why do you say "your train," when you know it belongs to the railway company?

Porter—Dunno, miss. Why does you-all say "my man," when you-all know Ah belongs to my wife?

Two young ladies were walking down Fifth Avenue. Suddenly one cut loose with a piercing shriek. "Look," she cried in amazement.

"What is so terrible?" asked her friend. "They are only midgets."

"Thank goodness," said the other girl, greatly relieved. "I thought for a minute they were rationing men."

"Jones seems to be a successful man. I suppose he made hay while the sun shone?"

"Not only that, but he made it from the grass that other people let grow under their feet."

"Son," said a father, "I never knew what it was to kiss a girl until I courted your mother. I wonder if you'll be able to say the same to your children?"

"I think so," the young man replied, "but not with such a straight face as yours."

"Do you like women who talk or the other kind?"
"What other kind?"

Heard in an English air raid shelter:

"Is there a macintosh in here that's large enough to keep two young ladies warm?"

"No, but there's a MacPherson who's willing to try," was the reply from a dark corner.

A banker tells the story of a woman who appeared at the teller's window and presented a check to be cashed. The teller asked her for identification and she said, "Identification? Oh, yes, just a minute." After rummaging through her bag she took out a picture and held it up.

"See that?" she said. "That's my sister."

Dinocan—"I've eaten meat all my life and I'm as strong as an ox."

Zzudi—"That's funny. I've always eaten fish and yet I can't swim a stroke."

Mrs. Jones was very proud of her son, who showed promise as an athlete.

"Yes, he must be a very fast runner," she explained proudly to a neighbor. "Look at this newspaper report of the sports yesterday. It says he fairly burned up the track."

"And it's quite true," she added, confidentially. "I went to see the track this morning, and it's nothing but cinders."

Freddie—Papa, what's an average?

Father (hesitatingly)—Well, er—my son, what do you think it is?

Freddie—I guess it's the bottom of a hen's nest.

Father—Great Scott! What do you mean?

Freddie—Well, every time I read about a wonderful hen, it says she laid so many eggs on an average.

Crow—What makes you stand on one foot and move your shoulders that way?

Crane—Well, there's no chance of my learning to sing, so I've taken up classic dancing.

A tall, gaunt woman, with an expression of great fierceness, strode into the office of the county clerk in the hill country of Kentucky.

"You air the person that keeps the marriage books ain't ye," she inquired.

"Yes," was the reply. "What do you want to know?"

"Kin you tell me if Jim Tolliver was married?" she demanded.

The records disclosed the name of Jim Tolliver, for whose marriage a license had been issued two years before.

"Married Elizabeth Mott, didn't he?" said the gaunt woman.

"The license was issued for a marriage to Miss Elizabeth Mott," replied the clerk.

"Well, young man," said the inquiring woman, "I'm Elizabeth. I thought I oughter come and tell you that Jim has escaped."

BRITAIN PLANS POST-WAR BUILDING PROGRAM

While scanning the skies over the Channel for Nazi aerial attacks, Great Britain has taken time to plan a vast post-war building program to heal the scars of war.

The blue-print for rebuilding their bomb-torn island set for launching as soon as victory comes, was announced in a White Paper issued by the British Government recently.

It is based on a policy of cooperation with the trade unions, and a recognition of the hazards of building trade employment.

The British figure their 10 or 12 years building program will require a force of a million and a quarter workers. They also figure it will be essential "to maintain the stability of the industry for the period of the program."

In recruiting and training building trades workers, therefore, they plan to gear employment carefully to the estimated demands of the construction program and "to establish, under adequate guarantees, conditions of work sufficient to abolish casual employment."

"Measures for a guaranteed period of employment would be favored by the Government, along with a continuance of present regulations requiring all registered building undertakings to observe the terms and conditions of employment agreed to by the industry."

The job of recruiting building trades workers, said the Government, will be handled by local Employment Exchanges, with the aid of local Advisory Committees, the whole to operate under a national Building Advisory Panel presided over by the Minister of Labor.

GAS RATIONING ALLOWS FOR ATTENDING UNION MEETINGS

The OPA officially announced that driving to and from union meetings is not pleasure driving, but directly relates to the occupation or profession of the owner or person using the vehicle. Driving to and from union meetings is therefore permitted under Amendment 11 to the Gasoline Rationing Regulations.

TAKE IT WITH A GRIN

(Federation News)

Think twice before you complain about the slight inconveniences we are suffering. Maybe we do have to stand and wait for a bus, but at least we do have buses. Maybe we can get only a quarter pound of butter at a time, but at least we do have that much. Maybe we do have to slice our own bread, but at least we have bread to slice. Not so in many of the European countries.

The Greeks are getting but 250 calories a day (we plan on 3,000) . . . there's a one-egg-a-month-allotment in effect in Paris . . . the starving Finns have had to resort to actually eating tree-bark . . . bread made of chaff and cornmeal sells for $22.60 a loaf in Greece. And yet we hear Americans, who have always been so proud of their reputation for sportsmanship, bickering about standing on trains, being crowded on buses, complaining because a grocer cannot give them a desired cut of meat or a full pound of butter.

Most of us are making a special effort at "taking it with a grin." It makes things a lot easier if you pass a pleasant remark with the person you crowd back into the bus, or ask a few questions of the butcher about his meat predicament.

Every one has troubles these days. Having a problem doesn't make one unique. Making the best of it does!

KEEP YOUR MIND RUNNING IN CLEAN CHANNELS

You may judge a man's character by the sort of stories he tells.

The fellow who constantly is thinking up risque stories to tell does not use any brain power in expressing good, clean thoughts!

His mind does not run in a clean channel that leads to the good and the beautiful, for he is seeking that which has a bad or suggestive meaning.

Usually he is a man who would not hesitate to circulate any bit of scandal he might hear. The more damaging it is to another's character, the more enthusiastically he receives, believes, and tells it.

There are too many tale bearers who will not let unfortunate persons live down any of the indiscreet things they may have done because they find pleasure in repeating scandalous gossip at every possible opportunity.

Some women are often more heartless than men in their treatment of their own sex who have been, perhaps, only thoughtless and indiscreet.

The person who is making an honest effort to correct his mistakes should be encouraged and helped in every way possible.

This OWI poster, prepared for general distribution, pictures graphically how war rumors spread by lively tongues end in tragedy. "Think Before You Talk," warns OWI.

Mother's Day

With the coming of May, our attention is called to that day set aside for the honoring of the Nation's Mothers. On the second Sunday in May, throughout our Nation, the Fraternal Order of Eagles and all organized labor will lead in paying homage to the Mothers living and dead. From that moment the child is born until the Mother's last gasp, if her death precedes that of the child, Mother is always "on call" to minister to that child. The age of the sons or daughters has no noticeable effect on the love or solicitude of the Mother for their well being. Many a grown man and woman who failed to heed the maternal advice and counsel have lived to regret their own disregard for the words of the one mainly responsible for their very existence. If your Mother is living, make this Mother's Day (and every other day of her existence) a lasting testimonial of your love and affection for her. If your own Mother has passed, honor her memory. If you are a married man and have, or expect, children, give added love and devotion to your wife, whose maternal spirit enshrouds you in its scope. Many a Mother's heart will be sorely tried on this occasion, because her son or sons, maybe daughters, or her husband, father of children still at home, are absent in the service of their country. Let her know that this is also her day and by some token from your hands let her tears and grief be assuaged and her unconquerable love be sustained.

COFFEE

Coffee has been roundly abused often and defended seldom, for the reason that it needs no argument to drink it, and a good deal of persuasion to keep from drinking it.

There are some who claim that it is pure poison and should never be touched. This is an extreme view.

As far as the normal working of the human organism is concerned, coffee is not necessary. It is not a food. It is a stimulant, and anyone would be just as well off if he never touched it. At the same time it doubtless does little harm to at least 97 per cent of the people who take it and it helps a little to alleviate the drabness of life.

It is probably the least injurious of stimulants.

People who are hyper-sensitive to alkaloids, however, should let tea, coffee and cocoa alone, or be very temperate in their use of these beverages.

Coffee is at least one thousand years old and may be as old as Tut-ankh-Amen. For nobody knows exactly when it was discovered. Vessels looking very much like modern coffee pots have been found in the tombs of Egypt.

It was in 900 A. D., however, that coffee was first mentioned in literature. At first people ate coffee. The whole ripe berries, which were red and looked like cranberries, were crushed and moulded into food balls, held in shape with fat, and were used by the wandering tribes of Africa in their long marches.

The first coffee drunk was a kind of a wine made from the hulls of the berries. Indeed, the name coffee comes from the Arabian Qahwah, meaning wine.

Coffee was first drunk as a medicine. Its use as a beverage dates back at least 600 years.

Coffee, like tobacco, is used all over the world. It is a democratic beverage and is patronized equally by the common laborer and the guests at fashionable restaurants.

The coffee plant was first cultivated in Abyssinia, where it is indigenous, and spread thence throughout the world.

Paul Revere, who made the famous ride, was a silversmith who had made many beautiful coffee pots.

Coffee drinking in Arabia is a part of the ritual of business, as also in other oriental countries.—The Plasterer and Cement Finisher.

THE GREAT ARU RAILROAD STRIKE, 1894

By Martin A. Dillmon

As a previous article in this series stated, the Sherman Anti-Trust Act was passed by Congress on July 2, 1892, as a restraint upon business and industrial monopolies. The Act was exactly two years old when it was invoked to smash the American Railway Union strike of which the late Eugene V. Debs was leader. Federal Judge Woods at Chicago issued one of the most drastic strikebreaking injunctions on record. Federal troops, company "guards", etc., completed the smashing of the strike.

This was the first time the Sherman Act had been invoked against organized Labor.

While President Grover Cleveland has been sharply criticized for sending Federal troops into this strike, there is strong evidence that President Cleveland had been deceived by his attorney general, Richard Olney, as to the true situation. Olney's attitude showed that he was "railroad-minded". In such case, he naturally favored the company over the strikers.

On June 26, 1894, employes of the Pullman Palace Car Co. at Chicago walked out when the company refused to consider a long list of grievances. Pullman had cut wages 25%, despite its wealth, with $25,000,000 in surplus profits. On the eve of the wage cut, Pullman had paid dividends of $2,500,000 on a $36,000,000 capital stock. The workers lived in company-owned houses, rent on which was from 20% to 25% higher than the average in adjacent areas.

The Union named a committee to visit company chiefs with a request that either wages be raised or rents lowered. Every member of that committee was fired on the spot. Pullman rejected repeated arbitration proposals, so the workers struck as a last resort. A subsequent boycott on Pullman coaches spread to 27 states in one of the most bitter Labor battles in history.

Atty. Gen. Olney, former attorney for several railroads, including New York Central, Santa Fe, Boston & Maine, Burlington, and others, stepped into the picture. The Chicago Tribune helped along with such headlines as: "Mob in Control", "Mob Bent on Ruin", etc.

On Olney's recommendations, Edwin Walker, attorney for Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, was made special attorney general and placed in charge of strike cases. Olney wired these instructions to Walker:

"I feel that the true way of dealing with this matter is by FORCE that is overwhelming and will make the strike a failure as well as prevent its spread."

Walker seems to have taken the tip seriously, for, on July 5, he sent this wire to Olney:

"We have sufficient evidence at hand for the indictment of Debs and all Union leaders, for conspiracy. Several indictments will be returned, and I am of the opinion that bail required will be so large in the aggregate that they will not be able to give bond. I firmly believe that the result of these trials and punishment of the leaders will be so serious that a strike on any railroad will not again occur for a series of years."

Union leaders had given strict orders against violence. Disturbances arose, however. Trains manned by scabs were stopped, also several worthless, abandoned box cars were set fire. Labor leaders claimed that these lawless acts were committed by company stool pigeons as a build-up for Federal troops. In fact, Atty. Gen. Olney urged President Cleveland to order out the regular army "without waiting for action by the courts and without justifying the action as taken to enforce judicial decrees." (The quoted words are Olney's own!)

But Cleveland refused to send Federal troops except to enforce and uphold court orders. So, Olney, through disgracefully hand-picked U. S. Deputy Marshals, certified that the Woods injunction "could not" be enforced. Thus, Federal troops came and the strike was wrecked.

Debs was cited for violation of the Woods writ, found "guilty" and sent to jail. Their leader locked up, plus the other crushing disadvantages already referred to, the strikers had their noses against a stone wall and, so, lost their fight.

Debs, at that time a very ordinary Labor leader, was for a time confined at Chicago, but later was transferred to Woodstock, Ill. There, Debs was visited by the late Victor Berger, Socialist Congressman from Milwaukee. Supplied with such reading matter, with the added irritation of intense persecution, Debs came out of jail an aggressive Socialist and several times was that party's candidate for President.

Debs was released from jail Nov. 22, 1894. The AFL Chicago Central Labor Body chartered five coaches and sent a big delegation to escort Debs from Woodstock jail to Chicago. A record crowd packed Battery D Armory in Chicago to hear Debs denounce the astounding measures which had been employed to smash the ARU strike.

President Cleveland later named a commission to stir into the ruins of the A. R. U. strike and get the facts. It was found that the railroads were permitted to select men to be sworn in as U. S. Deputy Marshals which, at one time, numbered 3,600. The commission's report asserted that such Deputy Marshals had been "selected by and appointed at the request of the railroads. And while operating on

WHAT DO WALLBOARDS OFFER FOR MODERN, PROPER WORK?

Plastering contractor makes interesting analysis of so-called dry wall materials and finds them sadly lacking

By Joseph J. Jefferson, Sr.

I read and hear a great deal these days about "modern, dry-wall" construction; plaster, they say, is outmoded. Instead, I should use boards made of pulp paper, wood fiber and other materials for my new home.

I feel that any investigation of these materials should start with an analysis of the materials themselves.

"Dry boards" are of course dry; dampness is bad for them, and that is one of their greatest weaknesses in my opinion. Not only is it necessary to use great care in their erection, but it is impossible to keep them in perfect condition even though they look so at the beginning because of their peculiar affinity for dampness, caused by either their fiber composition or pulp paper facings.

The wood fibers in these materials are attracted by heat. That is why the bulging of these materials is always toward the inside of the room. If it were possible to maintain the same degree of heat on their outside surface as on the inside it might be possible to prevent this condition, but it is impracticable to do so.

While the condition does not reveal itself immediately upon completion of the job I have observed it always does occur in from two to twelve months and gets progressively worse, rapidly enhanced by any condition of unheating in the building. Unlike other materials which expand, contract and shrink, these materials do not return to their original shape when the heat stimulus is removed.

Now we come to the matter of permanent joints in these materials, a problem upon which has been spent the greatest amounts of time and research. Being unit materials it is obvious the joints are the weak points, regardless of what treatment is used to reinforce them.

For a moment, let's consider lath and plaster in comparison. Lath is securely nailed to the wall or ceiling, it is reinforced in all angles with metal lath, and one-half inch of plaster is applied over the entire surface, without joints.

Wallboards, on the other hand, little thicker than the lath alone, depend upon a strip of paper or fabric for their joint reinforcement. Does it make sense that a permanent joint equal in strength to the lath and plaster method can be obtained?

If anyone can make a permanent, satisfactory joint, how does he do it? It's a mystery to me that the Better Business Bureau hasn't attacked some of the extravagant claims which are absorbed by the gullible public.

Then, we come to the matter of damage, and damage to these materials is a constant hazard. It's true plaster is sometimes damaged, but repairs do not necessitate the removal of an entire panel so nailing can be secured for reattachment, and when plaster repairs are made they are as joint-free, and as much one piece as the original work. I am reminded of the story here of the painting contractor who declared when he told the story of the youngster going through a wallboard wall with his kiddy car, that he merely pasted a strip of paper over the hole and repainted it.

Architects and builders tell me also that in most cases these so-called "modern materials" cost more to install and to maintain.

Now, we could go on for a long time, finding fault, but to what do we attribute this preference, if such there be, in view of the substantial evidence in favor of lath and plaster?

Can it be shortage of raw materials for lathing and plastering which necessitate substitutions? It most assuredly cannot. Our mountains are full of lime, cement and gypsum, cheaply produced in unlimited quantities.

Is it some fault of labor? I can safely say plasterers and their helpers work harder than any mechanics on the job; I feel we must look elsewhere if labor is at fault.

Is it salesmanship? There, I feel we have put the finger in the proper place. These materials are purely and simply sold, successfully in large measure because of an overwhelming ignorance on the part of the people who buy and use them, and an extreme gullibility for things which may promise to overcome difficulties experienced with previously known materials and methods.

We must assume the prospective owner simply does not know; all materials can be made to look good in the beginning, and he fails to reckon the ravages of time, the hazards of fire, sanitation and hard usage.

It is our job to make certain the public does know, and then lathing and plastering will fare better.

If lathing and plastering had basic weaknesses and we had to tell fantastic stories to sell it, perhaps we would get further in the sale of our craft. But, because it has not we have taken it for granted and have assumed the public would.

Plastering is both the oldest and the newest of the building crafts.

Newest, I say, because something has been added. This something is the millions of dollars that have been spent to perfect the materials, to develop new

Humorist Recalls Experiences In First War

I was one of the fellows who made the world safe for democracy. What a crazy thing that was! I fought and fought but I had to go anyway.

I was called in Class "A." The next time I want to be in class "B"—Be here when they go and Be here when they come back. I remember when I registered. I went up to the guy in charge, only to find that he was my milkman. He said, "What is your name?" "You know my name." "What's your name?" he barked—so I tell him "August Child." He said, "Are you an alien?" I said, No, I feel fine." He asked me where I was born, and I said, "Pittsburgh." Then he asked, "When did you first see the light of day?" I said, "When we moved to Philadelphia." He asked how old I was, so I told him. "Twenty-three the first of September." He said, "The first of September you'll be in France, and that'll be the last of August."

A veterinarian started to examine me. He asked if I ever had the measles, smallpox, Saint Vitus dance and did I ever take fits. I said "No, only when I stay in the saloon too long." Then he said "Can you see right?" I said, "Sure, but I'll be cockeyed tonight if I pass." Then he listened to my heart and said "I think you have a wort around your ear." I said, "Wort my neck! that's your button in my ear." The doctor said he had examined about 150,000 men and that I was the most perfect wreck he had ever seen. Then he handed me a Class "A" card.

Then I went to camp and I guess they didn't think I would live long—the first fella I saw wrote on my card "Flying Corps." I went a little further and some guy said, "Look what the wind blew in." I said, "wind nothing, the draft's doing it."

On the second morning they put these clothes on me. What an outfit! Soon as you are in them you think you can fight anybody. They have two sizes—too small and too large. The pants are so tight that I can't sit down. The shoes are so big I turned around three times and they didn't move. What a raincoat they gave me. I strained the rain. I passed an Officer all dressed up with a fancy belt and all that stuff. He called after me. "Didn't you notice my uniform when you passed?" I said, "Yes, what are you kicking about? Look what they gave me."

Oh it was nice—5 below zero, one morning they called us out for an underwear inspection. You talk about scenery! Red flannels, BVD's (all kinds), the union suit I had on would fit Tony Galento. The Lieutenant lined us up and told me to stand up. I said, "I am up, this underwear makes you think that I am sitting down." He got so mad he put me out to dig a ditch. A little while later he passed by and said, "Don't throw that dirt up there." I said, "Where am I goin' to put it?" He said, "Dig another hole and put it there." By that time I was pretty mad and so another guy named Jones and myself drank a quart of whiskey. Finally Jones was acting funny so I ran down to the doctor and told him that Jones was going blind. He asked me if Jones saw pink elephants. I said, "No, they're there but he doesn't see them." Three days later we sailed for France. Marching down to the pier, I had some bad luck. I had a sergeant that stuttered and it took him so long to say "Halt" that the 27 of us marched overboard. They pulled us out and lined us up and the Captain came along and said "Fall in." I said "I've been in." I was on the boat twelve days—seasick twelve days, nothing going down and everything coming up. I leaned over the rail all the time. In the middle of one of my best leanings the Captain rushed up and said, "What company are you in?" I said, "I'm all by myself." He asked me if Brigadier was up yet? I said, "if I swallowed it, it's up." Talk about dumb people! I said to one of the fellas, "I guess we dropped anchor," and he said, "I knew they'd lose it, it's been hanging overboard ever since we left New York."

Well, we landed in France, and were immediately sent to the trenches. After three nights in the trenches the cannon started to roar and the shells started to pass, I was shaking with patriotism. I tried to hide behind a tree, but there wasn't enough trees for the officers. The Captain came around and said, "Five o'clock we go over the top."

I said, "I would like a furlough." He said, "Haven't you got any red blood in your veins?" And I said, "Yes, but I don't want to see it." He said, "Where would you want to go?" I said, "Anywhere it's nice and warm." He told me where to go. Five o'clock we went over the top. Ten thousand Austro-Hungarians came at us. The way they looked at me you'd think I had started the war. Our Captain yelled "Fire at will," but I didn't know any of their names. I guess the fella behind me though I was Will. He fired his gun and shot me in excitement. On my way to the hospital I asked a fella where they were taking me. He said, "Your are going to the morgue." I said, "There's some mistake, I am not dead." He said, "Lie down you! Do you want to make a liar of the doctor?"—Canadian Congress Journal.

HAVE WE SO SOON FORGOTTEN PEARL HARBOR?

(Organized Labor)

Have the American people forgotten treacherous attack by the Japs on Hawaii on December 7, 1941? Have we forgotten Guam and Wake Island, and Midway? The bombing of Manila, the battles of Bataan—and Corregidor? Asks the Washington Teamster.

* * *

The Japs who were so carefully rounded up in Pacific Coast states and placed in concentration camps after Pearl Harbor, are being filtered out and set to work in the beet fields, the potato sheds, and in industrial plants in the middle west and east.

Why? How many Americans know that this is happening? And why the amazing cloak of secrecy with which the scheme is covered? If there ever was a reason for putting these Japs in concentration camps, that reason still exists. The war is not over; the Japs have not been crushed.

We of the Pacific states learned a long time ago that the Japs must be excluded. We passed laws prohibiting them from owning land, despite the protest of selfish eastern interests.

* * *

These alien enemies now are being set to work in industry. They are being paid wages while our boys are out there fighting the Jap army and navy.

Yes, we know why the selfish interests want Jap labor. It's cheap. It demands less in wages, food and working conditions than American labor. That's what the beet growers are after. That's why selfish industrialists want Japs in Pittsburgh, even though the attempt to put them to work there nearly caused a riot.

What about all these Japs who have been taken from the concentration camps and sent to our universities while American boys are leaving the universities by thousands to go out to fight the Japs? Where does such a policy make sense?

Labor knows why the Japs were brought into this country; it was to break down the wage scales of Americans. It's what the Japs have always done, it's what they will always do.

Senator A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky, after a study of the situation, declares that at least sixty per cent of the Japs are still loyal to their homeland. In the Pacific area many thousands were armed and ready to help an invading Jap army on December 7, 1941. Thousands of guns, radio sets, cameras, and even large stocks of dynamite were found by federal agents who rounded up Japs after Pearl Harbor. There was danger of sabotage then and there is danger of sabotage now! Ask the Army! Ask the Coast Guard!

Congress should wake up! Does congress know what is going on? Is it willing to see the Japs set at liberty again?

* * *

A real investigation should be made and the American people should be given all the facts. While American soldiers fight Japs, shall selfish interests and emotional theorists set our enemies free within our own borders?

The selfish are saying: Japs are costing us money, the taxpayers are feeding them, set them to work in the fields and factories. Well, it was that kind of selfishness that caused this war, cost us Guam and Wake and the Phillipines. Those who bleed easily for the taxpayers prevented adequate defense of our islands, prevented the building of an adequate navy and army, prevented the construction of enough airplanes. They didn't want to pay the taxes. Now what is it costing us both in taxes—and in the blood of our sons?

Let us not forget the cold-blooded butchery by the Japs of thousands of Allied soldiers who fell into their hands. Let us remember the savage treatment meted out to thousands of American civilians who were in Jap prison camps after Nippon attacked. Let us remember that when Japan stabbed us in the back, her ambassadors were still in Washington, talking peace.

Let us never forget the men who died then—and who are dying in the Islands of the South Pacific right now! To forget is to court disaster!

NEEDED INVESTIGATION

An investigation of deep interest to all relatives and friends of men in the Army and Navy has been begun by the Senate War Investigating Committee. The committee is studying causes of all Army and Navy plane accidents since the start of the defense program.

Last July, International Labor News Service asked why so many soldiers were being killed in airplane crashes and declared it was high time the people demanded an answer to the question.

It was pointed out that Army heads said the loss of life was only normal or less than normal, for an army in training. "The nation has only their word for it," ILNS said. "Why should there not be a searching investigation to get the truth?"

An investigation has been long overdue and it is good news that it is under way. The Senate committee is not out to "get" anybody, it seeks only the truth. As one member said: "As far as we can tell, based on previous information supplied by the Army and the Navy, the percentage of accidents is relatively low, but we want to see that every step is taken to reduce them to a minimum."

That is an objective that will meet with the hearty approval of every American.

SOME WILL DIE

A brief news item from a western city reports an auto accident. The driver was burned to a crisp. In his car were found heat-seared containers that had held gasoline. Before gas rationing these containers would not have been there; that man would not have died.

A five-gallon can of gasoline in the home, in the garage or in the back of a car can bring almost instant death to anyone in the vicinity. Gasoline does not merely burn. Its fumes in a confined space have the force of dynamite. They will explode without warning, the detonator often being an invisible spark incurred by static electricity.

As spring and summer approach, the temptation will be strong to "save" a little gas for a trip to the mountains or the seashore. A percentage of those who succumb to this temptation will meet a horrible death. In all probability there will be cases where entire homes are destroyed and members of families killed or maimed. They will have learned about gasoline—too late. But there are millions of others who will avoid tragedy by heeding the warnings of fire prevention experts; experts who have studied the dangers facing the gasoline hoarder. These experts have pointed out that no gasoline container is really leak-proof. A little water in the bottom is sufficient to rust through the best can. They also point out that gas fumes in a basement in which a furnace is operating are nothing less than a time bomb. Even pouring gas into the car may prove disastrous, for here again static electricity flashing from tank to funnel could result in instant oblivion.

These warnings have been issued in an endeavor to save lives and property. They are not appeals to patriotism. Good excuses by the gas hoarder might avoid the issue of patriotism. But no amount of rationalizing can avoid the prospect of death.—The Labor Review, Portsmouth, Ohio.

SMALL THINGS

By Grace H. Sherwood

When a man dies one thinks of weighty things.
His name and if he has a son to take it now.
The changes that his death will make in business.
But a woman dies and wrings
The heart to tears with thought of little things.
Sprigged china that she loved, her feathery cake,
Her flair for blue, the trouble she would take
With seedlings. (Can there be recurring springs
And she not here to gaily run out door
And cut white lilacs from the bush she tended?)
Her way of cheering you with a soft chair
And tea. And, more than all, the smile she wore.
Small happy things! But, now that they are ended,
What matters life or any big affair?

WINNING THE PEACE

We are tenting tonight on the old camp ground;
Give us a song to cheer
Our weary hearts—a song of home
And friends we love so dear.
Many are the hearts that are weary tonight
Waiting for the war to cease;
Many are the hearts, battling for the right,
That wait the dawn of peace.

"Tenting Tonight" was a song frequently heard during the American Civil War (1861-1865). It expressed the sentiment of every soul, both North and South. That sentiment was set forth in similar words by Abraham Lincoln when, in his Second Inaugural, he said: "Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away." How that loathing of war which was felt by our ancestors echoes in our hearts today! How clearly Lincoln expressed our present wish when he ended his Inaugural with the words: "Let us do all which may achieve a just and a lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations!"

A lasting peace! That is our goal. Though we hate war; though "war is hell"; though our entire globe is enveloped in this hell today; we cannot in decency contemplate a fatuous "peace" like that which followed the First World War. Better to fight on indefinitely than to afford the aggressor nations another twenty years of truce. If it is to be only twenty years between "Kamerad!" and "Deutschland uber Alles!", the price we and our children must pay for the truce is far too high. The fires of the hell of war must really be extinguished, even though they be extinguished in rivers of blood.

The American Civil War is well worth considering because it furnished a perfect example of a successful "war to end wars" so far as the states of the Union were concerned. In two respects, in particular, it makes clear the policy that must be pursued if the present war is to be brought to more than a transitory ending.

The American Civil War was fought to a finish; it was not broken off by an "armistice." Had there been less determination on each side, a patched-up "peace" might have been arranged in July of 1863, following the battle of Gettysburg and the fall of Vicksburg. The first put an end to Southern dreams of successfully invading the North; the second, by giving the North command of the Mississippi River, dismembered the western portion of the Confederacy from the eastern portion. The ultimate victory of the North was, by these events, rendered quite as certain as the ultimate victory of the Allies was in November, 1918, when Germany asked for the Armistice.

The Confederates, though, were Americans. They had no idea of acknowledging defeat so long as they were able to struggle and there was the slightest chance of victory. Furthermore, the North, under the far-seeing idealistic-realistic leadership of Lincoln, was in no mood to accept anything short of unconditional surrender. Hence it was that, although the outcome of the war was almost certain by the middle of 1863, it continued with unabated fury for almost two years longer. Hundreds of thousands of casualties were suffered by both sides during these terrible years and the agony of both North and South was intense. In this respect, the continuation of the war after July, 1863, was unfortunate indeed. Many thousands of bright young lives were snuffed out even though, as we view the events from the historical standpoint, the issue was already settled.

Those who died in the Civil War after July, 1863, did not die in vain. If the South had weakly surrendered before she was utterly defeated, millions of her population would have doubted the need for surrender and the seeds of discontent and, perhaps, of a new attempt at secession would have been sown. If the North had accepted an armistice and a compromise peace had been devised, the question of whether this was a nation or merely a federation of states would have remained in abeyance to hamper all our future growth and perhaps to cause a still more dreadful civil war. The firmness of the South and the firmness of the North caused the American Civil War to be fought to its ultimate conclusion and once and for all. It bequeathed no doubtful issues to posterity.

May the present war be equally decisive! The Germans and the Japanese have declared themselves to be "master races" to whom all the rest of the world owe allegiance. May they realize as soon as possible how utterly foolish their notion is! May they never surrender nor be granted an armistice until they are willing to take their proper place as citizen people of the world! We cannot afford to make peace with a partially beaten Japan nor with a partially beaten Germany as we did in 1918. We must have with each of them an Appomattox!

The second lesson taught by the American Civil War is that an utterly prostrate foe should be treated generously. In the main, this was the policy of the federal government toward the South—no indemnities, no executions, no prolonged imprisonments. This policy has been a major factor in healing the breach and making the South as utterly loyal to the Stars and Stripes as any other portion of the nation. The brief period of "carpet-bag rule" was a shameful

A PERSONAL MESSAGE TO THE MOTHERS, FATHERS, BROTHERS, SISTERS AND FRIENDS OF SERVICE MEN
THE SECRET NOBODY TOLD

Just before dawn, six weeks from today, United States war and troop ships will slide over the horizon unseen and approach a certain enemy island. As dawn breaks, our warships will begin an intense bombardment while our troops race for the shore in invasion barges. Simultaneously, roaring down on the island, United States paratroop planes will arrive overhead, the sky will blossom with 'chutes and 10 minutes later our men will have the surprised enemy's airfield. Six hours later our invading forces will be mopping up, and not too many days later you'll be smiling as you read in the headlines of a United States victory.

But will you? Is that what you'll be reading? Or will the enemy's "bits and pieces" system have done its job? You see . . . last Tuesday evening, on a bus, the wife of a shipping clerk in an Iowa drug house remarked to a friend: "We're staying home tonight—Al's tired. He shipped 80 cases of quinine to the Army today."

And last night, in a restaurant, a friend of a friend of a soldier said to her girl friend: "Helen found out why Earl hasn't written lately. He's all right—it's just that his arm's been swollen from inoculations. Don't know why he got 'em, though—he was inoculated before, when he first joined the paratroops."

And in a lot of other places a lot of other people—as Americans always have—talked about their jobs, their friends, and what they were doing. And a few of their remarks were heard by the enemy. Many more were not overheard—the enemy isn't everywhere, doesn't hear everything. But some were heard by enemy agents and sympathizers whose instructions are: "Keep your eyes and ears open. Mingle with people. Report everything you hear—don't try to judge its value yourself. Leave that to those who are higher than you."

And now—today—a man is studying those tiny "bits and pieces," those seemingly harmless scraps of information from all parts of the country. "Quinine for the Army . . . the tropics, eh? And 80 cases means a lot of men. Interesting." He continues—goes through many other reports. Some he studies and lays aside. Others are filed and indexed for possible future reference.

Two days later— ". . . paratroopers inoculated . . ." "Now, why? Must have been inoculated once before—why again? Expecting to encounter new diseases, maybe? Tropical diseases, perhaps?"

Iowa City— ". . . heard man in movie lobby talking about neighbor's son named 'Tom.' Son being trained in coast-invasion tactics in Texas . . . neighbor hasn't heard from son lately . . ." "Hasn't heard lately—maybe he's sailed."

"HARMLESS REMARKS TELL THE ENEMY PLENTY

From the files under "Sailings,"—a report of 2 weeks ago. Denver— ". . . a woman said her nephew, John Wycowski, had sailed."

From the files under "List of Men Whose Divisions Are Known"— ". . . heard girl ask friend, Stella Wycowski, if she'd heard from brother lately. Stella W. replied, 'Yes, he's in Texas with 29th Infantry.'" "So the 29th of Texas has sailed . . . and another soldier in Texas, with special invasion training, seems to have sailed, too—looks like one and the same thing. One division of invasion troops sailing . . . quinine shipped . . . paratroopers inoculated, probably against tropical diseases . . . could they be going after one of our tropical islands, perhaps?"

And so he continues, studying, sifting a steady flow of bits and pieces of information. Many are useless. Few mean much in themselves. But the men who study them are like men working on huge jig-saw puzzles—piecing together scraps of information—checking, confirming, and judging one against another—watching their pictures—our plans—slowly take shape. Some pictures are never finished—the missing pieces don't come in. Few pictures are completed to the last detail. But they don't have to be. "Looks like they're after one of our islands. Can't find out which one . . . or exactly when. But it must be soon. And it's in the tropics—so it has to be one of these six." So the word goes out. And in that carefully planned attack—about which nobody talked . . . very much—many of our ships are sunk by enemy subs lying in wait. Other of our men are thrown back into the sea by numerically superior forces . . . our paratroopers and planes are caught by a swarm of fast enemy fighters. And that's what you read about—unsmiling—in your morning paper.

THAT STORY IS FICTION, OF COURSE. But it's true in this way—that's actually how enemy agents work in this war. It's a highly developed system—a "bits and pieces" system of assembling and guessing important information . . . from many scraps of what appears to be harmless information.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO KNOW A BIG SECRET . . .
TO GIVE A BIG SECRET AWAY

Ordinary little facts, you see, the kind of things anyone might know, such as a soldier's location; where he is, where he's going, how or when . . . may supply the missing pieces in the enemy's jig-saw puzzle. Chance remarks about his equipment, what he's doing, the name or number of the outfit he's in, the fact that he's sailing . . . could be valuable clues.

And not only soldiers—the same goes for planes and ships (and double for convoys) and their crews. What kind of ship or plane? How big? Where are we building new ones? How many? What kind? When will they be finished? What changes in design?

And production, too—"they use a lot of bronze" (sounds like naval guns to a spy) . . . "A funny little gadget like a watch and it has a lot of wheels" (means bomb timers to the enemy) . . . "Frank runs a lathe" (that makes 19 the enemy has counted in his factory) . . . "Charley's making 20 pounds of optical glass a day (20x31 men=620 pounds) . . .

Even ship sinkings—"It was terrible—we say them from the shore. The men came swimming and rowing in all days." (The enemy wasn't sure he'd sunk that ship.)

BUT MY SISTER'S NO SPY!

And neither is your cousin, your uncle, your friends. But if you talk—even to them—why shouldn't they talk to someone else? And that "someone" will tell another person . . . who can tell a third . . . who'll pass it on . . . till eventually, somewhere in that chain, the enemy hears it. He doesn't care who her hears it from . . . or whether it's first or fifth hand. So don't start a chain. And don't keep up someone else's. Don't pass on information you hear.

BUT WHAT ABOUT THINGS HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE KNOW ABOUT?

The enemy must know about those things, too, you'd think. But that's wrong—the enemy won't know . . . If those hundreds of people don't talk. In 1918 a German submarine was sunk at Scapa Flow in Scotland. Its captain had been ordered to attack the British Grand Fleet there. Yet the Grand Fleet had left Scapa Flow a year before—as all Scotland knew. But the Germans didn't know. Because the Scots hadn't talked.

The enemy can't be everywhere, you see. Something big may be happening—thousands know about it—and it just happens there's not an enemy within a hundred miles. Especially here, because the FBI's nabbed so many of them—you've read about that. So the enemy's depending more than ever on his "bits and pieces" system for finding out about it later. But he won't find out . . . if we don't tell him.

J. EDGAR HOOVER SAYS . . .

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Director, has a thorough understanding of how enemy agents work—he's studied, fought, and captured so many of them. He says . . .

"Certain key words will tell you what types of information our enemies are especially anxious to get hold of. Read these key words . . . study them . . . remember them."

"WHERE . . . are our soldiers, ships, planes? (And antiaircraft guns, forts, gun emplacements, factories, mine fields, harbor defenses?) Where are war weapons manufactured?

"HOW . . . are our men going? How are they armed and equipped? How are our planes, tanks, and other weapons made? How well or poorly do they perform? How are they changed in design?

"WHEN . . . are men going? When will that ship be launched? When does it sail? When will that production job be finished?

"HOW MANY . . . troops, ships, planes, tanks, other weapons, war materials? How many being made? And will be made?

"WHAT KIND . . . of duty is he doing . . . training is he getting . . . work is he doing in war production? What kind of regiment is he with, and its name? What's the name of his ship? What kind of ship, plane, is it? What kind of cargo?

"Of course, that's only a suggestion of the kind of information our enemies need. No list of any kind could be even nearly complete. What would we like to know about our enemies—their men, their training, their location, their plans, their production? Well, that's what they want to know about us."

J. EDGAR HOOVER,

Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation

CAN WE TALK ABOUT ANYTHING?

Of course. Just remember this rule:

If you HEAR it from someone—don't repeat it.

If you SEE it yourself—don't repeat it.

But if you READ it in newspapers or magazines or hear it on the radio, then it's public property—and you may talk about it. Of course, you mustn't repeat information you read in personal letters.

If you heard from a soldier, for example, that he was in Liberia, you shouldn't mention it to anyone. But when it's been officially announced—that is, when you read it in the newspapers and magazines or hear it on the radio—why, of course, you can talk about it.

We Americans have always been used to talking without looking over our shoulders wondering who's listening. We're pretty jealous of our freedom of speech. So keeping quiet about bits of information that may seem unimportant . . . learning to force ourselves to stop and think before we talk . . . is going to be quite a job for us. But when you think of what could happen if you don't . . . it shouldn't be too hard. And all of us in the services—and our lives and success—are depending on you . . . to think before you talk."

SAFETY FIRST

In a certain school in New York there was a teacher, an energetic advocate of "Safety First," who opened her class each morning by rising and asking: "Children, what would you do if fire were to break out in the building?" The children would reply in chorus: "We would rise in our places, step into the aisle and march quietly out of the building."

One morning when the children arrived at school they found themselves honored by the presence of Dr. Henry van Dyke. The teacher stepped before the class and instead of the usual fire drill question, said, "Children, what would you say if I were to tell you that Dr. van Dyke is to speak to you this morning?"

Instantly from the class came the resounding chorus: "We would rise in our places, step into the aisle and march quietly out of the building."

ALL-PURPOSE SOAP USED BY TROOPS OVERSEAS

American workers soon will make a new soap for American soldiers overseas, which can be used for bathing, shaving or, in an emergency, laundering clothing.

Developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps in co-operation with industrial technicians and chemists, this soap is suitable for use in waters varying from the softest to the hardest and is intended for use where bathing may take place in rain water in a tub one day and in the ocean the next.

Mild and non-irritating, the soap has no abrasives or gritty substances and is effective in removing almost any types of soils encountered, according to the War Department announcement.

I CARRY A UNION CARD

I carry a union card because it carries me into the hearts and thoughts and sympathetic understandings of millions of other average human beings with problems like my own. My card guarantees me a living wage, decent working conditions and time to enjoy my home and family. It entitles me to the benefits of knowledge and experience by my fellow craftsmen. It gives me social contact I enjoy. It creates within me confidence, good fellowship and strong sense of security and well-being.

It promotes the brotherhood of man through honest work, fair bargaining, "live and let live" and a just reward for all.

It stands for self-support and mutual advancement, which means unending progress.

It advances patriotism, elevates my standards of thought and living, permits me time for cultural pursuits and spiritual thinking.

It puts experience and mutual assistance behind the weaker links in the chain of life and keeps the pace a steady one for all.

It makes understandable and unforgettable the brotherhood of man. There can be no forgotten men in such a universal brotherhood.

I carry a card because I believe that if the Carpenter of Nazareth were here today, He, too, would carry one, thus helping to make practical, through true trade unionism, the precepts He laid down for all mankind 2,000 years ago.

These are the reasons why I am a labor unionist and carry a union card.

THE GREAT ARU RAILROAD STRIKE OF 1894

said railroads they assumed and exercised unrestricted government authority when so ordered by their employers."

This is but a condensed story of the A. R. U. strike. Space here does not permit recital of all the horrible facts. Just another chapter in the long story of a cost that was paid by the pioneers of organized Labor (God bless them) to establish the magnificent American Labor movement of which we are so justly proud today.

THE WORLD AT WAR

exception, but perhaps it served a good purpose by demonstrating how much harm the persecution of a defeated people can do. The evil, fortunately, was soon corrected.

What concrete measures we shall take with regard to our would-be "masters" after we have forced them into abject surrender is not, of course, altogether clear. Certainly we should be as kind to them as circumstances will permit for, like us, they are human beings suffering amid the flames of war. To be sure, they started the flames but by the time they are reduced to utter surrender they will merit our pity rather than our persecution.

The greatest lesson the American Civil War teaches us is the first one: we must grant no armistice; we must not enter upon a "negotiated peace"; we must have complete, utter, undisputed victory!

—Painter and Decorator.

"A GREATER MENACE THAN THE ENEMY!"
(LABOR)

"Bob" Montgomery, capable as well as handsome movie actor, jumped into a naval uniform soon after we became involved in the war. He saw plenty of service in the South Pacific, got a bad dose of tropical fever and now is back in his California home.

That doesn't sound very bad, but, as a matter of fact, when a white man picks up the germs of malaria in the tropics, he is likely to be hit harder than if he were wounded.

In a speech in New York last week, Colonel Paul F. Russell, of the Army Medical Service, declared that in the tropics malaria is "a greater menace to our soldiers than the enemy," and that with even the best of medical care, the germ clings to its victim indefinitely and prepares the way for other diseases.

Our soldiers had exactly that experience in the Philippines almost 50 years ago. We didn't know as much about tropical diseases then as we do now. We thought when the boys came home in apparent health there was no occasion to worry. Unfortunately, that was not the case. Thousands were permanently weakened.

Science has been at work on the problem, but, as Colonel Russell frankly acknowledges, up to date the answer has not been found.

Social progress makes the well-being of all more and more the business of each. At the bottom of every social problem we find a social wrong.—Henry George.

types of lathing, new methods of plastering and other things which guarantee a ready acceptance for this modern miracle when we ourselves get on the band wagon and "shout to the housetops" about it.

With plaster, men make in hours what it takes Nature a million years to create.—Stone.

CORRECTIONS

Withdrawal card issued to L. H. Fuller 32342 by Local 52 as published in March '43 issue of The Lather was reported in error and is therefore cancelled.

Withdrawal card issued to G. Liddle 36427 through Local 234, published April '43 issue of The Lather was reported in error. The report should have been made that Brother Liddle was issued a transfer by Local 234. This transfer has since been deposited in Local 7.

Issuance of honorary withdrawal card by Local 483 to A. J. Schmidt 22515, published in April issue of The Lather, was due to a misunderstanding and has been cancelled at the request of Local 483.

BEWARE OF THE POLITE JAP

Some of the peculiarities of Japanese ways: The Jap is always polite—but his politeness doesn't run exactly along the same lines as ours. Once in a while he slips from grace and then he is up against it, for there are no swear words or expletives in his lingo. He just has to swell up and stand it, instead of exploding as we do. When a Japanese meets you he bows in a formal way, very low—not one time but three times. And he takes off his hat, but he knows too much about the danger that lurks in germs to shake hands with you or kiss you. When he greets you his first concern is about your honorable ancestors several generations back. And next he gets solicitous about your stomach. It would almost be an insult if one Jap met another and neglected to inquire about the other's stomach. On the third bow he asks: "This morning—how is it with your honorable inside?" As he does this he makes a kind of hissing sound through his teeth.

As you come up on your third bow you answer to the effect that the place referred to is doing as well as could be expected, and in turn you ask him for the latest news from the front. Then he lifts his hat again and says: "Your delightful head, this morning—I hope it suffers no commotion!" When you tell him that you are pleased to report that it feels very well he asks about your ancestors and their stomachic ups and downs. After that you are at liberty to discuss the weather or whathaveyou.

But even though the Japs are elaborately polite, once in awhile one Jap will get mad at another. They are not like the Irish, for instance, for their anger is slow to rise. But gradually their internal boiler suffers under such a terrific head of steam that there is an explosion. However, this explosion is not the verbal torrent which we might expect. It keeps boiling harder and harder until it casts off all restraint and gives up all idea of decency and decorum by putting into one single phrase all the bitterness and suppressed emotion of which his being is capable. Then he snaps squarely in his opponent's teeth the worst thing that can be said in the whole gamut of Japanese scorn: "Your stomach is not on straight!"

This is the final insult. Nothing more can be added—there isn't any more. Words fail, as this is the limit. If the case is extremely serious, the one who wishes to heap an unquenchable fire on the immortal head of his enemy can now go and commit hari-kari on the grave of that enemy's most honored ancestor. It would be a great thing if the Japanese would invent a few good hot terms to use in speech, instead of allowing all this haughty indignation to sour on the stomach. But that just isn't their way of doing things.

HONEST LAWYERS

A Philadelphia lawyer who is peeved because of the reputation "Philadelphia lawyers" have in the way of being over-smart, says he wants to start a popular fund for the purpose of providing suitable burial for lawyers who are dying off like flies because an honest lawyer has such a hard time of it in these days.

We would like to subscribe to this fund—provided we can be allowed to name some of the lawyers who are to be buried.

The great majority of lawyers are honest; they have to be or they would not be trusted with the most sacred interests of their clients. But a tribe of lawyers have been allowed to grow up in this country who are not worthy of the protection of the law. They are rascals at heart and they lend their great powers to defeating the law and getting criminals off, instead of upholding the law and aiding in the administration of justice.

If the honest lawyers do not start pretty soon to prove to the public that they have nothing in common with these dishonest ones, we are going to witness a most disastrous weakening of the people's faith in justice.

The people have lost faith in the bankers, as a class—not because all bankers are dishonest, for the vast majority can be trusted absolutely. But, as a banker has written: "The cheats of the last five or 10 years had their punishment coming to them, but it is too bad that they had to drag down the rest of the public, who were innocent, with them."

Going back to the lawyers—we might suggest as a good epitaph for some of them the famous one which is to be found in an English churchyard:

Here lies a Lawyer!
Weep if you will.
In mercy, kind Providence,
Let him lie still.
He lied for his living; so
He lived while he lied;
When he could not lie longer,
He lied down and died.

—The Plasterer.

WIT AND HUMOR

A civil engineer, building a railroad in old Mexico, was trying to show a native how much the new railway would benefit the country.

"How long does it take you to carry your produce to market at present?" he asked.

"With a mule it takes three days," came the reply.

"There you are!" exclaimed the engineer. "When this railroad is in operation you will be able to take your produce to market and return home the same day!"

"Very good, senor," said the native. "But what shall I do with the other two days?"

Professor—I have been robbed of my new pocket-book.

Wife—Didn't you feel a hand in your pocket?

Professor—Yes, but I thought it was my own.

An inquisitive friend called on her recently widowed neighbor, and soon got on to the subject of what her husband had left her.

"As your husband died intestate, you will, of course, get a third," the caller suggested.

"No, I hope to get a fourth," was the prompt reply. "He was my third husband, you know."

That is best which God sends; it was His will; it is mine.—Owen Meredith.

It is not what we read, but what we remember, that makes us learned.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Rejected Suitor—Well, in any case I'll always be a brother to you.

She (sweetly)—If I had any use for a brother I could reach under the sofa and get one now.

The old negress viewed with misgiving the large amount of sugar cane being eaten by her 6-year-old grandson.

Eventually she warned the boy: "Chile, chile, ain't I tol' you time an' ag'in that you'se eaten' too much cane? Don't you know, chile, cane killed Abel?"

What makes a Christian is not the theology we have in our heads, but the faith and love we have in our hearts.

Newly-Wed Husband (severely)—Dear, the bank has returned that check.

Bride—Oh, isn't that splendid! What can we buy with it this time?

Customer—Your dog seems very fond of watching you cut hair.

Barber—It isn't that; sometimes I snip off a bit of a customer's ear.

The story is told of a secretary with a passion for detail. It seems her boss died very suddenly and left an important business letter unmailed. Before mailing it, the secretary added the following explanatory note below her employer's signature:

"Since writing the above, I have died."

As charity covers a multitude of sins before God, so does politeness before men.—Greville.

Chuzz—Have you ever noticed that most successful men are bald?

Guppy—Naturally, they come out on top!

Willie studied with profound interest the picture of Elijah going to heaven in a chariot of fire.

Pointing to the halo above the prophet's head, he exclaimed, "Oh, daddy, the government will get him—he's got a spare tire!"

It is not in mortals to command success, but we will do more, we will deserve it.—Addison.

And then there was the radio announcer's daughter, who, in asking grace, said, "This food comes to you through the courtesy of God Almighty."

A Welsh regimental choir was singing outside the officers' Mess after dinner.

The colonel called the unmusical sergeant-major.

"Look here," he said, "go and tell the choir to sing 'Sweet and Low.'"

The sergeant-major went out and bawled to the leader: "If you blokes can't make less noise the colonel says you've got to clear off."

Be wise rather than witty, for much wit commonly hath much froth.—Trenchild.

What sort o' minister hae ye got, Geordie?"

"Oh, weel, he's no' muckle worth. We seldom get a glint o' him. Sax days o' the week he's invees'ble, and on the seventh he's encomprens'ble!"

IS COUNTERFEIT MONEY A SECRET WEAPON?

Head of Secret Service says Axis forces may try to pollute and degrade our United States Currency

By Edward P. Corwin

Secret weapons have been the source of much talk since the war began. Fantastic stories have been circulated about electrically operated guns firing with amazing speed, about devices enabling airmen to see through fog and clouds, about airplanes traveling over 600 miles an hour.

Time and allied military experts have discounted all of these super devices as mere products of the Axis propaganda mills to bolster home morale and worry civilians of the United Nations. What may prove to be the real secret weapon is counterfeit money, according to Frank J. Wilson, Chief of the United States Secret Service.

Imitating the adversary's money is a trick almost as old as warfare itself. The Japs resorted to it in their war with Russia, in their invasion of China and more recently in their occupation of the Philippines and Malaya. Napoleon used it in his conquests and there is evidence of it in the American Revolution and the French Revolution.

Japs Built Counterfeiting Plant

When the Russo-Japanese war began in 1904, the treacherous yellow men went in for counterfeiting on a grand scale. In their city of Kobe they built an elaborate plant at a cost of $100,000 and produced notes purportedly issued by Chinese and Russian banks.

The bills were perfect reproductions that defied detection even under the microscope. Through coolies and others in China they were exchanged at the banks for English and other money. This enabled the Japs to obtain millions of dollars in currency to finance their war.

When the counterfeiting started, the Hongkong-Shanghai Banking Corporation was compelled to keep open five days and five nights to handle the influx of notes. Other Chinese and Russian banks handled thousands.

$80,000,000 Proved Counterfeit

Bank officials were naturally suspicious of this great outpouring of currency, but unable to find any flaws in the notes, they were compelled to honor them as genuine. With the aid of American and British experts, $80,000,000 of the bills were proved counterfeits in 1907 and it was never definitely established how many more were in circulation.

The only reason the deception did not cause a business suspension in the East was that every man thought he had a genuine note and did not worry. The disclosure of the counterfeits was a severe blow to the bankers who had been holding them in their vaults.

Counterfeit Russian and Austrian currency turned out by the bundle in a closely guarded hideaway in Paris were used by Napoleon to buy supplies for invasion of Russia and Austria.

In the wake of the French Revolution the nobility of France, whose seized lands were the basis for the assignats of the revolutionary government, organized counterfeiting as a means of recouping their losses. It is said that at one time they operated 17 plants in England and employed 400 men to turn out billions of francs in the bogus assignats. Each bore a distinguishing mark so that the counterfeiters and their sympathizers would not be duped. The government was finally forced to withdraw and repudiate the legal assignats.

British Tried It, Too

When America was fighting Great Britain for her freedom, the British imitated the Continental currency and circulated the fakes to undermine faith in the new government and its money. The saying, "Not worth a Continental," to denote extreme worthlessness, originated then and is still in use.

The United States Secret Service, whose sole duty is to guard the nation's money and the President, is keenly alive to the destructive effect a flood of counterfeits could have upon the economic system of this country.

In 1937 Wilson started a campaign to familiarize the public with the appearance of its money. So successful has it been that the average loss to the public in the year ended June 30, 1942, dropped 93 percent from the $771,000 average of the 1933-36 period. And it is upon this weapon of education that the Service is relying to combat the Axis "printing Press" in America.

Effect Would Be Devastating

"The effect of a flood of counterfeit currency on the economic structure of the United States would be devastating to say the least," Wilson warns. "Suppose you owned a department store and were in close competition with another merchant not far away. And suppose, as an exaggerated example, your competitor hired 500 people to go into your store and buy everything you had in stock, giving you counterfeit money in payment.

"You would go to the bank to make your wonderful deposit and then you would learn that all the money was worthless. Your shelves and your purse would be empty and your faith in money, your country and in man would be dealt a terrific blow.

Japs Will Do It Again

To believe that such a thing could never happen in this country is merely wishful thinking, Wilson counsels. If the Japs did it in their war with Russia, which was a peanut war compared with this struggle for survival, why should they hesitate to do it now?

American dollars which run off to some cozy shelter to hide while American boys are dying to defend American cities and towns from destruction and invasion will face a rising demand from all classes of patriotic citizens to come out and fight.

Millions of workers who now are buying War Bonds regularly out of current income must lend extra money to their government during the Second War Loan campaign (which started April 12).

In recognition of the spirit of sacrifice which is sweeping over the land as our troops swing into offensive action in Africa and await the signal for a landing in Europe, the Treasury Department is offering a series of government bonds to fit every pocket-book.

No matter whether Americans buy the familiar Series E Bonds or  $2\frac{1}{2}$  per cent bonds or 2 per cent bonds or tax certificates, they will be doing their part to make the Second War Loan drive a success.

Consumer Spending Too High

Consumer spending in 1942 was much too high to meet the war situation of 1943. Last year more than 82 billion dollars of our soaring national income went to feed the desires of Americans for clothes, recreation, foods and luxuries. As these items grow scarcer, more and more of our income must be diverted from such expenses into government bonds.

During 1942 millions of our fathers, sons, relatives and friends were in training here and abroad. Some were already in action. Casualties were beginning to bite into every community. War Bonds became a vital link between the home and fighting fronts.

Today sacrifice has become a way of life for America's fighting men. Civilian spending on the 1942 scale must go out the window if the home folks are to attempt to match the heroism of American boys at the front.

Not every American can take his place in a bomber or in a foxhole or on a fighting ship but he can fire away at the enemy by lending money to the government.

Fight in Streets

In Britain, where thousands of civilians have been bombed to death by German raiders, the war savings battlecry is:

"Fight in the Streets."

Americans will adopt this war cry during the Second War Loan. There must be a street-by-street drive to lend money to the government to assure success of the 13-billion dollar drive.

Attack costs more money than preparation. A single bomber raid may cost millions of dollars. Gasoline alone for a 1,000-plane assault costs over $375,000.

The material side of carrying the war to the foe, costly as it is, is nothing compared to the value of a single American life. Americans at home are coming to realize that no matter how great their sacrifice may be in providing money for their government, their sacrifice is nothing when viewed from a thundering battlefield strewn with dead and wounded.

"THE FORGOTTEN MAN"—FATHER

By John J. Buckley

The days go fast, and work is slow
But somehow Dad keeps on the go.
The many mouths to feed, and keep,
And home provide, where they may sleep.
O! I write these lines, my thoughts opines
Of the ones all poets slighted
But they rave o'er other creatures.
He is not handsome true, but I'm telling you
There's a cause for his care worn features.
In the summer's sun, and winter's cold
He is on the job, like the slaves of old,
That the fire may burn and the grub to earn.
He deserves a cheer, when home he return.

The clothes he wears, need ample repairs,
And, a dollar watch he carrys.
To a picture show,—he never go,
Or, fools around other Janes or Sallys,
Has his neighbor's respect.
He don't whine, or heck
The Golden Rule his guide THIS LATHER
He seeks no praise, works all days,
This Forgotten Man—Dear Father.

If the kids are broke, and cannot smoke
A nickel or dime, from the "Missus"
Good old Dad is not mean,
Though it leaves him clean.
But he never receives any kisses
If there is shoes to buy—why
Dad is there; though his own are old
And feet almost bear.
Tut, Good Dad, don't care.

In worries, or sick, he is a brick
How he does stick.
To his own—and many another
Many nights so late, to emulate
The charity of a Brother.
The outcast and poor, all know his door
And the smile, his face—always bore.
In his "little house beside the road"
Dad's helping hand, was in their load.

The welkin may ring, cheers,
For the Prince or King,
From the crowd, as they gather.
But, to me it seem, no idle dream
They none are as great as Father.
He wears no crown, gathers no renown,
But his hands and face—
Are gnarled, scarred, and brown,
He sifts the goodness from the bad
He cheer—u—all, when we are sad
He gives his best, Dear Old Dad,
Does Father—The Lather.

Respectfully submitted,

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY

WASHINGTON

June 11, 1943

To all Presidents of International Unions:

On July 1, as you know, the new Withholding Tax method of collecting the Federal Income and Victory Taxes goes into effect.

Probably many of our individual members will not fully understand the new method of tax collection, and will turn to you for information concerning the amount withheld from their wages, or for other information in connection with the new tax system.

To help your Union answer these questions immediately and authoritatively, I am sending you a supply of the booklets printed by the Bureau of Internal Revenue to explain to employers their duties under the law and the methods of computing the amount of tax to be withheld from each individual employee's pay.

In view of the very short time before July 1, it is impossible for us to address these booklets to your individual locals. May I ask you, therefore, to distribute them by your own means as promptly as possible?

It would also be very helpful, not only to the Treasury, but to the members of your Union, if you would urge upon them the importance of filling out and filing immediately their WITHHOLDING EXEMPTION CERTIFICATES. The law places this responsibility on the individual employee. Unless he files this Certificate, his employer is required to withhold 20 per cent from the full amount of his wage, without figuring any exemption. None of us want that to happen.

I would also like to ask your cooperation in pointing out most forcefully to your members that this is not a new or additional tax. Therefore there will be no valid reason for reducing the amount of their pay allotted to the purchase of War Savings Bonds. You recognize, as well as I, the vital part that regular purchases of War Savings Bonds play in the war effort. May I count upon your help in maintaining, or even increasing, these purchases during this period of transition to our new method of tax collection?

Sincerely yours,
A. Morganthau, Jr.
Secretary of the Treasury.

ATTENTION SECRETARIES AND MEMBERS:

Copies of the booklets referred to in the above letter will be mailed to each local union as soon as they are received from the U. S. Treasury Department.

BETSEY ROSS

Elizabeth Grecom, the maker of the first American flag, was born the eighth of a family of sixteen children in the city of Philadelphia. At an early age she was apprenticed at Webster upholstery firm in that city, and it was here that she met John Ross, whom she grew to love and eventually married when she was 21.

After they were married the happy pair decided to open a shop of their own in the line of business at which they were so adept. They accordingly purchased a little house on Arch Street in Philadelphia.

The front room on the ground floor was their upholstery establishment. Betsy, who was a thoroughly trained worker, soon gained a reputation for her embroidering and darning, and things were going along very smoothly for the ardent couple till the bubble of the Revolution presented itself and took her husband away from her side and she was left a widow at the age of 24.

One day three eminent visitors came to call on her, none other than Washington, Robert Morris, and her uncle, George Ross. Washington presented to her the rough sketch of the design for a flag which he intended to use as the standard for the troops of the United States.

Washington's suggestion was a square of thirteen stripes of red and white, thirteen six-pointed stars on a blue canton, and he asked her opinion. Mrs. Ross suggested some improvement which consisted of making the standard a third longer than wide, the thirteen stars to be arranged in a geometrical group of five-pointed stars which were deemed more symmetrical than six. Her suggestions were accepted and Washington then and there drew the plans for a new flag which was painted by William Barrett, and Mrs. Ross was commissioned to make the flag.

Congress approved of it, and in 1777 this flag was adopted as the national banner.

ORGANIZED LABOR SUPPORTS PRESIDENT'S PROGRAM—DESPITE ASSAILANTS

If it were not for the solidarity so often demonstrated by organized wage earners in this nation-wide fight against their standards, despite their division into various economic organizations and the sustained support accorded us by President Roosevelt, our future would look much darker than it does. Despite the fact that our Nation, aligned with others under the banners of the United Nations, are fighting a Global War that is taxing all of our combined resources and should call for a common unity between all peoples, organized labor has been made the victim of the most devastating and unmerited attacks by anti-labor employers, buttressed by a press that uses its "freedom" only to blast the Administration and "free" labor. Now more than at any other period—organized labor must continue its wholehearted support of President Roosevelt and our beloved Nation. We must exert every effort, forego every unnecessary disbursement of our personal funds and buy more War Bonds. We must do this while giving our full cooperation to all other war efforts. In like manner our brothers and sisters in courageous Canada must give their continued support to the financing and carrying on other necessary activities to win the war. We must lend our entire cooperation to the building up of the membership in, and maintenance of our local unions, our National and International Unions and those federations with which we are allied so that we can have a more effective voice in winning the peace after the clouds of conflict have passed. We must not permit anti-labor influences to gain the ascendancy in their fight against our future campaigns and progress.

WHICH STAR IN THE AMERICAN FLAG BELONGS TO YOUR STATE?

Compiled by George W. Holski,

Former Secretary, Twenty-first District Republican Club, Brooklyn, N. Y.

In 1912, on the 26th day of October, the last executive order concerning the flag was made, and it provided for the specific arrangement of the stars.

They were to be arranged in six horizontal rows of eight stars each. Starting in the left-hand corner and placing each row from left to right, the star corresponding to each state is named in order of the states' ratification of the Constitution.

Thus, Star No. 1, in the upper left-hand corner, for Delaware. Star No. 48, in the lower right-hand corner, is for Arizona.

The following list will show you in a glance exactly which star is yours:

First Row—No. 1, Delaware; 2, Pennsylvania; 3, New Jersey; 4, Georgia; 5, Connecticut; 6, Massachusetts; 7, Maryland; 8, South Carolina.

Second Row—No. 9, New Hampshire; 10, Virginia; 11, New York; 12, North Carolina; 13, Rhode Island; 14, Vermont; 15, Kentucky; 16, Tennessee.

Third Row—No. 17, Ohio; 18, Louisiana; 19, Indiana; 20, Mississippi; 21, Illinois; 22, Alabama; 23, Maine; 24, Missouri.

Fourth Row—No. 25, Arkansas; 26, Michigan; 27, Florida; 28, Texas; 29, Iowa; 30, Wisconsin; 31, California; 32, Minnesota.

THIS WEEK, THIS WORLD*By Ted Friend

Release May 17, 1943

Ten years ago this month a howling mob of Berliners gathered by the light of the moon to participate in a book-burning episode which, unfortunately for the Reich, was publicized the free world over.

By that act Germany not only divorced itself from the best and most decent in world thought but it also stamped itself as a barbaric gang of hoodlums whose concepts of literature and art were as debased as were its codes of morality and law.

In the face of the promises for which it sold out to fascism ten years ago what actually did the German people gain?

It gained a war. It gained a regimented economic and social order. It gained the destruction of free institutions, including its religious associations and its labor unions. It gained a reputation for cruelty, degeneracy and ignorance. It gained bombed cities; millions of dead, wounded and captured; a reduced standard of living. Above all it gained the hatred and contempt of the civilized world.

Thus can a chain of events ensue from a simple but revealing book—burning ceremony.

A people that tolerates little acts of terrorism lays the foundation for more hideous acts of terrorism to follow.

And such a people also lays the foundation for the inevitable acts of retribution which must follow the acts of terror.

* * *

ALL IS NOT WELL in Axis circles! The Germans and the Italians are having trouble with each other. Both are having trouble with the Bulgarians. And the Finns are having trouble with the Germans. To round out the picture the Roumanians are at swords-points with the Bulgarians!

Bitterness between the Germans and the Italians stems from the "heroic sacrifice of Italians by the Germans" in the long battle of Africa. In repayment for what it regards as German treachery in using Italian troops to screen German withdrawals, Italy is cutting down on food exports to Germany. Antagonism between the Axis and the Bulgarians is based on Bulgarian refusal to declare war on Russia. Finland is locked in contention with Germany because of Nazidom's treatment of non-Aryan Finns, who are among that country's most valiant citizens. And the Bulgarians and Roumanians are at each others' throats because each covets the other's territory!

WITHOUT WHITEWASHING Russia's act of bad faith toward the Polish people, by its killing of Polish Labor Leaders Ehrlich and Alter, there is a considerable case against the Polish overlords, whose past records in nationhood are not much better than those of Germany's. It must not be forgotten that Poland committed an outrage and an act of aggression against Lithuania just prior to Munich and that she cashed-in on Munich itself when she helped in the disgraceful dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

The tragedy of Poland is that it has, time out of mind, permitted its worst feudal-minded classes to govern its destiny. Cruel, arrogant and ignorant, the Polish equivalent of the German Junkers have kept the people in a state of impoverished semi-subjection for centuries past.

Poland's will to independence has been strong but her lack of regard for the basic tenets of democracy, as evidenced by the all but dictatorial regime instituted by even its honored Pilsudski, is evidence that it has much to do before it is able to enter the court of nations with clean democratic hands.

* * *

PRECISELY AT THIS SPLIT SECOND there are little coteries of German Junkers meeting in the Reich concerning themselves with the pressing problem of how to outwit the victors in the event that total defeat, in the African manner, comes crashing down upon Germany's head.

Such conferences, attended by the military aristocrats, the large land-owners and the industrialists, took place just prior to the end of the last war. Most certainly much the same sort of scheming is going on now.

It was one of the early boasts of the Germans that if they could not win world conquest in two world wars they would do it in three, and they pointed to the Three Punie Wars as the obvious pattern. First job of the Germans, if defeat appears to be just around the corner, will be to attempt to evade as much of the responsibilities of the imposed peace terms as possible. The second objective will be to go underground with as much of its military organization intact as it can. Every deceit possible, from simple whining to artificial collapse, will be invoked to cut down on the effectiveness of Allied curtailment of German resources of aggression. To this end new political parties, manned by presumed humanitarian leaders, will be contrived. German industry will appear contrite in the hope that it will be more or less overlooked on the day of retribution. Followers of fascism will appear to have a change of heart. There will be a surface effort to restore the dignity and property of persecuted classes. Endless evidence will be offered that the German people are really good people who, at last, may be expected to walk in the straight and narrow path of their national life.

Meanwhile the Junker master-minds will set plans for another and third war of revenge and conquest. A new ideology of terror will be formed. A new skeleton army will be connived. New secret arms industries, disguised as baby carriage and similar

Dear Sir and Brother:

May 6, 1943.

I enclose a copy of an official communication which I addressed to State Federations of Labor, City Central Bodies and Federal Labor Unions. Will you please supplement this action by communicating with Members of Congress and by calling upon the officers and members of local unions chartered by your international union urging them to wire and write Members of Congress to vote against Senate Bill 796, by Senator Connally?

We are doing everything that lies within our power to prevent favorable action upon this measure by the House of Representatives. Feeling in the House of Representatives is running high and for that reason our task is very difficult. We succeeded in preventing the Connally Bill from being considered and acted upon until the interruption in mining operations took place. The members of the United States Senate were influenced by feeling when on May 5, 1943, they voted to adopt Senate Bill 796, by Senator Connally.

I would appreciate it very much if you would respond to the request I have herein made as speedily as possible.

Fraternally yours,
W. GREEN,
President, American Federation of Labor

To the Officers of State Federations of Labor,
City Central Bodies and Federal Labor Unions.
Dear Sirs and Brothers:

May 6, 1943.

Please accept this communication as an urgent call for help—help to protect you and the membership of the American Federation of Labor against being the victims of anti-labor legislation. Write or wire your Congressmen immediately upon receipt of this communication urging and appealing to them to vote against Senate Bill 796, by Senator Connally, which passed the Senate of the United States on May 5, 1943. This measure will be acted upon by the Congressmen who make up the House Representatives within the very near future.

It is alleged that this bill was acted upon quickly following the stoppage of work in the coal mines of the nation. That means that while members of the American Federation of Labor had nothing whatever to do and were in no way responsible for the interruption of mining operations, they are now to be made the victims of anti-labor legislation which grew out of the coal situation.

The officers and members of the American Federation of Labor have carried out the no-strike pledge made to the President of the United States immediately following the attack of the Japanese at Pearl Harbor. We are willing to continue this policy but we protest against the enactment of anti-labor legislation such as Senate Bill 796. This bill is highly objectionable.

First, it is wrong in principle because any bill which deprives workers of the right to strike imposes upon labor a condition of involuntary servitude.

Section, Section 4 of this Bill makes it a crime punishable by a fine or a year's imprisonment, or both, for any person to induce any interruption of production in a plant taken over by the Government.

Third, Section 2A of Section 4 makes it a crime for any person to aid any interruption of work by giving direction or guidance or providing funds. Under this section, an international union might subject itself to severe punishment if it maintained ordinary correspondence with an affiliated local that might be involved in a work interruption at a Government operated plant.

Fourth, Section 6 stipulates that all decisions of the War Labor Board are subject to review by the Courts.

These are outstanding objections. The Bill as a whole is thoroughly anti-labor. We will do all that lies within our power to bring about its defeat.

Please respond to this urgent appeal for help. The more messages you send to Members of Congress, the more you will help. Communicate with your Congressmen individually and collectively. Let them know you are aroused, that your opposition to this anti-labor legislation is deep-seated. Act quickly and definitely. Wire and write your Congressmen as herein requested without a moment's unnecessary delay.

Fraternally yours,
W. GREEN,
President, American Federation of Labor.

LABOR CAN COMMAND THE FUTURE—ONLY IF WILLING TO UNITE TO ACCOMPLISH END

There is a danger that organized labor may be lulled to sleep by those who, possibly inspired by its more recent progress and the latent ability of its leaders to meet current problems, tell us that the "future belongs to labor." Cheering and encouraging words those; words that might well challenge the workers of the "free nations" to lay aside every prejudice and unite in the common effort not alone to win the war but to insure their position in the peace that will follow. There is no need for we workers in the United States to delude ourselves into believing that we can save the day by repeating tales about our growing strength, and promises of a unity in labor's ranks that is, to say the least, visionary. To have unity the workers must be working together for a common cause and if that exists with us—or has any likelihood of existing at any nearby date, Hitler is an angel of peace. But—admitting that weakness—as workers we can still demonstrate our desire for unity by not widening the breach that already exists. There is no profit in "calling names," nor can indulgence in this rather childish pastime promote harmony. It is true that we differ with each other on type of organization, on economic tactics but even that condition might eventually solve itself in the white heat of the

Lawyers' Union Is Closed Shop With Check-Off

From an unexpected source, the Dallas News, of Dallas, Texas, we came across an item by Attorney George Clifton Edwards, who, for an attorney, gives a most enlightening and reasonable defense of the so-called "closed shop." This is what Mr. Edwards has to say:

"There is an enormous amount of talk just now about the closed union shop and much of it seems both prejudice and pretense. I should like, therefore, to make a couple of remarks in the interest of reason and fair play.

"As a member of, and subject to, the regulations of the tightest closed shop in Texas, and one of the tightest in the world, I feel that many of the people denouncing the closed shop, are speaking from anger and not information. This very tight closed shop is the Texas Legal Profession.

"All of the lawyers belong to this Lawyers' Union, a strictly closed shop. Our dues check-off system is quite as effective as that operated in any coal mine. The penalty of nonpayment of dues is exclusion from the right to use one's legal skill acquired at a cost far in excess of any union's initiation fee.

"Our lawyers' closed shop is 100 per cent, too. There are no bootlegging open shops in the legal industry in Texas. Even the captive law offices—which, like captive coal mines belong to the trusts—are 100 per cent closed shops. There is a good deal about our Texas legal closed shops that I do not care for. The benefit that lawyers receive for this enforced dues is sometimes questionable, but we get along.

"The truth is that the closed shop is an eminently reasonable and workable agreement. That it is workable is shown by the countless instances of successful operation. That it is reasonable can be seen by any person who will look at it without prejudices. The unions have brought enormous change to the worker and the public. These things cost money. This money is raised by the workers themselves out of their scanty wages. Why should not all workers in an industry who get this benefit of union hours, wages, and conditions, help pay for these benefits?"

—Dallas Craftsman.

BOUNCING DISHES FOR TOMORROW'S TABLES

Dishes American workers will be buying for their postwar homes will probably be plastic like the new non-breakable tableware the Navy gives its sailors and flyers.

Savings of millions of pounds in critical materials as well as thousands of valuable man-hours and machine-hours have been effected by the Navy Department through the conversion to war work of smaller plants in the field of plastics.

Plastic dishes are one of the developments of the steadily increasing use of plastics in the manufacture of scores of items purchased and used by the Navy. Strictly Navy specifications today, they are not yet available for civilians.

For a long time, the dish question bothered the Navy and made a big dent in the Navy pocketbook. Firing of guns, just like storms, made smaller vessels lurch and took a heavy toll of the tableware.

The tableware troubles of the Navy flyers was different. Their former dishes, of paper, took up too much space and added too much weight.

The bounceable plastic dishes solved both problems, and added some unique features which will appeal to ocean travelers of the future.

Thus, Navy put a non-slip and non-drip feature into the coffee service. A depression in the saucer into which the coffee cup is nested, "locks" the cup so it remains secure and saves precious coffee even when tipped to as much as a 30 degree angle.

To increase the chow capacity, the streamlined dinner plates have a narrow flange, and as a safeguard against spilling (which someday will help harassed parents of toddlers) soup plates have an extra wide edge.

The plastic dishes weigh 80 per cent less than crockery, and save as much as 75 per cent of storage space.

The fact that the dishes bounce may change the pattern of Hollywood comedies as well. No more crockery will be broken on heads of movie comics.

The new dishes, adds Navy, have greater resistance to boiling water and staining than any other plastics. They are ultra-sanitary, too. Because they do not crack, there are no crevices or crannies where bacteria might breed, safeguarding the health of users.

Sturdy mess trays, drinking mugs and deep soup bowls of the new plastic are provided the enlisted men, Navy added.—The Journeyman Barber.

If you have a grownup's coat that is out of style or worn around the cuffs, and you are sure it can't be renovated for continued use, you can probably remake it for your small son or daughter. Conservation of everything possible is a war necessity.

THE SOLDIER'S ANSWER

(Reprinted from the Congressional Record)

I Tell My Troubles To A Soldier

(By Capt. A. A. Roe)

I'm a good loyal citizen of the U. S. A.
I buy bonds and stamps on each pay day,
I pay my taxes as they become due;
I think after all that, I should be through.

I don't like the way this war is run
I'm denied all my pleasure and all my fun,
I'm sick of rationing and regimentation;
I'm denied my right to an explanation.

I don't know what we're all coming to,
I don't think those in charge know what to do,
I want to hold on to my "Bill of Rights,"
I tell you, Jim, I'm sick of this fight.

Thus I wrote to a soldier friend of mine.
He was somewhere, away out on a firing line,
The other day he wrote me in reply,
Ever since then I've been wanting to cry.

The Soldier Answered

So you're sick of the way the country's run,
And you're sick of the way the rationing is done,
And your sick of standing around in line,
Your're sick, you say—well, that's just fine.

So am I sick of the sun and the heat,
And I'm sick of the feel of my aching feet,
I'm sick of the mud and the jungle flies,
I'm sick of the stench when the night mists rise.

And I'm sick of the siren's wailing shriek,
I'm sick of the groans of the wounded and weak.
I'm sick of the sound of the bomber's dive,
And I'm sick of seeing the dead alive.

I'm sick of the roar, the noise and the din
And I'm sick of the taste of food from a tin;
I'm sick of the slaughter, I'm sick to my soul,
And I'm sick of playing a killer's role.

I'm sick of all this blood, death, and hell,
And I'm even sick of myself as well;
But I'm even sicker of the tyrant's rule
In conquered lands where the wild beast drool.

And I'm cured damn quick as I think of the day
When all this hell will be out of the way;
Then none of this mess will have been in vain
And the lights of the world will go on again.

Then freedom will ring from shore to shore
And the kids will laugh in the streets once more;
And the Axis' flags will be dipped and furled
And God will look down on a peaceful world.

(The original thought, The Soldier Answered, was taken from "The Soldier Speaks," by Maude Harget. It is here changed to fit in with Captain Roe's story.)

WAR ON TWO FRONTS

By Colonel A. Robert Ginsburgh

Chief, Industrial Services Division War Department,
Bureau of Public Relations

America is at war on two fronts with one purpose.

Our Army is fighting from the jungles of New Guinea to the glaciers of Greenland and our workers are producing weapons from the copper mines of Arizona to the tank factories of Detroit. But these myriad places merge into two interdependent fronts: the one that builds our arms and the one that uses them. They are both in the theater of war.

Battles from France to Bataan have taught us that no matter how valiant and how willing an Army may be, it is doomed to defeat unless it has more and better weapons than the enemy. The soldiers of production and the soldiers of the Army must close ranks together and present a resolute, united front to crush the enemy.

A factory shut down because there are not enough parts coming through from a supplier is as bad a defeat as a base lost because we don't have enough ammunition. If a steel mill shuts down today a base may well be lost tomorrow.

A plant that breaks speed records building planes is as important a victory as the bombing of an enemy airplane factory. Both add up to the same thing: more weapons for America than the Axis.

We have widened and strengthened both our fronts—the fighting front and the production front. We entered this war with our combat planes numbering few over 2,500. Today we turn out that many fighters and bombers every two weeks. On December 7, 1941, our mighty M-4 tanks were but blue-prints. Today we have seen those General Shermans sweep Rommel's Afrika Korps to defeat and destruction. In the year before the attack on Pearl Harbor we built only about one million tons of new shipping. Today we are launching far more than one million tons of new shipping capacity every month. We are making enough bombs to drop 15,000 a night on the enemy and we are building enough small arms ammunition to fire 83 shots at each Axis soldier every month. We have fashioned new weapons, from the Thunderbolt plane to the Tank Busting Bazooka, and factories throughout the breadth and length of America are building more powerful new arms to destroy the Axis.

We have marched far down the road to victory and we have accomplished much since the treacherous Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. But we cannot sit back now. The time for self-congratulation is still far off. We can look back upon our past successes only to draw greater strength from them. They should serve us but as a symbol of the fortitude and the power we have within us. We must redouble our efforts and strengthen ourselves for the bloody and bitter battles ahead as we drive down the road to victory together, one people, under one flag.

THE BEST ANSWER LABOR CAN GIVE RICKENBACKER, KALTENBORN, PEGLER AND OTHER ANTI-LABORITES IS TO EXTEND UNIONS

"Name calling," while it may serve as a sort of revenge of the perpetrator of an injustice is altogether unsatisfactory as an answer to the attacks Rickenbacker, Kaltenborn, Pegler, et al., have been launching on organized labor and its objectives. As bitter and unfair as these have been, they are but the continuation with no added venom, of efforts that the Citizens Alliances, of 40 years back, sponsored to halt the onward progress of the union movement. One might reflect, philosophically, that these have been so successful that starting with 1932 and continuing through 1934, 1936, and, with less success as we permitted our efforts to lag, in 1938 and 1940, in cooperation with other liberals, in electing a liberal President, a majority of each Congress. In like manner we elected liberal state legislatures and governors, inspired the enactment of a labor code that is without parallel in the history of the Nation. While we must be unrelenting in our efforts to abort effort to either enact harmful laws, or repeal our present constructive legislation, our best defense is a continued campaign to organize, educate and federate the wage earners of the United States. Despite their garrulous lies and misstatements of fact, our labor movement grows, there is a distinct expansion in collective bargaining and in the closed union shop agreements that constitute the main line of defense for modern labor unions. In our own International Union, wherever our locals may be situated, under the direction of our General President and the General Executive Board, our members are being urged to consolidate their improved positions by more intensive organizing efforts. Efforts must be continued to organize every man and woman in every activity within the industries over which we exercise jurisdiction. Once they are initiated, extra efforts must be put forth to encourage the "novices" to take an active part while they study the background and objectives of our organization so they may advance themselves to leadership. By doing this we decrease the effectiveness of blasts of the industrial Hessians—who sell their services to the highest bidder, and eventually remove them from their present vantage points. Organize, Educate and Federate.

A single conversation across the table with a wise man is worth a month's study of books.—Chinese proverb.

Exterior of Clothing Store Improved and Modernized With Stucco Surface

NEW STUCCO EXTERIOR IMPROVES APPEARANCE OF BUILDING

UPPER LEFT—Channel irons secured about painted stone post on third story of building preparatory to application of metal lath.

UPPER RIGHT—Tying metal lath to the channel irons in preparation for the new stucco exterior of the building.

Although WPB regulations restrict the extent of both new construction and remodeling or repair work that may be undertaken during the war, maintenance of existing structures is specifically approved. Under the heading of maintenance, the Maurice L. Rothschild Company is improving the exterior of a portion of their building on Nicollet Avenue between Third and Fourth Streets, Minneapolis.

This section of the clothing store is housed in the original structure, a building with an exterior of solid stone. During the years, the appearance of the building has been maintained with annual coats of white paint over the stone surface. This year, however, workmen discovered the painted surface so badly cracked and checked that further painting was considered impractical.

The owner discovered that the appearance of the building could be improved and modernized at the same time that the necessary maintenance work was undertaken by refinishing with a surface of stucco applied over metal lath. Channel irons were secured to the old stone pillars and to the face of the building and metal lath fitted. Stucco was applied on the metal lath.

By furring out, the entire design of the structure is changed and modernized. The work has the further advantage of fireproof construction. The contract for iron work and metal lathing was held by Walter G. Nelson and the contract for stucco, by Edwin Johnson. Safway Steel Scaffolds were used on the job.

The work, which was undertaken with the approval of the War Production Board, utilized a minimum amount of critical materials. The type of work lent itself readily to economical construction, yet the final result is not a temporary "front," but rather one which will serve for many years after the war is won. Where the appearance of the building was somewhat decrepit and outmoded, after remodeling the structure is as modern in appearance as many of the stores built only a few years ago.

Owners and tenants of many other types of buildings where maintenance is becoming increasingly difficult, may find a new stucco front similar to that used on the Rothschild store building the answer to their problems.

THE FELLOW WHO COULDN'T GO

By Bernard Bennett

There's many a poem that's been written,
There's many a sonnet sung,
Of the soldiers, sailor and fighting marine
And the battles they have won.

But it's very seldom you ever hear
Of the fellow who couldn't go
Because of the work he was doing
Or a crippled leg that meant "no."

He's as much a part of our Army
As the boy that fires the gun,
He answers the cry of battle
With the work that must be done.

He'll never win any medals,
For valor or brave deeds done.
But when the supplies are needed,
You can count on him as the one.

A wrench is his weapon of freedom,
His torch but a welder's arc,
He's in there fighting each minute,
He knows that he's doing his part.

A plow takes the place of a rumbling tank,
The hoe in his hand is his sword,
The cry of a conquering hero
Is a silent prayer to God.

This is the way he serves you
And after the battle is won,
You'll never hear of the work he did,
No song about him will be sung.

Bands will be played and flags will fly,
And honors will go to the rest.
But the fellow who had to stay behind,
Knows that he too, gave his very best.

He knows that he too, won the battle,
He too, gave the battle cry,
For without him no bands would be playing,
Without him no flag could fly.

Keep your medals of gold and silver
He asks for neither of these,
His reward is the love for his country
And a flag that is flying free.

They called, and like a soldier he answered,
Not once did he fail or say, "No."
But never a sonnet or song will be sung,
Of the fellow who couldn't go.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S ENCOURAGING REPORT ON WAR PRODUCTION DOOMS ANTI-LABOR BILLS

Cheered by President Roosevelt's encouraging message to Congress on the state of the nation, A. F. of L. leaders served immediate notice they would support to the fullest extent his newly proposed social security program.

This program, designed to abolish the fear of want, occupies a top spot on the A. F. of L.'s own list of legislative objectives for 1943.

The President's report on war production also served as an inspiration to the representatives of labor who have worked with might and main to increase the output of war materials and thus speed victory.

Labor leaders were of the opinion that since production results are so gratifying, the Administration will oppose any attempt in Congress to enact anti-labor legislation which might threaten continued progress of the war effort on the industrial front.

The President divided his report to Congress into three parts. First he reviewed the progress of the war to date and found that within the short space of a year this country, with the aid of her Allies, has succeeded in turning the tide of battle and putting the Axis Powers on the defensive.

Looking ahead to the future, the President declined to predict when total victory will come, but he declared that this year "will give to the United Nations a very substantial advance along the roads that lead to Berlin and Tokio and Rome."

The President emphasized that "our forward progress in this war has depended upon our progress on the production front."

He then gave the highlights of production achievements, including:

- 1—Construction of 48,000 military planes.
- 2—Production of 56,000 combat vehicles, including tanks and self-propelled artillery.
- 3—670,000 machine guns and 21,000 anti-tank guns.
- 4—Ten and a quarter billion rounds of small arms ammunition and 181 million rounds of artillery ammunition.

By some oversight the President omitted mention of ship production, which he corrected the next day. He announced that the nation's shipyards broke every world record for merchant ship construction in 1942, turning out 8,090,800 deadweight tons, which exceeded the goal set by the Government a year ago.

Because these production achievements could not have been possible without the full and active co-operation of organized labor and because even greater co-operation will have to be exerted this year to fulfill the doubled production quotas for 1943. Congress is unlikely to enact anti-labor legislation, in the opinion of informed observers. They feel that as long as the production picture remains good, Congress will hesitate about changing the focus.

ATTENTION SECRETARIES AND MEMBERS

According to the new U. S. postal regulations dividing a number of cities into postal delivery districts, all communications and parcel post packages mailed to headquarters either for the General President, the General Secretary-Treasurer or The Lather should be addressed as follows:

2605 Detroit Ave.,
Cleveland 13, Ohio.

Secretaries whose addresses have been similarly changed are requested to supply this information at once so that it can be incorporated into the data published in the List of Local Meeting Places and Secretaries. In view of these changes, always consult this list when writing to the secretaries of other locals.

ROAD TO VICTORY!

By Stuart Cloete

Why should anyone buy War Bonds? There is no compulsion to buy them. There is no winter relief . . . no SS man standing outside the door saying, "Buy, or else." Nothing is at stake but the future of the country . . . perhaps of the World.

What then is a stamp or bond but a vote of confidence in ourselves? In our capacity to drive on, to break all opposition and then to reconstruct upon a new and better design, a world that will be different. A world of surplus instead of one of scarcity. But a bond is more than this. It is an investment. It is something of a miracle that freedom can be bought and that in addition it should pay a dividend of almost 3 per cent. And this is not all, bonds stand between us and the spiral of inflation which could engulf us more easily than any enemy outside our gates. For the first time in many years, demand backed by money exceeds supply, which normally equals demand, and even stimulates it by advertising and credit purchase plans. Are we to save money against the time when we may need it, or bid for the few consumer goods that are left against ourselves?

There is one more reason for buying bonds. The President, who is also the commander in chief, has asked us to do so.

Meanwhile . . . while we hesitate . . . while we complain of nominal hardship . . . men die . . . not only fighting men, but women and small children also. They die for a good cause. A good reason . . . for freedom. But we who are not dying must pay in time and money, or we shall find ourselves dishonored. The time is short. It passes . . . and having passed, is forever lost.

Men in France, in Poland, in Norway . . . men all over Europe are regretting time . . . are saying: "If only we had known."

But we do know. The writing is on the wall. Corregidor, Pearl Harbor, Singapore, Dunkirk, are not dreams. They are evil things that have happened, and now this evil approaches us. It lies in wait off our coasts.

Time is money . . . but money cannot buy time, nor bring dead men to life, nor purchase freedom once it is lost.

That is why we must buy bonds now . . . today, and tomorrow, and the day after. Buy bonds until this thing is destroyed utterly . . . because time is not subject to manipulation . . . because the past is dead and the future mortgaged . . . because the world cannot live half free and half slave. Nor we, the free, allow the mortgage upon our freedom to be foreclosed. Failing now, we fail forever. Never before could so much be bought for so little. Never so much lost for lack of that little.—U. S. Treasury Department.

The plans, in true German deceit, are unquestionably being worked out now.

There is a remote possibility, of course, that the Germans may actually succeed in putting it over on the democracies again. But if Churchill, Roosevelt, Stalin and Chiang Kai-Shek are on hand to write the peace terms, the odds are all against it.

battles we are going to face on the economic field. The nation-wide assault on our organizations by anti-labor forces, working through either their own or "controlled" legislators, with their success in important instances, constitutes a promise of what is to follow unless organized labor takes immediate steps for its protection. The fact that organized labor of the nation led the grand parade that freed the Nation from the static policies of a party tied to reactionary conservatism in 1932 and again in 1936 and, although with deleted followers, in 1940, is ample evidence that we can do the job again, if we center our efforts on it in 1944. Personally we are not alarmed by talk of a Fourth Term for President Roosevelt—organized labor has definitely approved of the re-election of satisfactory officials and the workers would welcome the opportunity of again voting for the man who has stood, many times almost alone, for justice to the men and women of labor. So long as President Roosevelt stands so valiantly for the common people—it would be extremely foolish for us to oppose his renomination and re-election. At present he seems the one man on whom labor can center its approval who has any opportunity for election.

THE TIME IS NOW

It is time to stop postwar public works planning and start designing. Such a statement may be an oversimplification of the problem facing cities, counties, states and the federal government, but it is not, for that reason, untrue. In fact, simplification is what is needed, if the construction industry's part in postwar rehabilitation is not to go by default. Already there is evidence of the insidious tendency to regard planning as an end in itself, and to make the plans so grandiose and complicated that debate instead of action is the only result. The latest example is the National Resources Planning Board report that the President transmitted to Congress recently. The controversies that it is sure to engender may be entertaining and interesting, but they will only muddy the already still waters without making them flow.

It may be said for the NRPB, however, that it gives in this report its first public recognition of the fact that public works construction is not the sole activity available to keep our economy on an even keel. In other words, that there is a limit to the number of persons who can be efficiently and effectively employed in governmental construction. Now, if it could be more generally recognized that the function of public works is to give us facilities that will raise our standard of living and not just to give employment, a sound basis for public works planning would be established.

It is this basis that should motivate government agencies now. If a city needs a sewage disposal plant or a new water supply, it should start directly on making construction possible. If better state highways are needed, design them. If flood control at certain points or irrigation in certain areas can be justified, get plans and specifications ready, buy land and be ready to start construction when men, materials and money become available. In brief, start with physical needs, not with vague amounts of problematical unemployment. Such an approach would greatly simplify the postwar planning problem, it would be in line with the best of social objectives, and would automatically take care of as much employment as this particular governmental function can handle efficiently.

At present the principal obstacles to immediate designing of public works are psychological and political. Mostly they are based on uncertainty as to whether Congress is going to provide funds. For this reason, Congress itself should divorce the public-works question from the broader one of postwar planning, and pass legislation or appropriate funds that would permit federal departments to design work already authorized, and that would provide cities and other local governments with loans for designing work if they need them. State legislatures should follow suit in their own jurisdiction. And, finally, the state and municipalities themselves could occasionally forget federal aid, and use some of their own funds to translate planning talk into designing activity. New York City and New York State have both embraced this idea of doing something for themselves, to their great credit and advantage. Also, some states have taken advantage of 50 percent federal grants on highway design work, but, by and large the current public works planning philosophy is one of watchful waiting.

So far the delay has not been serious, and it probably was unavoidable while we were getting a war machine going. But it has always been foreseen that when war facilities were built and production was rolling there would come a time when postwar planning would have to be taken up in earnest. That time has come, but there is danger that planning talk and not planning action is what too many have in mind.

FACTORY HYGIENE REFORM URGED

Improvement in hygienic and working conditions can do much to reduce absenteeism of workers, said a report made public by Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, regional director of the War Manpower Commission.

Changes in laundry and other facilities to meet the needs of workers will also help to lower absenteeism, said the report, which warned against excessive hours as increasing absence from the job. Six out of every 100 workers in war plants are absent daily, the report found.

The report was based on a study by technicians attached to the commission's regional office and covered 8 large plants with 40,000 men and women on jobs, Mrs. Rosenberg said, would require "many changes in habits, methods and routines, but they are necessary and should be made to speed the war effort."

WIT AND HUMOR

Monotonous

A male nurse in a mental hospital noticed a patient with his ear close to the wall, listening intently. The patient held up a finger as a warning for him to be very quiet; then beckoned him over and said: "You listen here."

The nurse put his ear to the wall and listened for some time, then turned to the patient and said: "I can't hear anything."

"No," said the patient, "and it's been like that all day."—Railway Clerk.

Pat Calls a Halt

An Irishman entered a barber shop for a shave. After he was seated and the lather applied, the barber was called to the adjoining room, where he was detained.

The barber had in the shop a pet monkey which caused amusement by imitating its master. As soon as the barber had quitted the room the monkey seized the shaving brush, dipped it in the lather and proceeded to apply it to the Irishman's face.

When the operation was finished to the monkey's satisfaction, the little animal picked up a razor, and, after stropping it, turned to Pat to shave him.

"Stop that!" cried Pat, firmly, sitting erect. "Ye can tuck the towel in me neck, and put the sap on me face, but, begorrah, yer father's got to shave me!"

NEAR THING

A soldier whose main trouble was extreme talkativeness, was on escort duty with a corporal taking an important prisoner to headquarters.

Before starting, he had been told that on no account was he to speak; a bet of a package of cigarettes had been made that he couldn't remain silent until reaching headquarters.

They went in single file, the soldier quite mute.

On arriving at headquarters, the corporal, without looking around, said: "Well, Tommy, you've won the bet."

"Yes," replied Tommy, "but you nearly had me when the prisoner escaped."

Not In Society

Lumberjack—What's them things you're unpackin' there?

Merchant (holding up a pair)—They're pajamas.

Lumberjack—What's pajamas fer?

Merchant—Night clothes. Want to buy a pair?

Lumberjack—Heck, no. I'm no social rounder. When night comes, I go to bed.

BEHIND SCHEDULE

Little Freddie's mother was in the hospital, and he was paying a visit to see his new brother. He wandered into an adjoining room which was occupied by a woman with a broken leg.

"Hello," he said. "How long have you been here?" "Oh, about a month."

"Let me see your baby," he then asked.

"Why, I haven't a baby," the woman replied.

"Gee, you're slow," said Freddie. "My mamma's been here just two days and she's got one."

CUT IT OUT

Mrs. Jones could find only two aisle seats—one behind the other. Wishing to sit with her sister, she cautiously surveyed the man in the next seat. Finally she leaned over and whispered, "I beg your pardon, sir, are you alone?"

Without turning his head, but shielding his mouth with his hand, he muttered: "Cut it out, sister, cut it out. The wife's with me."

Place Finally Located

The deceased furnace-installer knocked at the gates of hell and demanded admittance.

"What do you want here?" asked Satan.

"I want to collect from several of my customers who died before I did," was his response.

"How do you know that they're here?" asked Satan.

"Well, they told me to come here every time I tried to collect."

Like It Or Lump It

A stiff old English nobleman with a top-hat was toddling down a London street when he was stopped by a tipsy coster, who queried:

"What's in that Package under your right arm?"

"That's lump sugar for my coffee."

"What's in that package under your left arm?"

"That's lump sugar for my tea."

The coster smashed his stick down on the top-hat, saying: "There's a lump for your coco."

The old man glared at his assailant and said:

"I say, my man, that was a beastly mistake, you know. I don't drink coco."

Taken For Granted

A WAAC recruit saluted her superior officer. "Where do we eat?" she asked.

"You will mess with the men," she was told.

"I know that, Lieutenant. But where do we eat?"

Mr. Terry Ford, Secretary-Treasurer
International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers
Lathers' Building Cleveland, Ohio

Dear Sir and Brother:

During the latter part of the year 1942, the Union Label Trades Department arranged with the Brown and Williamson Tobacco Corporation of Louisville, Kentucky, manufacturers of Union Label cigarettes, for the sale of Union Label Raleigh cigarettes to our unions for shipment to our boys in all branches of the fighting forces overseas.

The plan is a very simple one; the unions desiring to make a contribution forward their check direct to the company in Louisville. The firm immediately acknowledges receipt of the check and ships the cigarettes to the port of embarkation which forms the outlet to the country where the cigarettes are to be distributed free. For example, if a union directs that their contribution be used for cigarettes for the boys in Australia, the order would clear through the San Francisco Port of Embarkation. If the order is consigned to North Africa, the order would clear through the Port of Embarkation in New York City. In each instance a special service officer of the United States Army receives the cigarettes and directs their shipment. When the cigarettes reach their destination, special officers of our armed forces accept them and supervise their free distribution. There is no additional overhead expense for the distribution of the cigarettes among the members of the fighting forces.

For every order of 5,000 packs of Union Label Raleigh cigarettes, the corporation donates an additional case of 500 packs free, which brings the net cost of the Union Label cigarettes to  $4\frac{1}{2}c$  a package. The cigarettes are packed with a special sticker on each package of 20 cigarettes, bearing the name and address of the donating organization. A message of greeting to be selected by the union is enclosed with each carton. Two times each week four unions are selected for reference on a world-wide radio hookup: one night on the Red Skelton program and the following night on the Tommy Dorsey program.

Within the last thirty days the company and the Union Label Trades Department have received letters from all parts of the world from the boys in the service acknowledging receipt of these Union Label Raleigh cigarettes. A cablegram was received recently from General MacArthur's headquarters acknowledging receipt of a shipment of cigarettes and advising that they had been distributed first to the boys in the hospitals and then to the boys in combat service.

This plan was originally conceived to offset anti-union propaganda among the armed forces. Certainly when the boys receive a gift of Union Label cigarettes in some foreign country it will have a greater moral effect upon them than to read a slashing denunciation of organized labor in a daily newspaper. From personal contact with the men in the armed forces we have found that they place cigarettes above anything else that we could send them.

I felt that you would be interested to know that local unions affiliated to the International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers, up to March 31, have purchased 50,000 cigarettes.

We propose to continue this solicitation for Union Label Raleigh cigarettes for overseas distribution for the duration of the war. This plan became effective at a most opportune time. The War Department ruled that individual packages could not be forwarded to individual members of our fighting forces without the approval of the commanding officer at the front. This order prevents the shipment of an individual carton of cigarettes. The order does not affect the plan outlined above.

I thank you and your associates for having made it possible for us to receive such a liberal contribution for this worthy undertaking. Your continued cooperation will be appreciated. I am certain, by the men in the armed services.

With kind personal regards and best wishes, I remain

Fraternally yours,

I. M. ORNBURN,

Secretary-Treasurer

Ed. Note: We earnestly request all our local unions and members to remember our boys in the armed forces by sending some cigarettes to them and it will show that we at home have not forgotten them, and I know that the boys overseas will appreciate any gifts of this nature.

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

By Lloyd M. Cosgrave from "The World At War"
(Workers Education Bureau of America)

*O say, can you see, by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming—
Whose broad stripes and bright stars, thru the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming?
And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof, thru the night, that our flag was still there,
O say, does that Star-Spangled Banner yet wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?*

What is the secret of "The Star-Spangled Banner"? In very many respects its popularity runs counter to established rules of song popularity.

(1) It was a "big hit" from the day it was written. "Big hits" do not, as a rule, last long, but "The Star-Spangled Banner" was written 128 years ago and its position today is more firmly established than ever.

(2) It contains musical tones which, in some cases, are so high that few voices can reach them. Hence, not many persons can sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" with utter precision.

(3) There is a host of other patriotic songs, such as "America", "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean", "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "America the Beautiful". None of these has proven a serious rival to "The Star-Spangled Banner" for the position of National Anthem, however. We sing them with the fervor they deserve, but it is "The Star-Spangled Banner" which begins and ends programs and to which we all rise.

(4) The melody of "The Star-Spangled Banner" was by no means intended by its composer to be that of a National Anthem. It was composed about the beginning of last century by John Stafford Smith, a popular song writer, to serve as the melody of a rollicking song entitled "Anacreon in Heaven". In spite of the reference to "heaven", the song was anything but religious.

(5) The words of "The Star-Spangled Banner" are not from the pen of a great writer. Francis Scott Key, the author, "dabbled in verse" for his own amusement, as do tens of thousands of other Americans, but he produced no other poem that has been remembered. He was a lawyer by profession and the highest rank he attained was that of District Attorney of the District of Columbia. At that time, the District housed only a few thousand persons and was composed chiefly of unhealthy marsh-land.

(6) "The Star-Spangled Banner" was not carefully written. It was scribbled in pencil by Francis Scott Key in less than an hour on the back of an old envelope. It probably would not have been written at all if Mr. Key had been on land where he could have occupied himself in giving direct aid to military operations. (We were engaged in the second of our two wars with Britain.) The dawn of September 14, 1814, however, found him marooned on or near (accounts differ) a British man-o'-war in Chesapeake Bay. On the previous day, he had been sent to the British fleet by President Madison to arrange an exchange of prisoners. He was detained there overnight because the fleet was moving to attack Fort McHenry, near Baltimore, and it desired secrecy. As the song relates, Mr. Key watched the struggle between the fort and the fleet during most of the night and so long as it went on, he knew the fort had not surrendered. Near morning, the bombardment of the fort ceased and Mr. Key was in an agony of doubt as to whether there had been a surrender. He could vaguely see a flag waving over the fort but could not make out which flag it was. Then, "with the morning's first beam" he saw that it was the Stars and Stripes and his pent-up feelings found expression in words on the back of an old envelope, since no other mode of expression was available. Later in the day, he was allowed to return to the mainland and went to Fort McHenry where he casually showed his "bit of verse" to his friend, Captain J. H. Nicholson. The latter saw that the words could be sung to the tune of the popular song and he had them printed on hand-bills which he distributed. Soon all of Baltimore was singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the song spread like wildfire through all of America. Instead of dying an early death, as most "big hits" do, it was increased in dignity and prestige for more than a century and a quarter and is today the unrivaled National Anthem of the most powerful nation on earth.

No doubt there are many reasons why, in spite of difficulty of rendition and availability of other patriotic songs, "The Star-Spangled Banner" is, by universal consent, our National Anthem. For instance, Mr. Key's words, coming from the heart of a plain American, appeal to the heart of all other plain Americans and the melody, though written for a song that was not lofty, exhibits a quiet, majestic dignity when used with Mr. Key's words. Not all can reach the high tones, of course, but what though few people can climb the loftiest peaks of the Rocky Mountains? All can admire their stately grandeur.

Perhaps the chief reason, though, for the pre-eminence of "The Star-Spangled Banner" is the fact that it is centered about our symbol of national unity and greatness: the Stars and Stripes. Every great nation must have a symbol, for the nation itself is too complex to be grasped by the mind at any one time. Who can, at one and the same time, think of the lakes of Minnesota, the orange groves of Florida, the vast plains of Texas, the humming factories of Pittsburgh, the teeming millions of New York City and the thousand other details that compose America? The Stars and Stripes represent all of them, much as the King represents the details of the British democracy. It is all but inevitable that the National Anthem of Britain should center about the King and that the grand, dignified, awe-inspiring anthem of America should be "The Star-Spangled Banner".

The International Union has bought War Bonds totaling $45,000

To The Officers of National and International Unions State Federation of Labor, City Central Labor Unions and Directly Affiliated Local Unions

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

Labor-Management Committees have been found through agreement in more than 2,000 great war plants established throughout the country. As a result, representatives of management and labor sit down together periodically for the purpose of mobilizing their united strength and of pooling their knowledge, experience, and viewpoints in a common attack upon the problem of production.

Unfortunately in many other plants, very little or no progress has been made in this direction. Management has sometimes mistakenly feared that collaboration of this kind meant either a partial surrender of their managerial authority or a sharing of their prerogatives. On the other hand, in some instances the officers and members of unions have assumed an erroneous attitude regarding the extent of the opportunity which organization of union-management committees creates. In other instances, members of our unions have feared that such action meant the old efficiency speed-up system, clothed in a new patriotic dress, or possible interference with present collective bargaining arrangements. We have found from diligent, careful surveys which have been made that these fears of both management and labor are not well founded or justified by actual experience.

The problem is basically one of mutual consideration and understanding. The enlarged production objectives of both management and labor in this war are identical. Management is exerting its supervisory functions in a most commendable way and is exercising a high degree of resourcefulness; but even so, the situation calls for greater and still greater results. Although production for the Spring of 1943 doubled over the Spring of 1942, we actually completed during the first quarter of the year only 19% of the scheduled munitions output for the year. That means that more than four-fifths of the 1943 munitions job is scheduled for and must be completed during the last three-fourths of this year. The schedule for next winter calls for 40% more munitions each month than we are producing now.

Please be assured that we are required now as never before to call upon the practical experience, ingenuity, individual sense of responsibility, patriotism and collective discipline of all workers in our war plants. Labor-Management Committees serve as the instrumentality and present the most promising medium through which we can realize this objective.

These committees are neither revolutionary nor radical. They simply bridge the gap between management and the worker which has been created by the size and complexity of modern industry. In small industries where a limited number of workers are employed, the employer himself may talk directly to his employees, listen to an expression of their ideas, and share their interests as well as their misgivings. For obvious reasons the best substitute for this highly effective relationship in large plants, is the Labor-Management Committee.

Permit me to suggest and to earnestly request your renewed interest in organizing Labor-Management Committees in every war production plant and to urge that the activities of committees already established be constructively increased. I am authorized to advise you that the War Production Drive Headquarters of the War Production Board, Washington, D. C., is at your service to help, assist and counsel with you. Labor is equally represented with management in the administration of this War Production Drive. The officers of the American Federation of Labor have assumed their share of responsibility in the administration of the War Production Drive and in the furtherance of the war effort.

Mr. T. K. Quinn is Director General in charge of the War Production Drive Headquarters. I am assured that he and his organization earnestly solicit your inquiries and questions as well as your cooperation and are prepared to assist and work with you and with Labor-Management Committees in every practical way. I enclose an outline of some of the major subjects which Labor-Management Committees may very properly consider and act upon.

Our Country along with our allies is on the road to victory. All employed in the war material production plants of the country have, as soldiers of production, made a distinct contribution toward the success of our armies in the field. Let us all see to it that the drive continues without interruption until totalitarianism is defeated and freedom, justice and liberty are established throughout the world.

You can help more than you realize in the achievement of this great objective, through the establishment of Labor-Management Committees for cooperating purposes.

Fraternally yours,

W. GREEN, President,
American Federation of Labor

Outline for Labor-Management Committees

- A. War production can be improved by the cooperative efforts of plant Labor-Management Production Committees.
- B. It is vountary.
- C. It does not infringe on management responsibilities.
- D. It is not to be used for collective bargaining or grievances.
- E. Participating should be the leaders of both management and labor. For labor, representation should be designated by collective bargaining agencies where they are recognized. In any case, labor members of the committee should be truly representative of the employees.
- F. In general, it is the function of joint Production Committees to act, within the scope of their responsibility, on any problem the solution of which will improve war production. From such action should flow an expansion of production, an improvement of quality, a conservation of manpower, equipment, and materials, an improvement of morale, and an improvement of labor relations. Each committee selects problems on which to work in accordance with the importance of the particular problems to production and morale in its particular plant. The most important of these, on which plant joint committees are now concentrating, are:

1. Over-all Production Problems

From a frank discussing of available materials, scheduling, and production problems of the plant, the workers' representatives on the joint committee can understand the difficulties and limitations facing management. From such discussions, they can not only make whatever suggestions they are able in the solution of such problems, but can also carry to all employees an understanding of these basic problems. Such a function is particularly important in those plants in which great pressure is being exerted for an expansion of production. On the other hand, it is equally important in those plants in which schedule changes or the uneven flow of materials may force temporary or extended reductions in production.

2. Production Suggestions

The committees are able to stimulate the submission by workers of a great many practical production ideas. This is accomplished through a jointly-administered Suggestion System through which workers are encouraged to submit their ideas and management to promptly adopt those which are practical. The workers are recognized as thus making a contribution to war production by honors given out by the plant joint committee and by the War Production Drive Headquarters in Washington. This recognition, usually supplemented by an appropriate monetary award, greatly stimulates the whole suggestion system.

3. Morale

The basic approach of joint committees to worker morale is through their understanding of the production problems in the plant and their sense of participation in assisting management in meeting them. Workers are patriotic and respond to an opportunity to make their best contribution to war production. This means that the Production Drive is not primarily a ballyhoo Drive. There is, however, an urgent need to impress each worker with the war significance of the job he is doing and to encourage him to cooperate in making that job as effective as possible. An important educational and inspirational job is being done by many joint committees in this field.

4. Conservation

Workers through the joint committees can greatly contribute not only to the improved efficiency of the plant, but also to the conservation of critical materials and equipment. The present program of the War Production Board on tool care and conservation specifies one of the important areas for such action.

5. Health and Safety

Each year in war plants there is an enormous loss of manpower through accidents and sickness. Joint committees are making a real contribution to improvement of plant safety records and reduction of sickness rates.

6. Absenteeism

A very large percentage of the existing joint Production Committees are carrying on successful programs to reduce absenteeism. These programs are geared to meet all of the causes that affect worker absence including sickness and accidents, transportation, housing, rationing and shopping facilities, shift schedules, housekeeping responsibilities, and, in some cases, worker irresponsibility.

7. Manpower

In addition to the anti-absenteeism programs, joint committees can assist management in carry-

To Presidents of National and International Unions and Secretaries of Local Building and Construction Trades Council affiliated with the Building and Construction Trades Department, American Federation of Labor.

Dear Sirs and Brothers:

Enclosed please find copy of Memorandum No. S 100-9-43, dated June 8, 1943, issued by the War Department which sets forth the War Department's policy regarding construction and maintenance work.

This policy, as published, has the unanimous approval of the Executive Council of the Building and Construction Trades Department, and we will appreciate the cooperation of National and International Unions and local building and construction trades councils, affiliated with this Department, in the carrying out of the War Department's policy.

Faternally yours,
RICHARD J. GRAY,
Acting President
HERBERT RIVERS
Secretary-Treasurer

WAR DEPARTMENT
Army Service Forces
Office of the Adjutant General
Washington

MEMORANDUM
No. S100-9-43)

June 8, 1943.

WAR DEPARTMENT POLICY REGARDING CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE WORK

1. It is desired to re-emphasize the policy of the Army Service Forces with respect to construction work as performed by and for the several branches of the Army. This policy is that wherever possible all construction work will be performed on a contract basis, and barring that possibility for practical reasons such construction work will be performed on a hired labor basis. Supporting explanation of the application of this policy follows:

- a. As the construction program built up to its peak, contractors developed large organizations and acquired large stocks of equipment. It is desirable to assist now in a gradual reduction of these contractors' organizations.
- b. In the interest of the national economy, sound policy dictates that an effort be made to give work to contractors for execution in accordance with the requirements of the military situation.

2. New Construction—Job construction refers to work of a type generally performed by a construction contractor, which is nonrecurrent and temporary in the sense that it terminates on the completion of a specific project. In general, this includes such work as the construction of new structures or alterations of like nature to existing structures.

- a. All such new work within the meaning of the above definition will be prosecuted under contract whenever possible.
- b. When such work does not adapt itself to contracting procedure for practicable reasons, it will be done by the officer in charge on a hired labor basis.

3. Maintenance work—Maintenance work refers to work which is regular and recurring, and which is continuous in the sense that it is not terminable on the completion of a specific project. This includes such work as repair, adjustment, overhauling, and upkeep of existing structures or installations. The term also includes, as specified in paragraph 911.5, Procurement Regulation No. 9, the movement of machinery and installation of equipment, and alteration work incident thereto, performed as an incident of a supply contract. However, in making the determination required by paragraph 911.6, Procurement Regulation No. 9, as applied to particular machinery movement or installation work, each contracting officer concerned will give careful consideration to the desirable objective sought in the over-all policy statement outlined in paragraph 1 above.

4. Construction or repair in restricted areas—It is recognized that in restricted areas, because of the various factors involved, it is often not feasible to prosecute the work either under contract or on a hired labor basis. In such instances the work may be done by maintenance forces. However, every effort will be made to insure that this practice is not abused.

5. Termination of construction contracts—The completion of specific construction projects, including original installation of equipment, will be made whenever possible under construction contracts.

- a. When this procedure is not practicable, resort will then be made to hired labor.
- b. Completion of specific construction projects by the maintenance forces will be adopted as a last resort, and only when to do otherwise would result in interference or interruption of production, or would demand wasteful retention.

The Roll-Call of Labor's Enemies

(Note to Editors—Please kill the roll-call published in the June 8 issue of the AFLWNS. It was erroneous. This is a “must” correction. The American Federation of Labor apologizes deeply to those members of the House of Representatives whose names were included in the erroneous roll-call despite the fact that they actually voted against adoption of the Connally-Smith Bill. The correct roll-call which should serve as a guide to all AFL organizations is published herewith.)

Washington, D. C.—Below appears the official list taken from the Congressional Record of members of the House of Representatives and the Senate who voted for adoption of the final version of the anti-labor Connally-Smith Bill. The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor has publicly pledged that organized labor will do everything in its power to defeat those who voted for this measure.

Damon Runyon, who writes a syndicated letter for the N. Y. Mirror and other papers, not only refuses to join his colleagues in smearing labor, but in his column last week riddled most of the false accusations against the nation's workers and charged that war workers “are the most abused class in the United States today.”

The shortcomings of a few, he said, have been magnified until they are accepted by most newspaper readers as typical, even though the record proves our workers have produced to a point unsurpassed in the history of the world.

Absenteeism, which Rickenbacker and others have been condemning, Runyon says, has been exaggerated far beyond the truth. “After all,” he says, “service men get furloughs and even from the fighting fronts.”

And high wages? Many men, he says, would be glad to chuck their jobs and join the service.

“The sum total left in the hands of the war worker is often not as great as that which remains to the man in the service.”

YOUNG AMERICA AT WAR

By Homer Brett

Young America in arms is in a heroic mood. Our boys, the average high school boys of yesterday, are terrible in battle. No Plains of Troy, no Pass of Thermopylae nor any other field of arms ever saw greater heroism than American fliers displayed at Midway and in the Coral Sea. Our present needs to make no apology to our past. The sailors of Decatur and Farragut, the stout hearts of the Alamo, the men who died before Marye's Heights at Fredericksburg, who held the bloody Angle at Antietam, who charged with Pickett at Gettysburg, or who died with Custer were no whit braver or more devoted than the American youth of today who drove through storms of shot and shell and swarms of deadly darting Zero fighters to bomb and torpedo the enemy's aircraft carriers.

We have been a great people. We have never left a furrow unfinished when we have put our hands to the plow. Our soldiers, sailors, and marines are worthy of the noblest traditions of our proud history. It is for us to be worthy of them. Let us turn to the duty that lies nearest our hands and do it with all our might. It is for us to give them arms. They will win victory in the war. Let us win victory for after the war in the easier battle against the sneaking, insidious but deadly enemy, inflation. They offer to pay with their lives, "the last full measure of devotion." Let us offer without stint or limit our mere money.

Years ago when "Mugsy" McGraw was running his famous New York Giants baseball team, he had a big Irish outfielder named Kelly. Kelly was a famous slugger, and the idol of the New York fans. They loved to see Kelly come to the plate and swing at that ball. At that time McGraw also had a rookie named Cohen, whom he used as a utility man. Cohen showed great promise as a batter.

It happened once when Kelly was in the midst of a batting slump, hadn't had a hit for a week, that the Giants got two men on base and a hit was badly needed. It was Kelly's turn to bat, but he had been doing so badly that McGraw decided to pull Kelly out and let Cohen bat in his place. So the loud speaker announced to the crowd:

"Cohen, batting for Kelly!"

A big, irate Irishman rose to his feet in the midst of the bleachers, every feature a sign of rightful indignation, and cupping his mouth in his hands, megaphone style, he roared out:

"And Cassidy, lavin' yer damn ball park!"

GOVERNMENT DESTROYS 6 TONS OF BEANS WHILE MINERS WORK IN VICTORY GARDENS

While mine workers struggle to buy enough high-priced rationed food to feed their families, Government agents in McDowell County, W. Va., have burned more than six tons canned green beans over the protests of citizens who declared that the food was not damaged and that there was no reason for it to be destroyed.

As reported by the Welch, W. Va., Daily News, "The cans of food were cribbed into stacks of driftwood gathered along the riverside. Ten gallons of kerosene oil was poured into these piles and fire applied.

"Business men begged the Federal man to make some worthy disposition of this big quantity of food, stating that they had eaten the beans and knew no reason why they should be destroyed, but the destruction was ordered."

An eye-witness reported to the newspaper that many people stood around until the fire had subsided and then took many of the cans home with them so that their families could eat without benefit of ration coupons.

Since there seems to be ample evidence that the food was not tainted, it appears that the destruction of 5,767 cans of good green beans took place under Government order because of some labeling technicality.

That is just another case of "Do as I say, not as I do," for, in the same community, mine workers and their families are working hard in Victory Gardens to provide food for their families and help swell the national food output. The Government has requested them to do this while it carelessly destroys more food than one Victory Garden will produce in a whole season.

United Mine Workers Journal

The member who hesitates to advocate a strike is not always afraid; he may have a sense of responsibility and does not want to urge others to rush into privation and hardships. A strike is a battle on the industrial field. It is industrial warfare. It means struggle and sacrifice; not only will the men taking part have to undergo the hardships of the strike, but their families must also feel the brunt of it. And it also means the end of pay days until the trouble is over. A strike should never be considered until after all other means of adjustment have been resorted to and failed.

A vast majority, 85 to 90 per cent—of all residential fires are of interior origin. One-half inch of interior plastering provides for greater resistance to interior fires than unplastered combustible materials and finishes, even when these are backed up by fireproof exteriors.

GET OFF THE SPOT

By Ruth Taylor

There is no use mincing matters. Labor is on the spot. How it got there, and who is responsible for its present plight is unimportant for the moment. Labor has unquestionably been sniped at by outside interests but it has also had its saboteurs within. We don't any of us deny that. But this is not the time to start pointing out the other fellow's short comings. This is the time to get off the spot!

The Labor problem is not merely a war problem, though a lot of people try to make it that. It is a basic problem which, because it deals with human beings, will never be settled, but will vary with times and education.

In a time of war, however, how Labor conducts itself is public property. Labor, like Caesar's wife, must be above approach at all time—and any labor man who lets down his fellow workers by letting his actions misrepresent their motives and aims is a saboteur of the most dangerous kind—for he is endangering not only the present of the labor movement but is undermining the past and future as well.

The heads of the two great labor organizations have gone on record where they stand on Labor's participation in the war whose significance Labor realized from the start. They have taken a firm stand against strikes. They have actively promoted cooperation in all war effort. They have been unsparing in their efforts and response in the bond drives. There has been no let down in their willingness to do their part. And in this they have but been expressing the wishes of those men and women who make up the organized labor movement of the country.

And yet—Labor is on the spot. Even the sons and brothers of labor men fighting on the world-girt battle lines are questioning. They want to know if the tales they hear are true, if the men they left behind on the production lines are faltering. They want to know if the stories of absenteeism, of strikes, of dissension over trifles are facts.

Let the men of Labor answer them! Let them rise to the defense of the ideals of Organized Labor, not to the defense of individuals—and let them be the first to condemn and disown those who act contrary to the aims of Labor as expressed by the duly elected leaders of Labor.

As you, the men of Labor, talk in your own meetings—and I know what you say, for I've heard you—talk to the public. Don't bother about saving face (leave that to the Japs). You whose whole method of life is dependent upon unity and cohesive action, must show that unity in word and deed. You have determined upon your course and your leaders have expressed it for you. It is not important who was right—it is important to get right. Now cleave straight to line—and get off the spot!

Davy Burns, a Scotchman, owned a farm where the White House and Monument now stand. Washington had considerable difficulty in persuading Burns to sell. He insisted upon a proviso that the site of his own cottage could not be taken and that no lots should be sold for private buildings in its vicinity.

When the White House was provided for in the original design of the city it was known as The Palace. When it was first built it was The President's House. After it was burned by the British during the War of 1812 it was painted white, and in popular parlance was soon called by its now familiar name, although officially it was known as The Executive Mansion until the late Theodore Roosevelt became its occupant. He gave his sanction to the title The White House and this is now its official name.

John Adams was the first President to occupy the White House in 1800.

The building was still in an unfinished state when Jefferson took possession. The principal stairway had not been built, and the East Room and some of the upstairs apartments had not been plastered.

—The Plasterer

—o—

It has been suggested that the government build barracks for workers. Such a suggestion is absurd from any point of view, nor are demountable and temporary houses the sort that make for contented workers. The well-constructed house is not too good for the American worker.

There is enough, yes, an abundance of building material to build millions of houses. Brick, lumber, plastering materials, plumbing, heating materials, electrical materials and every necessary material are awaiting the go-ahead order for houses. So let us go ahead with home construction. Instead of building in the vicinity of war industry plants, build anywhere and provide transportation to and from the plants. Give a man a home, a job and transportation and he will be on the job on time. One thing we are behind on is transportation. We don't need steel tracks nowadays, we have motor buses that need no rails. If we need better roads, a week or so will do wonders towards good concrete roads.

NOTHING WRONG ABOUT THAT

"Now, lady," instructed the young lawyer, "tell the jury just where the prisoner was milking the cow."

The young lady smiled sweetly and replied: "Why, I think it was just a little back of the center, sir."

A house in which our ancestors lived 2000 years before Christ is shown restored to its original condition at a new open-air museum at Lubeck, Germany, where lived the tribes that colonized Britain and gave rise to our Anglo-Saxon culture. It is a New Stone Age farmhouse—a rectangular building with steeply pitched roof of thatch and framework of rough, unsquared timbers. The walls are "wattle and daub"—coarse wickerwork plastered with clay; the windows square and small. Within is a central hearth of stone, with a hole in the roof to let the smoke escape. Shelves on the walls and strings from the beams support cooking and table utensils—well-shaped, decorated pottery vessels of assorted shapes and sizes. A bow and stone-tipped arrows, spear and stone war ax, lean against one of the wooden supporting posts.

There is a Federal law stating that "no person shall make, issue, circulate, or pay out any note, check, memorandum, token, or other obligation for a less sum than one dollar, intended to circulate as money or to be received or used in lieu of lawful money of the United States and every person so offending shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, at the discretion of the court." Many individuals and even the Government make checks for an amount less than one dollar, but they are not intended to circulate but are only intended to pay the amount of the check to the person the check is made payable to. A check is not lawful money and consequently cannot be passed as lawful money. A check is a personal credit instrument used in place of money.

Imagine Yourself Under The Wicked Eyes Of The Nazis

Tragic Dedication

Stefan Heym's own father was seized and held for a time by the Nazi Gestapo; upon his release he returned to his home and committed suicide. That bitter personal tragedy lies behind the author's revealing dedication of his novel:

"Because My Father Was a Hostage."

By Stefan Heym
Author of "Hostages"

Imagine yourself suddenly transplanted into a German factory, right in Germany—anywhere in Germany. Imagine you hear the whistle screaming: 12 Noon. You have twenty minutes for lunch. Pale and grimy, overworked and underfed, men and women push toward the doors of the hall to catch a bit of fresh air in the yard.

Suddenly a commotion—angry voices growling louder: "The doors are locked!" Uniformed SS-Guards, well-fed, well-clothed, well-shod, have taken up posts at the doors—two to each door. Their blooming health is in cruel contrast to the deep-lined pallor of the workers.

What is this . . . A raid? Does the all-powerful Secret State Police suspect that some of the men and women working here are not as enthusiastic about the war as Hitler would like them to be . . . ?

Then the loudspeakers begin to boom.

It is just a collection. The slick voice of the little Doctor Goebbels, riling the people. Once more, the Winter-Help campaign is opened.

The Guards come around with tin cans and lists. You sign up and you pay up. You had better. You're lucky to be working for pay. In the concentration camps, they don't pay at all.

The Winter Help drive is a seasonal squeeze under the guise of charity. The money, of course, is not used for charitable purposes but to swell the Nazi war chest.

Other, more important, deductions are forced from the people throughout the year. For instance, Hitler boasts that he eliminated unemployment in Germany years ago. Yes, there are no unemployed—Hitler converted them into soldiers. Nevertheless, up to this date, six per cent and more of the German workers' and employes' pay is deducted "to help support the unemployed."

Large deductions are made for the Nazi "Arbeitsfreund," a nationwide company union in which the members have no rights. Further deductions come under the heading "Volkswohlfahrt," the Nazi Welfare organization. All these are merely blinds for Hitler's war racket.

The most outrageous government skullduggery, however, is the installment payment plan for the "Volkswagen," the people's car. Several years ago, with great fanfare, a drive was launched to secure for every racially and otherwise pure German workman a people's car, to be built in special factories. The people were ordered to pay, in advance, installments for the promise, that a spic and span people's car would be theirs—at some future date. The factories were built, all right—but no German worker ever saw his government car. Outside of a few samples which were given to Nazi functionaries, the factories have turned out tanks. But the people still pay their installments on the "people's car."

These several deductions are aside from stupendously high income taxes, compared to which ours are peanuts. The Nazi government also exerts pressure to make people put surplus cash into savings banks. This having been achieved, the Nazi government "borrows" the money—that is, confiscates it—from the banks.

Nazis Can't Risk Bonds

All this amounts to a ruthless credit inflation which expresses itself in skyrocketing prices, the lowering of real wages, and a general decay of living standards.

The Nazis have not dared to call for voluntary purchase of War Bonds. There are no German War Bond issues for the people—to ask the people to buy Nazi War Bonds voluntarily would have amounted to a plebiscite on the war, a plebiscite which the Nazis did not dare to face.

In the United States, on the other hand, we are proud to support voluntarily our country and our government in this hard struggle against the Fascist aggressors. We know what is at stake. We ourselves determine directly the percentage of payroll deductions for the purchase of War Bonds; or should we be independent of War Bonds we determine the amount of War Bonds we want to buy outright. And through Congress, we determine to what use this money is to be put.

We believe in our strength and our victory, and we know that the money we invest in our country will be paid back to us with interest.

-Elevator Constructor

DON'T

1. Don't buy gadgets because a selfish voice says a bit of metal more or less won't matter. Remember that your gadget may cheat a boy in battle of a gun. Weigh his need against yours.
2. Don't figure there's time enough later to buy Bonds while now you spend all you get, as fast as it comes in, on bargains.
3. Don't spend for glamor today what you'll need for living tomorrow. A budget padded with extravagance now is the prelude to a skimpy budget in the future.
4. Don't buy from the profiteers, the bootleggers, the "black marketeers." Buying from them wrecks rationing, boosts prices and breaks the law, cheats you and the boys at the front, and helps nobody but Hitler and his henchmen.
5. Don't tell tales about the war. Hitler brags that rumors, "mental confusion, panic" are his weapons to divide and destroy us. False words, like venom, poison the unwary.
6. Don't leave your work for somebody else to do, because it interferes with fun and frolic. Don't figure that next week is time enough to start. Good intentions alone won't win the war.
7. Don't shove the whole job of your child's thrift training on the school teacher. She'll do her share, but what she preaches about war savings will mean more if you put her precepts into practice at home.
8. Don't mope and complain because war work takes the men in your family away from home in the evening. Wives out of step will make men falter at the most vital task. Remember that it's your home America is fighting to preserve.

DO

1. Put every penny you can in War Bonds and Stamps. Bonds and Stamps buy munitions. Munitions are a matter of life-and-death to MacArthur's men in the Pacific.
2. Get after all the wage-earners in your family to sign up wherever they work for Pay Roll or Stamp Savings, and see that they stick to it.
3. Write Bonds in your budget book, and sign up at the bank for Bond deductions from your account. Bonds gather interest, and pay you back handsomely in 10 years. Right now they fight inflation.
4. Play fair on rationing, and pay not a penny more than the Government top price wherever you shop. Ask for your change in War Stamps, paste the Stamps in an album, and when you get enough Stamps, exchange them for a Bond at the Post Office or bank.
5. Talk Bonds and Stamps to your family, friends, neighbors, and associates. Help to canvass your neighborhood for war savings. A word for Bonds is a word against the Axis.
6. Put your shoulder to the wheel for war savings. There's plenty to do now at War Savings Headquarters. Sign up with the Women's Committee, and set up a committee in your own pet organization.
7. Explain war savings to the children. Show them how to save from their allowances to buy Stamps at school. Join the Parent-Teachers Association and help put over the P.-T. A. program for war savings.
8. Urge your men to attend war savings meetings and rallies. Go with them whenever you can, and help them. Fill your own time with war savings work. Men and women together must fight to preserve their homes. The morale of America is in your hands.

ing on other programs that will conserve manpower. Many of the committees are now aiding in the training programs. These committees and others, by their production programs, aid in making the best possible use of available skills, in the adjustments necessary to selective service demands, and in meeting problems of overman-

8. Transportation

Many committees are doing an effective job in connection with car pooling and gas rationing in accordance with OPA regulation. Many have also acted on community transportation problems. Without these programs the manpower problems in many plants would be even more serious.

9. Salvage Campaigns

Both within the plant and in the community, many joint committees have greatly aided in the collection of scrap metals critically needed in the war program.

10. War Activities

Many committees have made outstanding contributions to the various national war campaigns. The Treasury has testified to the great usefulness of the joint committees in their payroll deduction campaigns for War Bonds. Red Cross, blood donor, Community Chest, and other such war programs have been effectively carried on by many plant committees.

FIGURES NEVER LIE; (WE HOPE THEY DON'T)

You can take these figures for what they're worth. They were carried recently in The Cincinnati Enquirer:

Roosevelt:

Divide the total (3886) by two, and you get 1943, the year in which everybody hopes the war will end.

It is a common thing for the poor people of Japan to sell their daughters . . . usually to satisfy the tax collectors for the Son of Heaven. What happens to these girls? Some of them go directly into the government owned houses of prostitution. But many of them are sold or leased to Japan's wealthy factory owners. They are regimented trained, housed and housed in huge jail like dormitories . . . and made to operate modern machines for fourteen hours a day for such a pittance that years are required to earn their freedom.

Well, it's Japan's idea of an improvement on the "American Way." They laugh at the fact that Japan was able to flood our American stores.

Under decrees in effect since 1636, Japs were forbidden to leave the country on penalty of death, and foreigners were as vigorously denied entrance. Sailors shipwrecked on the Japanese coast were imprisoned and tortured. Foreign ships were refused anchorage, no matter how pressing their need.

Vessels of western nations were increasingly plying Asiatic waters, but all overtures for commercial treaties with Japan were rebuffed. At last the United States dispatched Perry with a formidable fleet of warships, to get an agreement opening Japanese ports to American ships and goods. Perry was careful to put the negotiations on a peaceful basis, but he was obviously prepared to use force if necessary. Reluctantly the government of the shogun, head of the Japanese oligarchy of ruling clans, gave in. European countries promptly secured similar treaties.

But the government of the shoguns had been waning in power even before then, and many of the Japanese clan chieftains refused to abide by this knuckling down to the foreign devils. The shogun had exceeded his authority, they contended, in concluding treaties without the sanction of the emperor, Japan's nominal sovereign. They took up a cry of "Honor the emperor and expel the barbarians!" A succession of murders and outrages was perpetrated on foreigners. For these the western powers called the shogun's government to account. It made apologies and reparations, but proved incapable of putting a stop to the outbursts.

In June of 1863, the American merchant steamer Pembroke was fired on by shore batteries as she passed through Shimonoseki. Most United States naval strength was of course engaged in the Civil War at home, but the U. S. S. Wyoming was still stationed at Yokohama. Dispatched to the scene in July, the Wyoming found three Japanese warships waiting for her. The Wyoming blew up one, sank another and disabled a third. Then marines stormed and carried the beaches under heavy fire, losing only five men killed and seven wounded.

The shogun's government, although disclaiming all responsibility, at length paid an indemnity of $12,000. But attacks on foreign shipping at Shimonoseki continued.

The western nations determined to put an end to this once and for all. In September, 1864, a fleet of nine British warships, four Dutch, three French and one American bombarded Shimonoseki. In a three-day battle they completely destroyed the Jap warships, forts and shore batteries.

The Japs Call Them All Kinds Of Names

The Navy calls them PT boats. The Japs call them all kinds of names, none of which are nice.

The Japs have cause for beseeching their diety to shower his curses upon these deadly guerrillas of the sea. It was a PT boat that removed General Douglas MacArthur from the Philippines, snatching him from the grasp of the Japs. PT boats struck hard and often against enemy warships and supply ships in the Philippine campaign, and PT boats are continuing their unrelenting warfare against Japanese naval forces wherever they are found.

These mighty little trouble-makers for the Japs are Patrol Torpedo boats—the smallest combatant vessels in the Navy. Their effectiveness in naval warfare, however, cannot be judged by their size.

FLAGS

The flags of the early American colonies represented many nations, and were also emblematic of many dramatic and stirring events in early United States history. There were not only many national flags, but each colony, each group of settlers had its flag. Many tales are on record associated with flags of Colonial and Revolutionary days. A story is told of a flag carried by a South Carolina regiment under Colonel Moulton. It was a blue flag, with a white crescent in the corner and the word LIBERTY across the bottom. In the course of a battle, the flag fell behind the enemy lines, but was recaptured by Sergeant Jasper. The Colonel recommended promotion and a commission for Jasper, but this advancement was refused by Jasper on the unique plea that he was not fit to associate with officers because he could neither read nor write.

Another interesting flag of this period has been called the rattle-snake flag, and was carried by the early American navy. It was a white flag, with a three-coiled black rattler having 13 rattles. Underneath the serpent are the words, "Don't tread on me." The three coils stood for the three leading colonies—New England, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.
The rattlesnake is not looked upon with favor by the majority of people, but as a symbol of the American navy its more commendable characteristics were intended to be brought out. For example, this reptile has no eyelids, hence its vision is keen, alert, watchful. As a fighter it is a courageous foe, for it gives warning of its approach. Furthermore, it fights to the end—it never gives up.

The oldest flag in the United States so far as is known is now treasured in the Public Library of the little town of Bedford, Mass. It was made in England about 1665, and was for the Middlesex Three County Troop, a military organization of Massachusetts. Later it became the standard of the Bedford Minnute Men. This flag was carried by them during their difficulties with the Indians under King Phillip, and also at Concord on the historic morning of April 19, 1775. It is about two feet square, of red damask, decorated in oil, the design being a mailed arm with saber, and a scroll containing an appropriate motto. Originally it had a silver fringe.

One of the first American flags was the "Grand Union" which was raised by General Washington at Cambridge, Mass., on January 2, 1776. It had alternate red and white stripes with the English crosses of St. Andrew and St. George in the corner.
This was used nearly a year after the Declaration of Independence.

Eating Becomes A Problem

When a head of cabbage that sells for 5 cents in Dallas, Tex., sells for 50 cents in Washington, and spinach that in Boston sells for 38 cents a pound may be had for a nickel, it is not explainable on the ground that Dallas is near a great garden truck area nor on the ground of cost of transportation.

A nickel head of cabbage might be sent by registered, insured, special-delivery mail to Washington for but a fraction of 50 cents, and the addressee would be spared the trouble of shopping around.

These are not extreme examples of rising prices of food, as anyone who has to buy out of a limited purse can testify.

Calling that condition radically wrong is not capricious criticism. Somebody clearly is profiteering. A condition that small fines for violating OPA regulations will not cure. Jail sentences might help.

Eventually it is to be hoped that OPA, or some other governmental agency, will end a condition that is not helping home-front morale any.

The housekeeper is not the only one hit. The millions, particularly war workers, who must eat in restaurants are almost, if not as hard hit, in closing of restaurants, restriction of hours, limited menus, smaller portions and, of course, higher prices.

Shortening of restaurant hours is also hitting the night shift workers. In many industrial communities there are now few restaurants which are open during the odd hours during the night and early morning when night shift workers are in need of food.

However, if annoyance craves consolation, it may be found in reading the Office of War Information summary of conditions in the war-occupied sections of Europe from which Germany has siphoned off most of the food.

The extent of food exactions by Germany varies according to the severity of occupation measures taken against the civilian populations. While the French and Norwegians, for example, must suffer from malnutrition, the Poles, Greeks and Czechs face actual starvation. The Danes, with a slight degree of nominal independence, fare better than the people in most of the occupied territories.

Rationing in Greece virtually does not exist because of the extreme scarcity of foods. Although Red Cross ships carry into Greece 3,300 tons of various foods in addition to 15,000 tons of Canadian wheat every month, the amounts are not enough to support a rationing program, except for bread, which was rationed at the rate of 2 ounces a day per person before the wheat arrived and is now slightly larger.

Surely we would be worse off if by any chance we should lose this war.—The Bricklayers Journal.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

WHEREAS, God Almighty in His infinite wisdom has deemed that surcease come to the earthly endeavors of our Beloved Brother Fred J. Ewers, No. 18636, and

WHEREAS, Brother Ewers during his time of membership in our organization was a true and faithful member of our International Union, and will be greatly missed by our members and his friends, therefore be it

RESOLVED, that our Charter be draped for a period of thirty days, and a copy of this resolution be sent to our International Office to be published in our official journal.

G. C. Wiseman, Secretary,

The Japs Call Them All Kinds of Names

They take on all comers, and ask no quarter. Their targets range from battleships to barges, from planes to submarines.

Devoid of protective armor, these scourges of the Japs depend upon their terrific speed in the water for protection. Offensively, they are the deadliest thing afloat when considered on a pound for pound basis.

These little craft, only 70 feet long and 20 feet wide at the widest point, carry four torpedo tubes, four .50-caliber machine guns, and depth bombs. Their three 1200-horsepower engines send them through the water at the speed of an express train. Theirs is a "hit-and-run" game.

Made of plywood the PT boats zoom over the surface of the water, loose a torpedo into the side of a warship a thousand times its size, and are gone again before the enemy gunners can line their sights. Zig-zagging at terrific speed, hitting them is a matter of luck, not skill.

Their machine guns are operated in pairs and serve not only as defense against strafing planes but make them an offensive weapon against enemy air power. They can dodge a torpedo fired by an enemy submarine and in turn drop a depth charge that spells doom for the U-boat. So great is their speed and maneuver-ability, that they actually can dodge bombs dropped by enemy planes.

They skim over submarine nets to strike the enemy when he least expects it. By reducing speed and using an underwater exhaust, these guerillas of the sea can move through the water with scarcely a sound, strike and be on their way before the surprised enemy can learn the source of the attack.

It was with PT boats that Lieutenant Commander Buckeley and his mates carried on "a war all of their own" against the Japs in the Philippines for four months. PT boats also played a big role in preventing the landing of reinforcements for the hard-pressed Japs on Guadalcanal Island.

Small but with a deadly striking force, Patrol Torpedo boats are playing a big part in the Pacific naval warfare. The Japs know the full truth of this statement. They have been on the "receiving end" of these little powerhouses of destruction a great many times; and there are plenty more of them coming off the production lines of American industry!

WIT AND HUMOR

MORE IMPORTANT

Having extended her visit longer than she meant to, the old English lady was going home in London after dark—and it was dark.

Presently, in spite of all her care, she bumped into a dimly-seen man and they both crashed on the pavement. At once the man was all apologies.

"So sorry," he murmured. "Careless of me. Let me help you up. So sorry."

"Never mind at all that," returned the old lady curtly. "Will you please tell me which way I was facing before I was knocked down?"

MORE COLLECTED

A Professor was crossing a bridge over a river, when suddenly he heard a cry.

"Help! Help! I can't swim."

The professor leaned over the bridge.

"Neither can I, but I don't make so much fuss about it."

JUST CURIOUS

Jones and his wife were on a fishing expedition. At the end of a trying, fishless day, Jones brought things to a climax by falling into the water.

Just as he crawled out, his wife appeared on the scene.

"Did you fall in?" she inquired, in surprise.

"No, no! Just crawled in to see which fish it was that got away from me!"

GOSSIP TRAVELS

Radio Salesman—Madam, you pay a dollar down as the first payment and then you pay no more for three months.

Mrs. Snapper—I'll bet that snoop Mrs. Teller told you all about us!

SOUNDS REASONABLE

Teacher—We learned in our last lesson that heat expands and cold contracts. Now who can give me an example? All right, Sammy.

Sammy—Well, in summer the days are longer and in winter the days are shorter.

ACCOMMODATING

"Well, young man, you wish to speak to me? Out with it—quickly! Do you want to marry my daughter, or borrow money?"

"I don't mind, sir; which would you prefer?"

FIGURE PROBLEMS

When the flood was over and Noah had freed all the animals, he returned to the ark to make sure all had left. He found two snakes in the corner crying. They told him their sorrow: "You told us to go forth and multiply upon the earth, and we are adders."

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

She was a big strong woman, and the burglar she had tackled and captured bore unmistakable signs of punishment.

"It was very plucky of you, madam," said the magistrate, "to have set upon the burglar and captured him, but need you have blackened his eyes and knocked all his front teeth out?"

"Well," said the woman, "how was I to know it was a burglar? I'd been up three hours waiting for my husband. I thought it was him."

HOMEBOODY?

"My husband can do most anything. He's a real jack of all trades."

"My husband is a jack of clubs. He belongs to about 10 lodges and societies and can do most anybody."

NO ARGUMENT HERE

"Late for parade again, O'Malley," snorted the irate captain. "How do you account for this persistent tardiness?"

"'Tis inherited, sir," answered Private O'Malley. "Me father was the late Michael O'Malley."

AWAKENED TOO SOON

"O dear, O dear, I dreamed that you had died."

"Don't cry, dear. Why let a bad dream upset you so? I'm still with you."

"Yes, I know, darling, but I was about to cash your insurance check when the alarm woke me and spoiled it all."

VACANT PLACE

The minister had preached for an hour and a quarter on the prophets—all the greater prophets and then the minor ones in turn. "Now we come to Habakkuk," he said. "Where shall we put him?"

"He can have my seat," said the wearied Scotsman, "I'm awa' hame!"

Nervous Indigestion

So-called "Nervous Indigestion" is a common form of disturbance of the stomach. It is accompanied by discomfort after meals, such as "being blown-up" and "heartburn."

Worry, overwork, and excessive use of liquor, coffee and tobacco contribute to nervous indigestion.

The treatment for nervous indigestion calls for the correction of living habits, including a change of diet. Those who suffer from nervous indigestion should consult their doctor, who will advise them how to go about establishing right habits of living.

To Vote or Not To Vote?

12,000,000 Organized Workers and Their Families—Armed with the Vote—Constitute an Army Capable of Sweeping Anti-Labor Demagogues off the Political Map

Ouch! What a push in the face that was!

That blow, Brothers, that rocked a too-complacent Labor back on its heels, was the whirlwind passage on June 25, over the President's veto, of the Connally-Smith anti-labor bill.

Well, we had it coming. How many millions of us just didn't bother to vote in the last election? Let's hope that the passage of this bill will wake Labor up—and let's come up fightin'.

Let's vow now that next election we will cast our vote to oust all the reactionaries in Congress who took advantage of the country's ire over the actions of one labor leader to slap this handcuff on the wrist of all labor.

More than 40 million Americans work for wages or salaries which amount to no more than wages. More than 12 million men and women belong to trade unions. Where were our representatives in Congress on June 25? BUT—where were we on last election day?

Every member of Organized Labor and every unorganized worker owes to himself and to his fellow workers his vote at the next election. It is his duty to see that he and all adult members of his family are registered—because you cannot vote if you are not registered.

The American Federation of Labor pledged itself to the political defeat of every Congressman—Democrat or Republican—who voted for the Connally-Smith anti-labor bill. And the framers of the bill took steps to prevent Labor's retaliation. The new law contains a clause making it a criminal offense for any labor union to contribute funds to political organizations.

For two decades after the last war, spurred on by the worst depression in the nation's history, Organized Labor made a concerted effort to drive the Tories out of public life and we did so well that even men like Connally of Texas preferred being known as a "friend of labor."

Under the watchful eye of a suddenly vote-conscious electorate, constructive labor legislation became the law of the land. The injunction and yellow dog contract were outlawed. The right of labor to bargain collectively and to elect representatives of its own choosing was legally recognized.

Then we began to slip. We became complacent. We forgot to remember that "Eternal vigilance is the price of freedom."

We failed to vote. In the last election we permitted Norris of Nebraska, Labor's friend through the years, to be defeated. We permitted the election of a number of reactionary Congressmen who we could have defeated if we hadn't been "too busy" to go to the polls.

TO VOTE?

"We got what we deserved," said a recent editorial in Labor. "Our forefathers are willing to die that men might have the right to vote. We have become so soft and lazy that we will not register and vote."

"If it will kindle our anger," says the same editorial concerning the passage of the Connally bill, "it will prove a blessing in disguise."

"There are probably 12,000,000 organized workers in the United States with their wives and adult members of their families, they constitute an army capable of sweeping such demagogues as Connally of Texas and Smith of Virginia off the political map."

"It would be so easy! The whole process of registering and voting would not take more than an hour or two."

"That's a small price to pay for freedom, for the right to join the union of your choice, for the privilege of determining your wages and working conditions by collective bargaining."

"In every union throughout the land a committee should be named to see to it that every member, and the members of his family, are registered. That's the first step, but it's the most important step! Once registered, it will be comparatively easy to get them to the polls on election day."

Another urgent reason why Labor must become more vote-conscious is the changed conditions which labor leaders are facing because of increasing governmental participation in collective bargaining and the invasion of war agencies and other government bureaus by the representatives of industry.

During past years of union recognition and achievement, collective bargaining involved only unions and employers. On the rare occasions when government entered the picture it was by invitation as a mediator. Today collective bargaining involves the WLB, the NLRB, the WMC, the WPB, the ODT, the ICC, and the Army and Navy.

And of all these, the War Labor Board is the only one on which Labor has been given direct and equal representation with management.

In the three-way collective bargaining negotiations involving labor, employer, and government these days, labor leaders are finding themselves faced with the same Big Business interests on the employer side of the table and on the government side of the table.

Legislative History of Labor Day As National Holiday for Workers

U. S. Congress, in 1894, When Grover Cleveland was President, Unanimously Passed the Bill, Jointly Introduced by Senator Kyle of South Dakota and Representative Cummings of New York, Designating the First Monday in September as "A Legal Public Holiday."

Senator Cockrell of Missouri Wanted Date Changed to First Day in September in the Interest of Legislative "Symmetry"—Senator Sherman of Ohio Objected to Labor Day Falling on Sunday Because It Would Shock His "Presbyterianism"; Bill Was Signed by President Cleveland on June 28, 1894.

By A. F. of L. Weekly News Service.

The movement to secure the enactment of legislation to make Labor Day a general holiday began in the 1884 convention of the American Federation of Labor, which unanimously adopted the following resolution introduced by A. C. Cameron, a delegate from the Chicago Trades and Labor Alliance:

"Resolved, That the first Monday in September of each year be set apart as a laborers' national holiday, and that we recommend its observance by all wage workers, irrespective of sex, calling or nationality."

The 1886 A. F. of L. convention recommended that all wage earners, irrespective of sex calling or nationality, observe the first Monday in September as Labor's national holiday, "until it shall be as uncommon for a man to work on that day as on Independence Day."

During the next few years organized labor devoted its attention to securing State legislation making Labor Day a legal State holiday. By 1893 the legislatures of twenty-three States had enacted Labor Day Laws.

Labor Day Bills in Forty-third Congress

In the meantime officials of the American Federation of Labor endeavored to have Congress enact a law establishing Labor Day as a national legal holiday.

Shortly after the convening of the special session of the Forty-third Congress, called by President Grover Cleveland in August, 1893, to consider the serious financial question which confronted the country, bills setting apart Labor Day as a national holiday were introduced by Senator James H. Kyle of South Dakota. Representative Amos J. Cummings of New York and Representative Robert E. De Forest of Connecticut.

There was no opposition to the bills, in either House, but the parliamentary path which they had to travel is interesting to students of legislative procedure.

The Congressional Record for August 28, 1893, in its account of the Senate proceedings for that day, under the heading "Bills Introduced," printed the following:

"Mr. Kyle introduced a bill (S. 730) making Labor Day a legal holiday, which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Education and Labor."

In the House proceedings for September 6, under the heading "Bills, Memorials, and Resolutions," the following announcements were made:

"By Mr. CUMMINGS: A bill (H. R. 28) making Labor Day a legal holiday—to the Committee on Labor."

"By Mr. De FOREST: A bill (H. R. 334) making the first Monday in September, otherwise called Labor Day, a national holiday—to the committee on Labor."

Kyle Bill Reported to Senate

There was evidently no opposition to the Kyle bill, for on February 13, 1894, under the heading "Reports of Committees," the Congressional Record printed this item:

"Mr. KYLE, from the Committee on Education and Labor, to whom was referred the bill (S. 730) making Labor Day a legal holiday, reported it without amendment."

Cummings Bill Reported to House

The House proceedings for May 15, 1894, under the heading "Labor Day a Legal Holiday," contained this notice:

"Mr. McGANN, from the Committee on Labor, reported favorably the bill (H. 28) making Labor Day a legal holiday, which was referred to the House Calendar, and with the accompanying report ordered printed." The report recommended the enactment of the bill.

Senate Considers Kyle Bill

In the Senate the Kyle bill came up for consideration on June 22, 1894. The following account of the proceedings is taken from the Congressional Record for that day:

"The VICE PRESIDENT. The Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

"Mr. KYLE. We are on the Calendar just about down to Order of Business No. 245, which is Senate Bill 730. I ask that the Senate proceed to the consideration of the bill (S. 730) making Labor Day a legal holiday.

"There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which was read as follows:

"Be it enacted, etc., That the first Monday in September of each year, being the day known and celebrated as labor's holiday, is hereby made a legal public holiday, to all intents and purposes, in the same manner as Christmas the 1st day of January, the 22d day of February, the 30th of May and the 4th day of July are now by law made public holidays."

Labor Asks First Monday in September

"Mr. KYLE. I should like to say, for the information of those who do not know, that something like twenty-five States of the United States have now settled upon the first Monday of September or the first day of October. In order to make the observance uniform, that all may enjoy vacation privilege upon the same day, the labor organizations of the country have united in asking that the first Monday of September be set apart as a holiday."

This explanation of the bill by Senator Kyle was followed by a brief discussion participated in by Senator William B. Allison of Iowa, Senator Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri, Senator John H. Mitchell of Oregon, and Senator John Sherman of Ohio. The only objection raised was by Senator Cockrell, who believed that for the sake of "symmetry" in national holidays Labor Day should be fixed for the first day in September instead of the first Monday.

Cockrell Urges First Day in September

The Congressional Record gives this account of the debate:

"Mr. ALLISON. Is the day in the bill the 1st day of September?

"Mr. COCKRELL. The first Monday of September. It ought to be the 1st day of September. I move to strike out 'Monday' and insert 'day,' so as to read, 'the first day of September.'

"Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. Then it would come on Sunday every few years.

"Mr. COCKRELL. So does the 4th of July, so does any fixed holiday fall upon Sunday occasionally.

"Mr. MITCHELL of Oregon. It should be fixed on a week day.

Sherman Abhors Sunday Holidays

"Mr. SHERMAN. I think if the labor organizations have fixed their own time, as it is said twenty-five States have done, we had better let them have a week day. I do not myself like to encourage holidays on Sunday. There is too much old Presbyterianism in me for that.

Cockrell Stresses "Symmetry"

"Mr. COCKRELL. Neither do I like to encourage holidays on Sunday; but if there is to be any symmetry in our holidays this one ought to be fixed on the first day of the month, just as we have the 4th of July, the 25th of December, the 30th of May, and so on for public holidays. However, I have no objection to letting it go; and I withdraw my amendment if there is any objection to it.

Original Bill is Passed

"Mr. SHERMAN. We had better leave it the first Monday, as we now create the holiday. The 4th of July was created by a great event, and could not be changed.

"The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Missouri is withdrawn.

"The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed."

Laid on the Speaker's Table

The Kyle bill reached the House on June 23. Under the heading, "Labor Day a Legal Holiday," the Congressional Record for that day said:

"The SPEAKER laid before the House the bill (S. 730) making Labor Day a legal holiday.

"Mr. McGANN. Mr. Speaker, I ask consent that the bill lie on the Speaker's table for the present.

"There was no objection, and it was so ordered."

Passed House Without Discussion

The next step in the process of enacting the bill into law took place in the House on June 26. The Cummings Labor Day bill was already on the House Calendar, where it would not probably be reached for a number of weeks. Mr. McGann, chairman of the House Labor Committee, therefore decided to place the Kyle bill, which had the same text as the Cummings bill, before the House, the effect of which was to substitute the Kyle bill for the Cummings bill. Under the heading "Labor Day a Legal Holiday," the Congressional Record for June 26 printed the following succinct account of the procedure:

"The SPEAKER laid before the House the bill (S. 730) making Labor Day a legal holiday.

"Mr. McGANN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the present consideration of the bill.

"The SPEAKER. The bill will be read, after which the Chair will ask for objections.

Origin of Labor Day Described by P. J. McGuire, Its Founder

By A. F. L. Weekly News Service

Editor's Note—P. J. McGuire, founder of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and the originator of Labor Day, wrote an article for the October, 1897, issue of the American Federationist, the official journal of the American Federation of Labor, giving an account of Labor Day. Mr. McGuire was elected secretary of the American Federation of Labor in 1886, holding that office during 1887 and 1888. He was elected second vice-president in 1889, first vice-president in 1890, and continued to serve as a member of the Executive Council until 1900. Mr. McGuire's article follows.

LABOR DAY—ITS BIRTH AND SIGNIFICANCE

By P. J. McGuire

First Vice-President, American Federation of Labor, 1890-1900

On this day the hosts of labor shout their Hosannahs!

From a thousand groves and hillsides, by rippling brooks and gurgling streams, comes the glad acclaim.

No festival of martial glory or warrior's renown is this; no pageant pomp of warlike conquest, no glory of fratricidal strife attend this day.

It is dedicated to peace, civilization and the triumphs of industry. It is a demonstration of fraternity and the harbinger of a better age—a more chivalrous time, when labor shall be best honored and well rewarded.

Toilers Are Honored

Pagan feasts and Christian observances have come down to us through the long ages. But it was reserved for this century, and for the American people, to give birth to Labor Day. In this they honor the toilers of the earth, and pay homage to those who from rude nature have delved and carved all the comfort and grandeur we behold.

More than all, the thought, the conception, yea the very inspiration of this holiday came from men in the ranks of the working people—men active in uplifting their fellows, and leading them to better conditions. It came from a little group in New York City, the Central Labor Union, which had just been formed, and which in later years attained widespread influence.

Birth of Labor Day

On May 8, 1882, the writer made the proposition. He urged the propriety of setting aside one day in the year to be designated as "Labor Day", and to be established as a general holiday for the laboring classes. He advised the day should first be celebrated by a street parade, which would publicly show the strength and esprit de corps of the trade and labor organizations. Next the parade should be followed by a picnic or festival in some grove, and the proceeds of the same be divided on this semi-cooperative plan, viz:

Each union or organization should get as many tickets as it desired to sell; the more sold the greater would be the profits to the society selling them. Each society should be allowed to keep all the money realized by sale of tickets through its members. In the end each of the bodies participating should contribute to the expenses in proportion to its membership.

First Monday in September Selected

It was further argued Labor Day should be observed as one festal day in the year for public tribute to the genius of American industry. There were other worthy holidays representative of the religious, civil and military spirit, but none representative of the industrial spirit—the great vital force of every nation. He suggested the first Monday in September of every year for such a holiday, as it would come at the most pleasant season of the year, nearly midway between the Fourth of July and Thanksgiving, and would fill a wide gap in the chronology of legal holidays. Many were the cogent reasons he advanced, and at once the idea was enthusiastically embraced.

First Labor Day Festival

The first Labor Day parade and festival of the Central Labor Union of New York City on September 5, 1882, was simply an imposing success. From that day on, it became a fixed institution in the United States, observed today in every city of the land. The plan was next endorsed by the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor and the general assembly of the Knights of Labor. It spread rapidly from city to city, and from town to town. City councils and State legislatures took it up, and made it a legal holiday, until finally, June 28, 1894, it became a national holiday, by act of Congress.

Power of Organized Labor

There was a time, and it is not many years ago, when the trade union and the labor movement of America were too insignificant for Presidents, Governors, Mayors, City Councilmen or public men to consider, must less honor. Trade unions were of no consequence; trade unionists were harmless fanatics. Now, they are of more weight, more influential, more powerful. No longer can they be sneered down or cajoled; they must be met, they must be recognized. What mighty portent is in their movement? In their hands rest the weal of the worker, his welfare and improvement.

Dooley Explains Beauties of the Open Shop

"What's all this talk that's in the papers about the open shop?" asked Mr. Hennessey.

"Why, don't you know?" asked Mr. Dooley. "Really, I'm surprised at yer ignorance, Hennessey. What is'n open shop? Sure, 'tis a shop where they kape th' door open to accommodate th' constant stream of min comin' in t' take jobs cheaper thin th' min that has th' jobs. 'Tis like this, Hennessey: Suppose wan of these freebarn American citizens is wurkin' in an open shop for th' princely wages of wan large, iron dollar a day of tin hours. Along comes another free-barn-son-of-a-gun an' he sez to th' boss, 'I think I kin handle th' job fur ninety cents'. 'Shurs sez th' boss,' an' th' wan dollar man gits th' merry jinglin' can, an' goes into the crool would t' exercise his in-alienable rights as a freebarn Amerycan citizen an' scab on some other poor divil. An' so it goes on, Hennessey, and who gits the benefit? True, it saves the boss money, but he don't care no more for money thin he does for his roight eye. It's all principl wid him. He hates t' see th' min robbed of their indepinence. They must have their indepinence, regardless of inything ilse."

"But," said Mr. Hennessey, "these open shop min ye minshun say they are fur th' unions if properly conducted. And there we are. An' how would they hive thim conducted? No strikes, no rules, no contracts, no scales, hardly any wages and damn few minbers."

CONGRESS GETS MAD

In December, 1941, a group of responsible leaders of Organized Labor met in a Conference called by President Roosevelt with a like group representing industry, and reached an agreement wherein it was provided that, during the period of the War, no resort would be had to strikes or lockouts, but that all disputes should be peacefully settled and a governmental agency set up to effect settlements should the parties fail to reach an agreement.

Thereupon, President Roosevelt issued Executive Order 9017 creating the National War Labor Board, tripartite in character, on which Labor, Industry and the Public had equal representation.

While it took time to build up a competent staff to handle the thousands of cases referred to it, the Board functioned fairly well until the enactment of the Stabilization Law of October 2, 1942, which was followed by Executive Order 9250. Although under this order the powers of the War Labor Board to grant wage increases were sharply restricted, Organized Labor accepted the new order without much protest, and with the exception of a few sporadic strikes which were quickly suppressed, the wheels of industry were kept turning without interruption and the production of war material exceeded all expectations of Government officials and others to whom the task of furnishing needed supplies was entrusted.

The War Labor Board apparently had the industrial situation well in hand when, like a bolt from the sky, Executive Order 9328 was issued April 8 1943. This so-called "Hold the line Order" stopped the War Labor Board dead in its tracks, because under its provisions the Board could grant no further wage increases. The Board very frankly informed Stabilization Director James Byrnes that unless the Order was modified the Board could not continue to function. After several confernces between the Board and Mr. Byrnes, the new Order was modified and the Board proceeded with its work, although its powers were greatly curtailed.

It was about this time that the anthracite coal miners inaugurated a strike for a two-dollar-a-day increase. The Board called on John L. Lewis to order the miners to return to work, which he did, but he announced that when the agreement of the miners with the Operators in both the bituminous and anthracite mines expired, he intended to get a two-dollar-a-day increase, come what may. Everyone is familiar with what followed. Negotiations between the Operators and the Mine Workers broke down and the miners went on strike. Notwithstanding the fact that John L. Lewis was one of the Labor Leaders who participated in the Conference which resulted in the creation of the War Labor Board, he loudly and emphatically declared he would not permit the Board to pass on the merits of the miners' dispute with the Operators. Not only did he announce that he would ignore the Board, but he proceeded to attack that tribunal collectively and individually. He insisted that the miners' demand be met or there would be no coal mined.

Thus did "John L." throw a monkey wrench into the machinery which had been operating fairly satisfactorily, so far as Organized Labor as a whole was concerned.

Enter Senator Tom Connally of Texas and Representative Howard Smith of Virginia with their vicious anti-labor bill, which heretofore had little chance of becoming law. John L. furnished them an opportunity of which they quickly took advantage and, under

ARSENIC IN WALL BOARD IS CALLED PERILOUS IN FIRE

Flames Free Poison Gas, Chemist Says

Plastering contractors and officials of the plasterers' union advanced the theory that the use of building material treated with arsenic may have been responsible for some of the loss of life in two fires, one here and one in Boston, Mass. This view, however, was not shared by Chicago authorities, who said they have been surveying fire hazards of the city's night clubs.

Dr. Hilton Ira Jones, chemist and head of the Hizone Research laboratory, supported the assertion of the plasterers. Dr. William D. McNally, coroner's chemist and authority on toxicology, disagreed in some particulars.

Says Gas Is Poisonous

Dr. Jones said he had analyzed some of the charred ruins of the Beverly Recreation bowling alleys, 9345 South Ashland Avenue, which was destroyed by fire last January 6. A wall board was used there which was made of bagasse, a sugar cane product. Dr. Jones said, which had been treated with arsenic. He said that when arsenic comes in contact with fire it gives off a deadly gas. Dr. McNally's opinion, however, was that the gas would not kill instantly.

The plastering industry opposes the use of this wall board and Dr. Jones was hired by it to make a study of its fire hazards. He believed with his employers, he said, that the great loss of life in the Coconut Grove night club fire in Boston last November 28 was partly attributable to arsenic treated wall board. There were 490 deaths in the Boston fire. The group represented by Dr. Jones said it was convinced these persons died instantly of fumes from the arsenic-treated board.

It was explained that bagasse—the composition board—retains some of its sugar and attracts insects which would consume it in a short time unless it were impregnated with insecticide. It was Dr. McNally's theory that only a weak solution would be used. Dr. Jones said his analyses showed a strong solution was used.

Cites Ventilation Lack

In the Chicago fire four persons died of carbon monoxide poisoning, Dr. McNally found after autopsies. He said they were trapped in a wash room which had no window, and they died when all the oxygen in the room was consumed. This washroom was in the center of the building and had no outside window. Dr. McNally said, a condition which if not a violation of a city ordinance, was at least an architectural error.

An inquest held by Coroner A. L. Brodie ended on February 10 without the cause of the fire being determined. The coroner's jury recommended, however, that no revolving doors be permitted in establishments of that kind. Fire Marshal Mullaney said yesterday the bowling alley had but one revolving door and that on the side street.

In Boston the proprietor of the cafe, Barney Welansky, was sentenced to 12 to 15 years imprisonment upon conviction of manslaughter. He was violating several ordinances. Several Boston officials, including Building Commissioner James H. Mooney, were indicted for neglect of duty.

Locally, it was said, many cafes were found to be violating ordinances. Some were forced to close for alterations. Others were allowed to continue operating on promises of making the required changes without delay. — Chicago Daily Tribune, Tuesday, June 8, 1943.

WAR CASUALTIES CUT BY SUPERB MEDICAL CARE

WASHINGTON.—More than 97 per cent of the Navy and Marine personnel wounded between Pearl Harbor and March 31, 1943, have recovered, the Office of War Information reports. Of all the wounded, only 2.6 per cent died, 53 per cent were returned to duty, 43.5 per cent are still under treatment and less than one per cent were invalidated from service.

The OWI said available data on Army wounded shows that recoveries in the Army are comparable to the Navy and Marine percentages.

In the original occupation of North Africa, the only deaths were those of men killed outright or so badly wounded that nothing could have saved them.

"Never before in the history of the world has the fighting man had available the medical care and equipment the United States now furnishes its defenders," the OWI states.

Doctors are trained to perform their duties with whatever equipment is at hand, according to the OWI report, and sulfa drugs and blood plasma have "revolutionized" treatment of the wounded.

When 400 soldiers were burned by flaming oil in the North African occupation, plasma and speed of treatment saved the lives of all but six. During an extended period beginning with the Solomon Island offensive in August, 1942, a Navy hospital ship cared for 4,039 patients and only seven died.

The breakdown of the OWI figures shows: Naval officers wounded, 61.6 per cent returned to duty; 35.9 per cent were still under treatment; 2 per cent were

Is the United States the greatest nation on earth? It isn't the greatest nation in size. Its continental area of 3,026,789 square miles is less than half the size of the Soviet Union, and smaller than Canada or Brazil. It is almost once and a half the size of Europe without the Soviet Union, but with all possessions it occupies only 7 per cent of the total land area of the world, whereas the British Empire sprawls across a third of the globe. Soviet Russia's chunk equals 14 per cent, and the French reservation another 8 per cent. The U. S. isn't the greatest nation by nose count. Its population of 135,000,000 is small compared to 450,000,000 Chinese, 353,000,000 Indians, and 170,000,000 Russians.

In spite of an unparalleled industrial civilization, the U. S. is not predominantly a manufacturing nation, manufacturing accounts for less than a fifth of the country's total realized income, whereas in the United Kingdom and Japan over 30 per cent of national income is derived from factory trades; in Sweden 40 per cent. The U. S. has built the world's most fabulous cities, but it is not the most urbanized nation, even though the population of citified New York exceeds that of either Canada or Argentina, and though Pennsylvania has more inhabitants than Belgium or Hungary, citified Illinois more than Finland and Denmark together. But less than 30 per cent of U. S. citizens live in big cities. In England nearly 45 per cent of the people dwell in cities of 100,000 or more, and in Germany over 30 per cent.

Commonly presumed to be wealthier in natural resources than any other nation, the U. S. in some respects is probably equaled and in others exceeded by the British Empire and the Soviet Union. The U. S. has certain deficiencies. It consumed more than half the world rubber crop, grows none. It drinks half the world's coffee, and grows none. It uses three-fourths of the world's raw silk without cultivating any silkworms to speak of. It brings in 15 per cent of its hides. Its production of sugar, taken with that supplied by U. S. island possessions, is about 12 per cent of the world's total, but it consumes 20 per cent, and that 8 per cent difference amounts to 2,770,000 tons. It has virtually no tin, or platinum, or chromite, or antimony; little manganese, quicksilver, tungsten, and nickel. The fact remains that in a number of categories the U. S. is far from being independent of the outside world.

The greatness of the U. S. is the sum of a vast land area; a great, resourceful population of diverse origins and talents; a great agriculture; an enormous treasury of resources; a form of government that has stimulated the optimum development of all the components of the economy. It is the compounding of all these sources of greatness that makes the U. S. great.

"A QUALITY JOB? You Betcha!"

"This Mark Proves It!"

GOOD LATHERS like to work with a quality product. That's why more and more lathers call for Anchor Gypsum Lath. The Anchor trade-mark has an enviable reputation for top-quality and covers a wide range of gypsum products to meet all building needs.

Anchor quality is recognized by architects, builders and owners. They know it has met the rigid Celotex standards of quality entitling it to be sold under that famous name. So, order Anchor lath for your next job. Available now at your Celotex dealer.

WHY PRESS HATES LABOR

Why are the daily newspapers, almost without exception, lined up solidly back of the very few who control great wealth?

This is true because newspapers are operated from the business office and not from the editorial rooms. The men who contact the representatives of wealth, and who bring in the advertising, are the men who write the ticket, who dictate what shall be said, and what shall not be said, in the news and editorial columns. These advertising and business specialists also draw down very much larger salaries than do the men in the news and editorial rooms. They are the little brothers of the rich.

Since the selfish control of big business is against higher wages, better hours and working conditions, the newspapers are happy to adopt the same policy. Oh, they conjure up other excuses, they make a great case against all the workers of America when an excuse is provided by a small minority.

Newspapers are corporations. As such, they have stockholders. Many of these stockholders have never done an honest day's work in their lives. But, stockholders cry for dividends; they reward the men who bring in the heavy advertising, and who never — no, never offend an advertiser.

That's why the daily press reacts so quickly to the slightest nod from Wall Street.

And, remember this: newspapers have employees, too. Many of these employees received starvation wages until they organized. If you want to see tears flow down to the sea in a deep, briny stream, just ask a newspaper publisher how he is coming with his labor contract.

The formation in Philadelphia recently of a United Labor Committee of AFL and CIO unions for possible independent political action is a sign of Labor's awakening to the importance of the vote. Of particular interest was the self-imposed limitations of the Philadelphia committee which prohibit it from acting as a political party or as an affiliate of a political unit.

NOW isn't too soon to begin planning Labor's part in the 1944 election. Every local union should have its committee, appointive or elected, whose job it is to see that all members of the local and adult members of the worker's family are properly registered.

For your convenience next election day, we are publishing the roll-call of Labor's enemies, Congressmen who voted for the Connally-Smith bill and whom the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor has publicly pledged itself to do everything in its power to defeat.

Eight-Hour-Day Martyrs, 1886

By Martin A. Dillmon

A tragedy, 57 years ago, marked the opening of the eight-hour day movement in our country. So garbled were the facts in public print, many misinformed persons today refer to it as the Chicago Haymarket "Riot".

Early in 1886, the 8-hour day movement took root. In Chicago, alone, over 50,000 were on strike. A struck plant was the McCormick Farm Machinery Co., at South Chicago. One day, company gunmen opened fire on McCormick pickets, two of whom were killed and several injured seriously.

The eight-hour strikers called a mass protest meeting in Chicago Haymarket Square. Jittery police mobilized squads of reserves. Mayor Carter Harrison went personally to the meeting, mingled with the crowd, then suggested that the police reserves be disbanded. "They are only talking and nothing is going to happen," Mayor Harrison told the police chief.

An hour later, however, ignoring the mayor's advice, a swarm of police swooped down upon the meeting to break it up. In the "rough-house" that followed, police opened fire. In the panic, an unknown person tossed a bomb. Seven officers were killed, 67 wounded; at least one spectator was killed and many injured. This was in May.

In July, the following 8-hour strike leaders were convicted of the crime:

Albert R. Parsons, August Spies, Geo. Engel, Adolph Fischer, Louis Linig, Samuel Feldon, Oscar Neebe and Michael Schwab.

All were sentenced to death except Neebe, who received 15 years in prison. As a result of intervention from the late Samuel Gompers, then head of the American Federation of Labor, Gov. Oglesby of Illinois, commuted the sentences of Linig, Schwab and Feldon to life imprisonment. Linig cracked under the strain and committed suicide in Chicago jail. On Nov. 11, 1886, Parsons, Spies, Fischer and Engel died on the gallows at Chicago.

John P. Altgeld became Illinois governor in 1890, one of the greatest men who ever entered public life, an original champion of the "Forgotten Man." Always doubtful of the men's guilt, Gov. Altgeld granted absolute pardons to Schwab, Feldon and Neebe. On July 5, 1893, the liberated men wrote this letter to Gov. Altgeld:

"Your Excellency has given us back wife, children, home and liberty. You did this after carefully considering the facts which should have been known all the time. You pursued the course dictated by your conscience, regardless of the torrent of abuse which you knew would be the consequences of your courage.

"The dark, heavy mist of hate, of prejudice and of narrowminded spirit will pass away and truth will shine in bright splendor. Even today, thousands of men of all conditions of life approve your act.

"It is true that most of them belong to the poorer classes, but, in our country, the sentiment of the poorest should not weigh less than the sentiment of those who revel in wealth. This is the sense of our political institutions. But those men who did not approve your action did not dare deny the facts on which your Excellency based your decision. Facts once established cannot retreat.

"Some prophesy all kinds of disaster which they say will follow in the wake of our liberation. To disapprove their baseless assertions will be the aim of our lives.

"As a reward for your noble deed, take, in addition to the approval of your conscience, the blessings of our wives, of our children and thousands of good men whose sense of justice you gave new strength, and the feeling of gratitude of the undersigned."

The men kept their word and lived upright lives. Feldon, who was making a speech when police raided the meeting, inherited money from a relative soon after his release. He bought a stock ranch near LeVete, Colo., and finished his days there as a quiet, law-abiding stock raiser. Neebe ran a saloon at Chicago until he died from an ailment he contracted while in prison. Schwab moved to California and operated a small store until sunset came to his life. Not one of the pardoned men was ever as much as arrested again.

Entrenched big business and open shoppers loosed the flood-gates of abuse upon Gov. Altgeld and called him a promoter of "anarchy." The industrial overlords of that day had the power to make their hatred effective, so poor John Altgeld was politically ruined. Nearly penniless he, some years later, became a law partner of the late Clarence S. Darrow, famous defender of Labor, and was rapidly making his way back up the ladder when he fell dead on March 11, 1902, while making a speech at Joliet, Ill.

Mounds of clay in a Chicago cemetery today mark the last resting places of those 8-hour-day martyrs, who died at the end of ropes and, therefore, could not be reached by Gov. Altgeld's executive pardon power.

—From The Painter and Decorator.

In 1786 the American government, or what passed for government, was in the hands of 13 state legislatures, controlled in many cases by small farmers and merchants—predominantly a debtor class—who had been responsible for a great rash of share-the-wealth laws and for cancellation of private debts, and who had been flooding the land with paper money. There was no power to stop them. To be sure, the states were linked by Articles of Confederation, but it was an impotent league with a Congress whose few powers meant nothing because it had no means of enforcement. The states appointed and paid the delegates to Congress, and were the only sources of national revenue, contributing to the treasury at their unpredictable pleasure. There were no national taxes, no separate executive, no army, no system of federal courts, no single treaty-enforcing power, no control of money or trade.

The result was economic chaos. National credit was non-existent. Continental bonds, issued to raise money for the Revolution, were selling as low as five cents on the dollar. To men of means, who read the country's future in terms of economic stability, the treatment indicated was as plain as the symptoms. The states must be brought into a strong union with an effective central control. But the legislatures were acutely jealous of their sovereignty. Strategy was called for. Therefore Alexander Hamilton cautiously issued a call for a convention in Philadelphia, for May, 1787, ostensibly to make a few revisions in the Articles of confederation, the proposed changes to be submitted to the state legislatures for unanimous approval.

Unsuspecting, the states (except canny Rhode Island) sent their delegates, mostly well-to-do-men; 55 eventually showed up by May 14. They met in the ornate State House, outside which the pavement had been thoughtfully covered with earth to deaden the clatter of carriage wheels. Forthwith they locked the doors to the public and press, elected George Washington to the chair, and proceeded not to amend the Articles of Confederation but to draft a Constitution for an entirely new government. Good reason had they to be secret, even to the point of omitting all debates from the minutes and sending a vigilant fellow delegate along with Benjamin Franklin on his social rounds to see that the gabby old gentleman did not talk out of session. For the debates, no less than their intention, would have roused the legislatures at home to fury.

Once out of earshot of their constituents, the 55 delegates showed near unanimity toward the main objective. Partly by accident, their line-up was free of potent dissenters. Thomas Jefferson, who surely would have been a troublesome champion of democracy, was abroad as Minister to France.

Thomas Paine was barnstorming Europe, Samuel Adams was not delegated, and Patrick Henry, suspecting the purpose of the Convention, registered his protest by staying home.

The four parlous months of the Convention were a series of quarrels and compromises. But the essential agreements of the delegates were more significant than their differences. They agreed upon the necessity of restraining the states without destroying them. And they agreed on the lack of capacity of the common people for self-government, the dominant philosophy in the Convention being Madison's thesis that government must not only protect the people against tyranny, but must itself be protected against the moneyless class, which, as a ruling majority, might well invade the rights of the minority with confiscatory taxes and wealth-sharing laws.

Hence the delegates, having had their fill of oppressive autocracy followed by an overdose of what they considered pernicious democracy, resolved to prevent a recurrence of either. The safeguard they invented was the system of checks and balances that they proceeded to gear into the governmental machinery. As for the Supreme Court, a powerful element in the Convention, including Madison, who is popularly considered "Father of the Constitution," wanted the court to have a direct veto against "leveling laws," which the President, "softened by Congress," might let pass. That veto power was withheld because it would muddle the separation of powers and because the farmers by their own statements expected the Court to nullify unconstitutional Acts of Congress after passage.

Rightly foreseeing trouble in getting the unanimous approval called for by their charter, the Convention boldly declared that the consent of only nine states would be enough, and decided to appeal for ratification over the heads of the legislatures to conventions of the people. The ratification fight was intense. Against it were the small, back-country farmers and mechanics led, however, by Revolutionary patriots like Patrick Henry, plus numerous men of affairs who feared the implications of central government and who were angered by the surreptitious manner of the framing. The great mass of citizens, however, were too apathetic to go to the polls even on such a momentous issue, or so isolated by distance and bad roads that they never fully learned what the Constitution was all about. Hence in the elections of delegates to the ratifying conventions about 160,000 cast their votes—not more than one-fourth of the adult white males in the country. About 100,000 (in a population of some 3,000,000) probably voted in favor of the Constitution.

For some reason never completely clear, the delegates had refused to write into the constitution a Bill of Rights. The promise to add such a document proved a most effective lever in bargaining, winning over even such an outraged opponent as Thomas Jefferson. With that guarantee the ninth state, New Hampshire, made the Constitution a reality on June 21, 1788.—Plasterers' Journal.

—o—

Petroleum had been known to the ancients and was used for various medicinal purposes by the American Indians. In northwestern Pennsylvania along Oil Creek, it collected in pools and was mopped up with blankets for use medicinally or locally as a lubricant.

New England whalers were exhausting the source of sperm oil, a common but none too satisfactory household illuminant. Refiners were making successfully small quantities of kerosene, at great expense, from deposits of coal and shale — hence the name "coal oil" which clung for many years to the petroleum product.

Here then was a tremendous ready-made market for quantity production of petroleum.

Col. Edwin L. Drake did not start the oil business. He was a tall, solemn, black-bearded jack-of-all-trades who had finally settled down as a conductor on the New Haven Railroad. A group of Eastern capitalists had been persuaded, along in the late 'fifties, to venture a modest investment on the theory that deeply-drilled wells might tap the underground oil deposits that oozed to the surface around the little lumber town of Titusville. Drake, who had invested his bit in the project, was selected to go to Titusville and start drilling.

Triumphing over all kinds of obstacles and delays, Drake finally got started with an old graybearded blacksmith, "Uncle Billy" Smith as driller. After weeks of drilling, oil was found in the well on August 27, 1859, and now the State of Pennsylvania has taken over, as a park, the site of the original "Drake's Folly."

Then came the "Oil Rush." Speculators leased farm lands along Oil Creek on the royalty basis which has bedeviled the oil industry ever since. A forest of derricks arose. Mushroom towns sprang up, like Pithole, which in a few months gathered together some thirty thousand inhabitants and boasted the third largest post-office business in the State—only to return to wilderness again in the space of a few short years. In these oil towns along streets of mud or dust rose wooden shacks, hotels, gambling houses, saloons, overflowing with frenzied fortune-hunters and all the sprawling human effluvia of an American frontier boom town.

The new industry grew, not steadily, but by leaps and bounds, with booms and panics, with a wealth of comedy and tragedy and clashing personalities.

From the beginning transportation was a difficult problem. The oil was first put into barrels at the wells, for transportation by wagon to the creek or the Allegheny to be floated down to Pittsburgh on barges; or to a railroad line, the nearest being sixteen miles away. Thus the crude oil began to find its way to the refineries.

As the railroads built branch lines into the fields and tank cars took the place of barrels, the pipe-line came into being. The first lines merely carried oil from the wells to nearby storage tanks, then to the river, then to Pittsburgh and finally through to the seaboard. Today the pipe-line is the great oil-carrier and 100,000 miles of these pipes bring oil from the fields to the refineries.

Long before oil was discovered in quantities outside the expanded original district the rugged individualism of producers and refineries alike was leading to chaos. John D. Rockefeller brought a certain amount of order and organization. The Standard was well on the way to complete monopolization of the oil business when the trend was checked by two factors—the popular rising against trusts and the development of new fields in the West and the South.

In the meantime a great export business had been built up, tho it was soon to be challenged by foreign oil companies developing foreign fields. The great oil-product for a generation was kerosene and lamps filled with this American product banished the shadows in Chinese huts and Turkish harems.

About the beginning of the century the development of the automobile created a demand for a hitherto comparatively valueless oil product—gasoline. From about 1910 dates the modern era in the production, manufacture, and distribution of oil. In 1900 the old eastern producing district on the slopes of the northern Appalachians produced more than half the country's oil. Today the great producer is the Mid-Continent field where the wells of Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Northern Texas and Louisiana yield 60 per cent of the oil while California's fields, whose full development is only about ten years old, furnish a quarter of it. Nineteen States now figure as important producers.

What a contrast with the old Drake well, which pumped its twenty barrels a day, is the far-flung petroleum industry of 1943. Today oil is brought from more than 350,000 oil wells in this country, which produce more than 2,500,000 barrels a day. More than 400 refineries in thirty States transform the crude oil into a bewildering number of petroleum products. The United States produces about two-thirds of the world's oil and consumes nearly three-fourths of it. Something like 350,000 service or filling stations retail oil products to this country's ultimate consumers. Perhaps two million persons are employed in the oil business.

Congress Gets Mad

the pressure of so-called public opinion, aided and abetted by a press hostile to Organized Labor, Congress passed this foul piece of legislation and sent it to the White House. Finally, the President vetoed the bill, pointing out, in a most convincing message, its weak spots, particularly the section which made strikes legal after a cooling-off period of thirty days. Thereupon, Congress, instead of practicing what it preached, namely, withholding action to cool off, got mad and lost no time in overriding the President's veto. So now we have on the statute books a law which, while pleasing to Tom Connally, Howard Smith, and certain other persons, is one of the weakest and most unsatisfactory pieces of legislation ever enacted by Congress. Just what effect it will have on industrial relations remains to be seen. Meanwhile, Organized Labor will go about its business of supporting the War Program and its members will continue to keep the no strike pledge and produce in ever-increasing amounts all things necessary to a successful conduct of the War.

Rickenbacker Challenged by Fellow Hero of War

The Philadelphia Record of March 1st, published a letter from Captain Howard Y. Williams, Minneapolis, Minn., one of Minnesota's World War I heroes and Field Director of the Union For Democratic Action, headed by Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, in which he challenges the statements made by Captain Rickenbacker.

Through Senator Joseph B. Guffey of Pennsylvania, this letter was made part of the Congressional Record for March 1, 1943. We quote from the letter: "Don't let them use you, Eddie, to divide the American people, to set soldiers against workers. The American heroes in the shops and factories and on the farms have the same stuff in them as the boys in the hell-holes of the Pacific. Don't sound retreat for heroes on any front.

"I cannot let your attack on civilian workers go unchallenged. Men do not change materially when they take off overalls for a uniform. They are pretty much the same men. Of course, war tests men in a severe way. Like every other great crisis in life, it makes some men and breaks others. . . .

Pay Is Discussed

"You emphasize the fact that soldiers are risking their lives for $50 a month. It is a pitiful amount and yet the fact is that, with their meals and clothes and family allotments, it is greater financial security than thousands of them have known in civilian life.

"Why do you want to drag all workers' pay to this level? Why not let this wealthiest country raise soldiers' pay at least to the level of workers? Where do you get the idea that men in the factories should work for $50 a month, while managers should not be limited to $67,000 a year, lest it curb their incentive? Don't we all need incentives and shouldn't we all make comparable sacrifices?

"Do you believe, as you indicate in your Detroit speech, that post-war America should guarantee the open shop although it has taken years of real struggle on the part of workers' organizations to eliminate at least partially, this denial of majority rights? Do you believe that the Wagner Act should be abolished?

"You have found in the aviation industry that by associating yourself with other leaders in the industry, you have greatly benefited. What makes you think that workers should not benefit by this same association in unions? Just as we, war veterans, have banded together in the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Disabled American Veterans to protect our comrades, so workers organize themselves to protect and strengthen their standards of living. What is the difference, Eddie?

"You do not want soldiers on their return to join unions. What would you think of a man who said he wanted to fight the Japs but wouldn't join the Army and wanted to be a free lance? Just as soldiers ought to join armies to be effective, so workers should join unions; and businessmen, trade associations; and lawyers, bar association, etc. Some trade unions do have racketeers, just as industries have their Insulls and Whitneys, and just as some regiments have cowards and traitors, but our job is not to do away with unions, industries, or regiments, but to clean out the misfits."

Views On Absenteeism

"Do you believe that absenteeism, a practice condemned by all, is exclusively the fault of labor unions or labor leaders? Or do you believe, with the Office of War Information, that absenteeism is a complex phenomenon with a multiplicity of causes, including bad working conditions, inadequate housing and transportation facilities, sickness, etc.?

"Now, Eddie, don't bet short on the American people. In the trenches, in the factories, on the farms, in the offices, they measure up to the crisis. I know you do not mean to follow Hitler in creating second-class citizens, but that is what you are doing, nevertheless, in seeking to set soldiers against workers. Don't let them drag your great military record in the mud in this way. In unity there is strength. Don't let them use you to divide the American people."

Decorated In France

Captain Williams went to France in the summer of 1917 as a first lieutenant in the Tenth Engineers and was among the first 25,000 American soldiers to land in France. He was promoted to captain, cited by Gen. John J. Pershing for conspicuous bravery and decorated by the French.

The men of his regiment dedicated the regimental history to Captain Williams in recognition of his outstanding leadership.

WIT AND HUMOR

"Don't worry," said the kennel owner as he described an aggressive bulldog. "He wouldn't harm a soul. He was raised on milk."

"So was my wife," answered the doubtful buyer. "But she's eating meat now!"

It all started when the barber put up a sign which read: "Hair Ye! Hair Ye!" Then the butcher lettered on his window, "Meat! You Here!"

Finally, the service station owner tacked a sign over his now idle gasoline pumps with the message, "Sure we'll win the war! No gas-work here."

And across the street his competitor with equally empty tanks, bannered his approval with, "His gas is as good as mine!"

Not all people who use the touch system operate typewriters.

"John, dear," said Mrs. Smith, "such an odd thing happened today. The clock fell off the wall, and if it had fallen a moment sooner it would have hit mother."

"I always said that clock was slow," replied Mr. Smith.

Germes or no germes, kissing must be fully as dangerous as they make it out to be; it has certainly put an end to a lot of bachelors.

A traveling salesman dropped in on a bank officer whose desk was covered with letters, papers, magazines and miscellany. The banker was busily writing a memo and greeted the salesman with:

"I'm very busy this morning, very busy!"

Glancing at the desk, the salesman replied:

"Well, I'm very glad to know that. I kinda thought you were just confused."

A Promising Sign

Several years ago an American tourist in Scotland came upon a native whom he perceived to be very old.

"Pardon me," he said to the old man, "but may I inquire your age?"

"I am one hundred," was the proud reply.

"Remarkable, remarkable!" exclaimed the American. "but I'll wager you won't see another hundred."

The elderly Scot chuckled. "Aa dinna ken, mon," he replied. "Aa'm stronger noo than when I started by first hundred."

All Set

Jake was a worthless and improvident fellow. One day he said to the local grocer: "I got to have a sack of flour; I'm all out, an' my family is starving."

"All right, Jake," said the grocer. "If you need a sack of flour and have no money to buy it with, we'll give you a sack. But, see here, Jake; there's a circus coming to town in a few days, and if I give you a sack of flour, are you sure you won't sell it and take your family to the circus?"

"Oh, no," said Jake. "I got the circus money saved up already."

Comparatively Mortality

"It was terrible!" said Mrs. Murphy. "There were 50 Swedes and an Irishman killed in the wreck."

"Indeed!" said Mrs. O'Reilly. "The poor man!"

The Best Bait

A young preacher went fishing for trout, accompanied by a couple of girls from his parish. A farmer, who was also out fishing, called to the young clergyman:

"Ketchin' many trout?"

"I am a fisher of men," said the young preacher, with dignity.

The farmer smiled, and then, looking at the girls, remarked: "I see you've got the right kind of bait with you."

Better Thus

A woman purchasing war bonds told the clerk:

"I've been saving this money to divorce my husband, but I can stand him better than I can Hitler."

"You say you married Tom to get rid of him?"

"Yes, he got to be an awful nuisance hanging around the house every evening. I hardly ever see him now."

Can't Fight the Law

Mistress—"I saw you kiss that policeman who called on you in the kitchen. Why did you do it?"

New Maid—"Well, don't you know it is against the law to resist an officer?"

Gone With the Wind

"They tell me you have been trying stocks."

"Yes," was the response of the sad-hearted. "I made a purchase on a margin a few weeks ago."

"Was it a good buy?"

"Yes, that exactly what it was—a 'good-bye.'"

Legislative History of Labor Day As National Holiday for Workers

"The bill was read as follows:

"Be it enacted, etc., That the first Monday in September of each year, being the day known and celebrated as labor's holiday, is hereby made a legal public holiday, to all intents and purposes in the same manner as Christmas, the 1st day of January, the 22nd of February, the 30th of May and the 4th day of July are now by law made public holidays."

"There being no objection, the bill was considered, ordered to a third reading; and being read the third time, was passed.

"On motion of Mr. McGANN, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid upon the table."

Speaker Crisp Signs Bill

Passed by both Houses of Congress, there were still three steps to be taken before the Labor Day bill became a part of the Federal Statutes. It must be signed by Speaker Crisp, Vice President Stevenson, and President Cleveland.

The first step was recorded in the Congressional Record for June 27. Under the heading, "Enrolled Bill Signed," the House proceedings said:

"Mr. PEARSON, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that they had examined and found truly enrolled the bill (S. 730) making Labor Day a legal holiday; when the Speaker signed the same.

Vice-President Affixes Signature

The Senate proceedings for the same day under the heading "Enrolled Bill Signed," reported:

"A message from the House of Representatives by

Mr. T. O. FOWLES, its chief clerk, announced that the Speaker of the House of Representatives had signed the enrolled bill (S. 730) making Labor Day a legal holiday, and it was thereupon signed by the Vice President.

Approved by President Cleveland

On June 29, 1894, under the heading "Presidential Approval," the Congressional Record in the Senate proceedings said:

"A message from the President of the United States, by Mr. O. L. Pruden, one of his secretaries, announced that the President on the 28th instant approved and signed the act (S. 730) making Labor Day a legal holiday."

And thus, twelve years after P. J. McGuire suggested to the Central Labor Union of New York City that one day in the year, the first Monday in September, should be set aside as a special holiday for working men and women of the United States, and ten years after the proposal was adopted by the American Federation of Labor, Congress enacted and President Cleveland signed the Kyle-Cummings bill "making Labor Day a legal public holiday."

Gompers Announces Victory

In his report to the 1894 convention of the American Federation of Labor, President Samuel Gompers made the following statement regarding the enactment of the Labor Day bill:

"National Labor Day.—It affords me pleasure to be able to report that the demand made by the American Federation of Labor for making the first Monday in September of each year a legal holiday passed Congress and was made a law on June 28, 1894."

CORRECTION

Suspension for nonpayment of dues of P. Murdock 37370 by Local 491, published in the May issue, was reported in error by the secretary and is therefore cancelled.

CORRECTION

Publication of renewal of withdrawal card of A. J. DeCoursey 31065 by Local 496 in the July issue of The Lather was the result of a misunderstanding. This card has not been renewed and is therefore void.

Before You Condemn !

By Willa C. Burruss

The present mine crisis adds fuel to the ever increasing flame of anti-unionism and, deplorable as the affair is, it is logical to expect much condemnation and criticism of every phase of organized labor and its program.

Without attempting to justify any part of the events of the past, it is obvious that mine workers are not the only ones guilty of lowering production, so before going in for universal condemnation of all things unionized let every individual check himself and find out what he has done to decrease production.

The President has spoken, and it remains for those concerned to determine which road they will take.

But are you guilty of absenteeism on your job every time you feel like staying away from work?

Do you take advantage of every opportunity to promote production in your division?

Are you guilty of slipping to the cafeteria in your building to eat breakfast on worktime, or do you find it necessary to go to the nurse for a sedative for that headache which is the result of that party last night?

Do you stay away from your job because it looks like rain and you don't want to waste time going when you don't think you can work anyway?

Have you hoarded foodstuffs that are rationed and what about driving out in the country these cold nights?

Wasn't your car parked on the side street when your C card was given because you said you need gasoline to get to and from work?

Are you doing work which any 16 year old boy or girl might do?

Are you renting a firetrap to war workers or are you charging newcomers $40 a month for a hall room, which brought only $10 before the war?

Did you hinder the lend-lease program by remaining an isolationist until Pearl Harbor became a synonym for tragedy in the Pacific?

Did you buy those extra stamps or that bond last week?

Did you stage a filibuster to prevent certain measures from passing when the public thought them necessary to the war effort?

Do you talk about what should be done in the armed forces when you know little or nothing about the situation?

Before you go all out for condemnation, ask yourself these questions.

No Relief For Building, Says Nelson

There is no prospect of relief in sight for private building for other than actual war workers, through the freeing of steel and other essential war materials, even in 1944, according to Donald N. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board.

Some extension is, however, assured by the request of President Roosevelt to Congress for an additional $400,000,000 for an estimated 1,110,000 workers in war plants, for who he wrote: "We are allocating to private initiative as large a segment of the war-housing program as it possibly can produce under war conditions and war risks."

The proposed new authorization would raise the total approved by Congress under the Lanham act to $1,600,000,000 since October, 1940.

Mr. Nelson went on record in a letter dated April 15, addressed to Building Supply News of Chicago, which had asked why, as war construction slacks off, restrictions should not gradually be lifted and not wait until 1944 when "building will be scraping bottom."

"Restrictions applying to construction," Mr. Nelson wrote, "are necessary in order to conserve the critical material required as well as the necessary manpower."

"In 1933 the volume of construction amounted to approximately two and one-half billion dollars. This has steadily increased until in 1942 the volume of construction in this country reached a peak of thirteen and one-half billion dollars. It is apparent that war conditions cannot provide either the material or the manpower necessary to continue construction to this extent.

"In 1943, the current figure shows a volume scheduled of seven and one-half billion dollars, which is substantially in excess of what might be termed normal. Estimates which have been prepared for 1944 show that construction should be anticipated in the amount of between five and six billion dollars.

"The result of this analysis indicates that regardless of efforts to curtail, there still is a requirement for construction which is in excess of what we might be able to consider as normal. In addition to this construction which is being developed in this country, we are called upon to furnish materials for a very substantial program that is being developed outside of this continent for direct military needs.

"Under these conditions, it is not likely that relaxation can be made for the building industry. An effort has been made to scale construction down to the point that we can produce it without too much interference with direct war production."

WE CAN DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT!
